UNFOLD MURDER CASE AGAINST MRS. FORTESCUE

Pile Up Evidence at Honolulu Trial.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HONOLULU, April 11.—A perfectly bungled crime, the killing of Joseph Kahahawai, a young Hawaiian, on Jan. 8 at the Manoa valley residence of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, American society woman, was sketched in circumstantial detail upon the troubled Hawaiian mind today as Prosecutor John C. Kelley skillfully began his presentation of the murder case against her and her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, naval enlisted men.

One illustration was the manner in which it was attempted to hide this crime and the tragic failure in the disposition of the clothing of the dead man. His underclothes, black and white checked shorts, torn and with two missing buttons, were held before the jury and spectators in Circuit Judge Charles S. Davis' court.

Find Slain Man's Cap.

John C. Cluney, a detective, testified that these wet, wrapped towels, marked with the tell tale letters, "U. S. N.," were found in a hotel cake box in the car at the time the woman, her son-in-law and the sailor, Lord, were taking the sheet-wrapped naked body to the sea coast for the evident purpose of throwing it over the cliff to the sharks.

But they had forgotten Kahahawai's cap, the prosecutor pointed out, which was found in the living room of the Fortescue home. The two missing buttons, he added, were found rolled under the sink which showed blood stains resulting from the washing of the clothing.

The whole circumstantial case outlined by Kelley and testified to by six preliminary witnesses today was overwhelming as to the killing.

Defense Listens and Plans.

Clarence Darrow of Chicago and the attorneys assisting him on the defense, George S. Leisure and Montgomery Winn, made no effort to combat these facts and let the mass of evidence roll along.

They are waiting evidently to spring a story of justification which now can only be guessed at. Darrow, whose unruly gray hair, carefully slicked by his wife before he came to court, became more and more wind-blown as he leaned across the table in front of the witnesses, listened, and planned.

Kelley told the jury he would show that the death of this Hawaiian boy was a premeditated, prearranged plot which he intends to prove by evidence of the purchase of guns, the hiring of a car, and the getting of rope and canvas with which the body was wrapped. He advanced the theory that Kahahawai was shot as he sat on a bed in Mrs. Fortescue's room and died on the bathroom floor. He exhibited a bullet hole in the dead man's shirt.

Defense Lets Facts Stand.

"There is no question to be raised in this case about the facts of the trip," Darrow informed the court at once, when the prosecution introduced photographs taken on the coast highway ten miles from Honolulu after the car was stopped in a wild chase by police cars and the body of Kahahawai was found.

Mrs. Fortescue got out and sat on a rock by the side of the road until the patrol wagon came, Kelley said. Officers testified that she made no statement. Lieut. Massie was described as "stern, who looked straight ahead and never said a word."

Lord, at whose feet the body was found, was described as "very quiet, not saying a word, and his hair was mussed up."

Kelley said that when the defendants were asked why the body was in the car and what they were doing, they replied, "I don't know."

Point Out Defendants.

The four defendants were identified in the courtroom by various witnesses, chiefly Hawaiians. Edward Ulii, cousin of Kahahawai, said that Mrs. Fortescue was the woman who was in front of the judiciary building the morning of the abduction and killing

14 Volcanoes Erupt; Peril Thousands

ANDES POUR GAS ON ARGENTINES; TOWNS BEG AID

Thousands of Miles Covered with Ashes.

BUENOS AIRES, April 11.—The "backbone of South America," the Andes mountains, is aflame tonight. Thousands of persons living in an area 400 miles from north to south and 700 miles wide, extending across the continent from the Pacific coast of Chile to the Atlantic coast of Argentina and Uruguay, were believed to be in danger. They faced the peril of asphyxiation by clouds of volcanic ashes and gas belched forth by snow covered craters.

Scientists reported that at least fourteen volcanoes were in eruption. The center of the activity was in the central provinces of Chile. The biggest craters in action are Tinguiririca in Colchagua province and Quisapu, Descabezada, and Maulino in Talca province. There are eight others known to be in eruption in Curico province and many others are probably also spitting forth fire and ashes.

Town Call for Help.

The disturbance appears to be moving northward, and tonight San Jose and Maipo volcanoes, southeast of Santiago, capital of Chile, burst into eruption. At least one Argentina crater, Domuyo, situated in the Neuquen territory, joined the uproar.

The district in the greatest danger appeared to be in the Argentine pampas, directly east of the disturbance. A strong west wind is carrying the rain of ashes and gas rapidly across the continent, and tonight several towns in Mendoza province, including Malargue and San Rafael, asked the government to rush drums of oxygen to treat cases of asphyxiation. A cavalry regiment was ordered to the aid of the panic stricken residents.

Telegrams from the interior report that many towns were in complete darkness throughout the day from the ashes thrown out by the craters. Several towns reported that the ashes had reached a depth of several inches on the ground. Trains of the Pacific railway across the Andes were delayed.

Ashes Fall in Buenos Aires.

Traveling with phenomenal speed, comparable to that of an airplane, ashes began to settle on Buenos Aires early today, within a few hours after the eruption began. The ash continued to fall tonight, giving the city a snowbound aspect.

An epidemic of coughing was caused by the ashes and those who ventured outdoors used handkerchiefs to breathe through. The taste of the ashes is unpleasant and irritating. Tonight thousands of citizens here suffered from "volcanic throat," due to inhaling what apparently is powdered pumice. Street car conductors and motormen and others who went abroad tonight used goggles. It is estimated that upwards of 3,000 tons of ashes have fallen in Buenos Aires.

Dispatches from Montevideo said ashes began to fall in Uruguay at 10 a. m., causing a panic among the superstitious. Montevideo is 600 miles from the scene of the eruption.

Chile in a Panic.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 11.—Chile was in the grip of a near panic tonight as several volcanoes in the Andes simultaneously went on a rampage and belched fire and ashes, while earthquakes rumbled up and down the country.

No casualties had been reported, but the fearful populace of the cities and towns for the most part remained indoors, afraid to venture out into the white ashes which rained steadily down. It resembled somewhat a snowstorm. Those who did venture out carried umbrellas to protect their eyes. Thousands fled from the cities to the open fields.

Schools Shut to Avert Panic.

The phenomenon affected a strip of the country about 400 miles long, comprising the provinces of Valparaiso, Santiago, Colchagua, Curico, Talca, Linares, and Aconcagua. These provinces were in pitch darkness all day. Schools were closed in an effort to stem the rising tide of panic and to avert serious disaster in case of a violent earthquake or eruption.

The eruption seemed to center around the 13,000 foot Tinguiririca volcano, in Colchagua province. Other volcanoes which were known to be in eruption were Quizapu, 11,500 feet

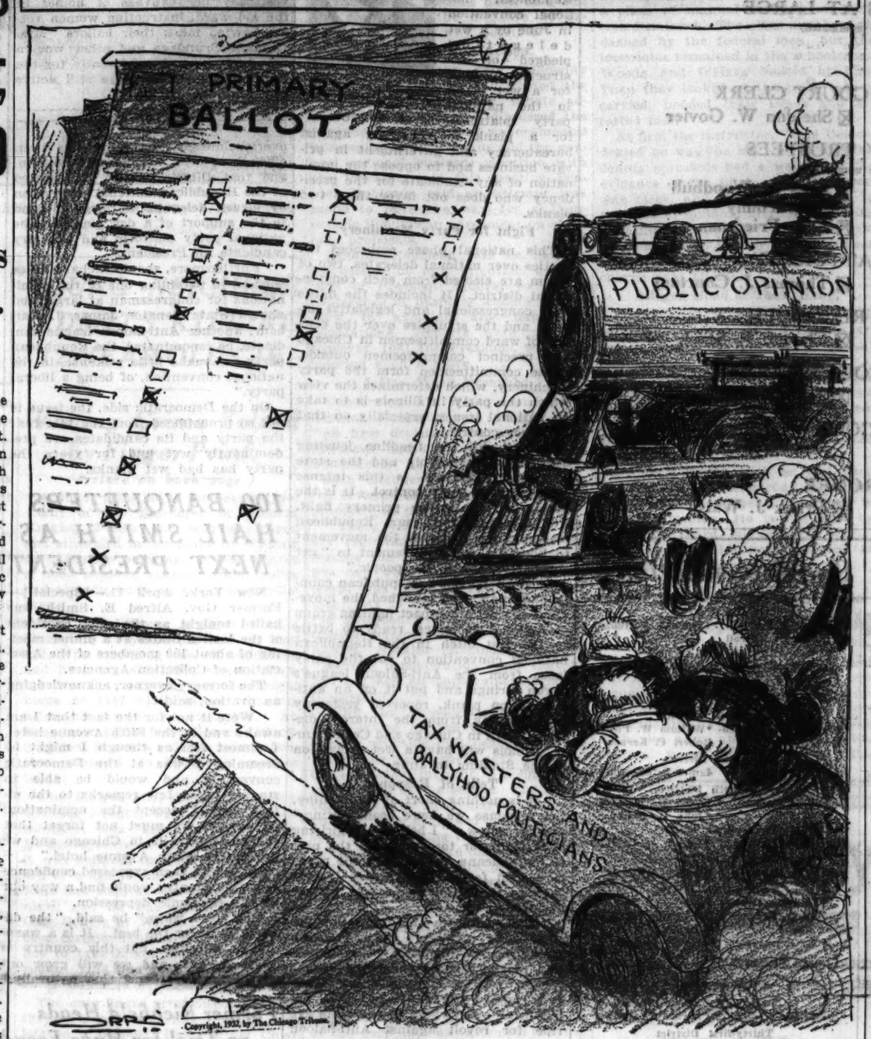
THE MEETING AT THE CROSSING



Husband Kills Self to Escape Alimony Load

Declaring his act to be a protest against the alimony racket, Garfield J. Schieferstein, 50 years old, 850 Cornelia avenue, owner of three apartment buildings on the north side, committed suicide last night by inhaling carbon monoxide fumes from the engine of his automobile in a private garage in the rear of 3511 Rokeby street.

In thirteen years, Schieferstein had paid $32,500 alimony to his wife, Mrs. Mildred Schieferstein, 1653 Addison street, under a separate maintenance decree. This included support also for a daughter, Dorothy, 18.

Forced to Live in Poverty.

In a farewell letter, Schieferstein wrote that because of the alimony payments he faced the loss of his properties for nonpayment of taxes, and was forced to live like a hermit in a vacant flat with a chair and a bed as his only furniture.

"I leave this world," Schieferstein wrote, "because I have been ruined by my wife and laws and courts that make the racket of alimony possible. I have paid $2,500 a year for thirteen years to a woman who tricked me into marriage and has been tricky and dishonest ever since.

"I am in a position where I cannot meet my obligations even though I live like a hermit in one of my vacant flats with but a bed and a chair as my only furniture.

All His Money Taken.

"Two years ago she [his wife] started to take my property away when I ran a few weeks behind. This she can do easily as the alimony is a lien on my property. She takes all my money, is ready to take all my property, makes it impossible for me to marry for life, makes it impossible for me to pay bills, and I must lose that property that has been forfeited to the state for taxes.

"I had the grief and she had the gravy. Good-by, world, you are too much for me."

In his note Schieferstein mentioned that he appeared before Judge Harry B. Miller on April 2 for a hearing on reduction of alimony, and that the case was continued to April 15. Schieferstein believed, however, he wrote, that "the robbery will continue."

Judge Recalls Case.

Judge Miller recalled the case last night. Begun thirteen years ago, it was not his originally, and came before him through routine channels. No detailed evidence had been heard as yet. A retroactive reduction may have been possible, the judge said. His attitude in such cases, he added, took into consideration the fact that conditions now make it impossible for men to pay alimony today that they may easily have met several years ago.

Schieferstein fell behind in his payments recently, his widow admitted last night. However, he managed to escape joining the "alimony club" in the county jail. The last census showed 89 husbands or ex-husbands lodged in jail for failure or inability to meet alimony payments. Of these 52 have been committed by Judge Daniel P. Trude.

To the Kidnapers:

This is an explanation of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York Daily News, and Detroit Mirror offer of a $50,000 reward for exclusive information which will enable these newspapers to restore the kidnaped Lindbergh baby to its parents. This explanation is addressed to the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, now missing for forty-two days.

First, we wish to make an announcement of a change in the judges named to designate the rightful recipient or recipients of the $50,000. The judges first chosen were Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey state police.

From a source which we prefer not to name has come the suggestion that the kidnapers may be unwilling to deal with the above named three men as judges.

Therefore, the judges have been changed and will be the managing editors of the three newspapers—THE TRIBUNE, the New York News and the Detroit Mirror.

The other conditions of the $50,000 reward offer stand as first stated in these newspapers. Those conditions are set forth again today on page 5.

We wish it clearly understood that in making this $50,000 reward offer, we have not consulted either the police or Col. Lindbergh.

Payment of the $50,000 will be made in any kind of currency or coin the kidnapers or their agents may specify. The child, alive and well and identified, must be in our custody before any payment is made. No attempt will be made or permitted at entrapment of the kidnapers or their agents [1] while the child is being delivered, or [2], while the money is paid over.

That is our offer—an offer of full protection while the child is being returned, plus $50,000 for the return of the child.

Police Spurn Judge's Plea to Free Kin

Herman Rocklin, 42 years old, who conducts a cigar store and alleged gambling house at 104 South Halsted street, went to the Des Plaines street police station last night and demanded a personal conference with Capt. John Stege, the commanding officer.

The interview was granted. After a few minutes of conversation Capt. Stege opened the door of his private office and marched Herman Rocklin over to the desk sergeant.

Ordered to Cell by Stege.

"He says," the captain announced, "that he won't close his place and that if we close it his brother-in-law, Judge Schulman, is going to see that it's opened again. Take him down into a nice cell in the basement and leave him there without booking him."

No sooner said than done. Capt. Stege went home and Herman Rocklin moaned in his cell for Judge Joseph Schulman of the Municipal court and for liberty.

Two hours later Judge Schulman appeared at the station in a dual role. As a candidate for reelection he distributed cigars to all present and asked for suffrages today. As a relative and as a member of the bench he demanded the release of Herman Rocklin.

Refuses Judge's Plea.

Lieut. George Barker explained that he was powerless, that Rocklin was the captain's prisoner and that so far as he was concerned the prisoner would stay a prisoner.

"Unless he's booked I will come here and hold court, have Rocklin booked and bonds set," retorted the judge.

He went away and an interested observer called Capt. Stege at home and reported the situation.

"Rocklin will stay in his cell and his place will stay closed," said the captain.

Later, Judge Schulman called the police station by telephone and asked Lieut. Barker if Capt. Stege had changed his stand. Informed that the captain still refused to free Rocklin, he cut off the conversation.

Girl Robbed of Fur Coat and a $100 Dinner Ring

Joseph Leiter, capitalist and sportsman, died yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in his home at 44 Banks street. He was 63 years old. Death was due to a combination of pneumonia and heart disease, according to Dr. Joseph A. Capps, the attending physician.

Mr. Leiter caught a cold while attending the races at New Orleans three weeks ago. With a characteristic disregard of consequences, he insisted upon viewing subsequent races in a wheel chair for several days until ordered to bed. He was brought back to Chicago ten days ago and his condition slowly became worse. A slight improvement was noted Sunday, but he failed to meet the crisis which came early yesterday.

His wife, Mrs. Juliette Williams Leiter, and son, Thomas, were at his bedside when he died.

Funeral services will be held at St. Chrysostom's church at 2 p. m. today and the body will be sent to Washington, D. C., for burial in the Leiter family plot there after services in St. John's cathedral tomorrow.

Always in Public Eye.

Joseph Leiter was always in the public eye from the time when, as a youth of 29, he attempted to corner the wheat of the world and lost $10,000,000 of his father's money. His booming laugh, his famous white waistcoat and pearl gray stovepipe hat were known in Chicago, New York, Washington, D. C., and at most of the race tracks in the country.

Next to his wheat pit exploit, his legal battle with his sister, Lady Marguerite Hyde, countess of Suffolk and Berks, over the management of the $30,000,000 Levi Z. Leiter estate, obtained most space in the public prints. But stories about Joe Leiter were always being printed. Now he was organizing a combine of railroads, again he was forming a meat trust and a milk trust. He planned to purchase the Great Wall of China and preserve it for posterity. He refused to pay a $1,332 bill for 111 pairs of $12 sox and was haled into court.

Court Terms Him a "Nomad."

The question of his legal residence came up and the New York Supreme court termed him a "nomad"; his liquor vaults in Washington, D. C., were raided of $300,000 worth of wines and liquors; less than a year ago he was ruled off the turf for using profanity to Arlington Park Jockey club stewards, but was soon reinstated.

Leiter himself described his early life from the witness stand during his battle over the Leiter estate. He was born Dec. 4, 1868, in Michigan avenue about where the Auditorium hotel now stands. He attended the Bond school here, then went east to be educated at St. Paul's, Concord, N. H., and at Harvard, where he received an A. B. degree in 1891.

After college Leiter went abroad. He toured Europe, then came back to work as a clerk in his father's office. The story has often been printed that his father gave him $1,000,000 and told him to try his hand at business. Leiter's own version was more prosaic. He said he worked around the office, collected rents, transacted office business, and gradually won his father's confidence in his ability.

The stage was set in 1897 for Leiter

BY PARKE BROWN.

Unmistakable evidence of confidence of victory in today's Illinois primaries was discoverable yesterday in the headquarters of only two of the eight major governorship candidates in Chicago.

At the regular Democratic organization headquarters there was an increased certainty that Judge Henry Horner will be nominated overwhelmingly, running far ahead of both his chief opponents, Michael L. Igoe and Bruce A. Campbell. The growth of optimism was due to reports of increased strength both downstate and in Chicago.

The supporters of Oscar E. Carlstrom said that reports from their downstate county managers were uniform in declarations that he was the only governorship candidate in the admittedly close race among the Republicans who had surged ahead. They, too, said they had received cheering information from a number of Chicago wards where new canvasses were made.

Experts have predicted that the total vote today will exceed 2,000,000, and may set a record for Illinois primaries.

Election Betting Light.

The amount of betting on the last day before the primaries was light. For several weeks thousands of dollars of 2 to 1 money on Judge Horner to win the nomination went begging and late yesterday the odds were increased to 3 to 1, with few takers. The Horner backers then offered even money that their candidate would win by 100,000 or more and in some instances, it was reported, even money was offered on a plurality of 150,000 for Horner.

These were about the only bets heard of in the loop. The Republican fight is so much closer than the Democratic contest that the gamblers seemed to prefer to choose the field in which there was less element of doubt.

The Carlstrom people said they were willing to bet even money against the field—Omer N. Custer, Edward J. Brundage, Len Small, and William H. Malone—but couldn't find any enthusiast for any of the opposition who felt his information was authoritative enough to warrant risking his money.

Rumors of Shifts Heard.

Both Small and Custer headquarters were made restless during the day by rumors of shifting allegiance among Chicago ward committeemen and downstate county leaders. With both classes, it was said, the failure to receive the expected allotments of "poll money" led to decisions to shift to other camps at the last minute.

Small's headquarters was disturbed by reports that his Cook county organization was going to pieces because a number of the old city hall committeemen had become convinced he could not win. Some of them were said to have changed over to Carlstrom in the belief that he now is the strongest candidate in the race.

The Custer camp was even more torn by apparently well confirmed reports that the wet committeemen lined up by Homer K. Galpin had dropped all their efforts to do anything for the Anti-Saloon league candidate and had gone so far as to blot out the cross before Custer's name on the ballots provided for their use. They were reported to be confining their efforts to their own committeeship candidacies and their favorite candidates for county offices.

There were no stirring last minute appeals from any of the Republican camps. Custer and Malone held noon meetings in loop theaters, the Custer meeting being a distinct disappointment because it did not fill the main floor of the Garrick theater and because his hearers were lukewarm.

Brundage headquarters was undisturbed except by the fact that some one had issued thousands of bogus Brundage sample ballots and distributed them largely on the north and south sides. They were marked for Judge Michael Feinberg for state's attorney while the real Brundage ballots are marked for State's Attorney Swanson.

Most of Judge Horner's speaking dates were canceled because of a slight hoarseness which, his physicians said, required him to give his voice a rest. At the few meetings at which he appeared he spoke only briefly.

Battle Won, Horner Says.

"I believe I may say safely that the battle is won," he said in one of these short talks. "The evidence of growing support for the regularly indorsed ticket is coming in hourly, not only from Chicago wards and suburbs of the city, but from many of the counties of the state. We are confident of a tremendous majority.

"I am glad to say that nothing has occurred in this campaign, as far as I am concerned, to interfere with the friendly personal relationships that have always existed between my two principal opponents [Igoe and Campbell] and myself. I am confident after the party has pronounced its verdict tomorrow, all three of us will be found working together as fellow Democrats in the fall."

Cermak Defies His Foes.

In a speech at a Horner meeting at noon in the Grand Opera house Mayor Cermak said that the opposition had directed its fight upon him exclusively in an effort to line up precinct workers and others whose resentment has been aroused against his administration.

"If this is to be a question of a vote of confidence in the administration," he said, "I am satisfied to let it be taken in that way and I am convinced of the outcome. The people as a whole are not displeased with efforts to reduce expenses, lower taxes, improve public service, and make Chicago a better city in which to live.

"Expenses have been cut, crime during the last six months has been less than it has in any similar period in ten years and Chicago has regained its old place of honor as the convention city of the nation. And the people know these facts."

Predict Horner Victory by 280,000.

Democratic headquarters, late in the day, revised its estimates of the extent of Judge Horner's victory. The latest figures placed his plurality in the entire state between 280,000 and 300,000, of which 250,000 to 270,000 was forecast as coming from Cook county.

Headquarters still conceded that Campbell may run ahead of Horner downstate by a small margin, but predicted that the downstater would not receive 25,000 votes in Chicago. The forecast gave Igoe second place in Cook county and in the state as a whole, the estimate of the Horner plurality, therefore, being figured against calculations of the Igoe vote.

There was another rumor during the day that Campbell, who is in East St. Louis for primary day, had withdrawn in favor of Igoe. This was defied by Campbell headquarters.

"It's just another plain canard, just one more political falsehood," said Campbell, when his headquarters called his attention to the rumor. "It is deliberately spread by some candidate who thinks it may help him."

CANDIDATES WILL GET RETURNS IN HOMES TONIGHT

Most of the candidates in today's election will receive the returns in their homes tonight.

Attorney General Carlstrom left for Toledo at a late hour last night to vote early this morning and wait there for the results. Omer N. Custer will likewise travel to Galesburg, his home, to cast his ballot. William H. Malone is expected to receive the news at his home in Park Ridge or at his hotel headquarters in the loop. Edward J. Brundage will get the returns tonight at his home in Lake Forest.

On the Democratic side, Judge Henry Horner is expected to receive the returns with Mayor Cermak in the Parlor L headquarters at the Hotel Sherman. Senator Thomas J. Courtney, organization choice for state's attorney, will be with them. Representative M. L. Igoe may be at his home on the south side, his La Salle hotel headquarters, or the Illinois Athletic club. Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan will probably be at his home or at his headquarters in the La Salle.

MRS. FAIRBANK KEYNOTER IN WET ASSEMBLY TODAY

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank of the Illinois division, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, will be the keynoter this morning as the national convention of the group opens in Washington, under the chairmanship of its founder head, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York. Mrs. Fairbank, accompanied by Mrs. George Brennan and her daughter, Miss Mary Brennan, left for the capital on Sunday.

The Chicago delegation at the convention was augmented yesterday by the departure of another group from the Illinois division, which will arrive for the opening session. It is composed of Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, co-chairmen of the local forces; Mrs. Myrtle Schwartz, and Mrs. William A. Sauer.

NEBRASKA VOTES CHOICES TODAY AT A PRIMARY

Lincoln, Neb., April 11.—(AP)—The eve of Nebraska's primary election found candidates for state offices still vigorously stumping for votes.

The Democratic national convention delegate race and the gubernatorial contests are high points of interest.

For the first time Speaker John N. Garner, Gov. Roosevelt, and Gov. Murray will be competing. Their names appear on the presidential preference ballot.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan and William Ritchie Jr., cousin of Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, are the chief Democratic aspirants for governor. The leading Republican candidates are Dwight Griswold, Kenneth S. Wherry, and George A. Williams.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF BAR FOLLOWED IN COURT PRIMARY

THE TRIBUNE recommends support for those candidates for the Municipal court who received the indorsement of the Chicago Bar association in the recent primary of its members. They are the following, the asterisks [*] indicating sitting judges:

REPUBLICAN.	DEMOCRATIC.
*Edward B. Casey	*John J. Rooney

Roy S. Gaskill	Lawrence E. McGann
*John A. Sbarbaro	Cecil Corbett Smith
Henry A. Gano	Frank T. Fitzsimmons

Twelve candidates are to be nominated by each party. Because of the rule of the Chicago Bar association requiring a favorable vote by one-third of the members voting, only eleven were indorsed on the Republican side. The man just below the requirement was Elmer M. Walsh. One-third of the vote was 848, and he received 843.

G. O. P. WET FIGHT A STRONG FACTOR AT POLLS TODAY

Party Machinery Control Is Primary Issue.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The fundamental issue of whether the Republican party in Illinois is to be wet or dry, anti-prohibition or Anti-Saloon league, gives today's primaries a national aspect.

B. W. SNOW.

Washington is evincing keen interest in the question of whether Illinois will be represented in the Republican national convention in June by a wet delegation pledged or instructed to fight for a wet plank in the national party platform, for a plank declaring against bureaucracy and government in private business and to oppose the nomination of any candidate for the presidency who does not favor these two planks.

Fight for Party Machinery.

This national phase embraces the battles over national delegates, two of whom are elected from each congressional district. It includes the fights over congressional and legislative offices, and the struggles over the election of ward committeemen in Chicago and precinct committeemen outside. These committeemen form the party machinery, which determines the view which the party in Illinois is to take on national issues, especially on that of liquor control.

Beneath all the headline jousting over the governorship and the state and county tickets is this intense struggle over party control. It is the bottom of the entire primary fight. For more than a year Republican leaders have regarded the movement to liberalize as a movement to "get the party back to the people."

Bernard W. Snow, Republican county chairman, who launched the movement to elect a compact fighting group of national delegates, ready to battle to the last ditch in the Republican national convention to cut the party loose from the Anti-Saloon league's apron strings and put it on an anti-prohibition plank, reported yesterday that judging from the interest displayed both in Chicago and Cook county, Illinois will have a wet delegation at the Stadium in June.

Tells of Response.

"It is nothing short of astonishing, the response we have been getting," said Mr. Snow. "I believe an uprising is in sight for tomorrow, on the part of Republicans, who believe the party is headed for disaster unless it gets back to the people, especially on the prohibition question.

"The electorate of Illinois has unequivocally registere itself as being for repeal, modification, or resubmission of the 18th amendment. It has spoken with a loud voice on referenda, and I am convinced that Republicans everywhere in the state are ripe for revolt against Anti-Saloon league politicians who are deaf to the public voice."

The Crusaders reiterated the issue in a final bulletin sent out last night to battalion commanders and workers.

"The primaries," it said, "will definitely determine whether or not the Republican party of Illinois is to be the party of the Anti-Saloon league, the Clarence True Wilsons, the Scott McBrides and other professional dry dictators, or whether it is to be the party of the people.

"Should Omer N. Custer be nominated, he will become the Republican standard bearer, and Illinois voters will be faced with the fact that this overwhelmingly wet state has been officially placed in the dry column, and that Illinois will be represented at the Republican national convention by eleven delegates at large pledged to the support of a dry plank in the national party platform and of a dry candidate for President.

"Furthermore, should Richard Yates succeed in obtaining one of the nominations for congressman at large, and should State Senator James J. Barbour, another Anti-Saloon league candidate, be renominated, the Republican party can make little pretense, in the national convention, of being a liberal party."

On the Democratic side, the issue is not so pronounced from the fact that the party and its candidates are predominantly wet and for years the party has had wet planks.

WOMEN ARE URGED NOT TO TOSS AWAY THEIR VOTES TODAY

Miss Hallie Barton Smoot and Mrs. Annie J Hodge, co-chairmen of the women's division in the Hotel La Salle headquarters of Oscar E. Carlstrom, Republican candidate for governor, yesterday issued a plea to all women in Illinois to give careful consideration today to their use of the vote for which they fought so long.

"Women battled for their right to the ballot too long to waste any of their opportunities," Miss Smoot said. "They get to vote for a governor only once in four years, and they should concentrate on a candidate who can win the nomination and who can defeat the Democratic candidate in November. In my opinion Mr. Carlstrom is that man."

Mrs. Mabel Hanly, chairman of the women's division for Michael L. Igoe, Democratic candidate for governor, was equally certain of victory. So confident were her co-workers of the outcome, she declared, that no alternative was being considered.

Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, a supporter of Edward J. Brundage, continued yesterday her canvass of homes in the 42d ward, instructing women voters how to mark their ballots. Mrs. Leonard Brundage and other women who have worked consistently for the Brundage candidacy were still active yesterday.

100 BANQUETERS HAIL SMITH AS NEXT PRESIDENT

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was hailed tonight as the next President of the United States at a dinner meeting of about 100 members of the Association of Collection Agencies.

The former governor, acknowledging an ovation, said:

"Were it not for the fact that I am awake and in the Fifth Avenue hotel, I almost feel as though I might be dreaming I was at the Democratic convention and would be able to stagger out a few remarks to the effect that I accept the nomination. Of course, we must not forget that the convention is in Chicago and we are at the Fifth Avenue hotel."

Mr. Smith then expressed confidence that this country would find a way out of the economic depression.

"In some ways," he said, "the depression is for the best. It is a warning, a checkup, but this country is perfectly safe and we will grow out of the business depression naturally."

Former Richfield Heads on Trial for Huge Fraud

Los Angeles, Cal., April 11.—[Special.]—Alleged to have taken $245,000 from the treasury of the Richfield Oil corporation, now in receivership, during their terms as high officials of that corporation, Clarence M. Fuller, former president; James A. Talbot, former chairman of the board of directors, and Raymond McKee, former vice president, today went on trial on criminal charges.

DROPS DEAD ON STREET.

Hugh Donnelly, 70 years old, a night watchman, dropped dead early yesterday as he was walking to his home at 9308 Burlington boulevard, Brookefield.

FEAR TERRORISM IN WARDS TODAY DESPITE GUARDS

Officials Double Efforts to Prevent Trouble.

Fear of terrorism and possible bloodshed at the primary today despite all possible precautions was expressed at the election commissioner's offices yesterday as an army of policemen and watchers more than 40,000 strong was marshaled to guard the polls.

FRED V. MAGUIRE.

"The feeling is so intense in some of the ward fights that we are apprehensive," said Fred V. Maguire, chairman of the board of commissioners. "We are doing all that can possibly be done, however."

Where Trouble Is Feared.

Policemen and special deputies will be concentrated in the 14th, 20th, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, and 42d wards, where trouble is expected. The battle for the positions of ward committeemen in these wards is bitter and in many cases has the element of a personal grudge fight, Mr. Maguire declared.

"We're concentrating on the 24th ward, where there's intense feeling over the battle for Republican ward committeeman between former Judge Emanuel Eller and Paul W. Rothenberg, the present committeeman," said Mr. Maguire.

"In the 42d ward, west of State street, the war between Harry Busch and Richard Prendergast is brewing trouble. The 27th, Homer Galpin's home ward, is also a dangerous spot. In the other wards where the police and other guards will be stationed, the battles for ward committeemen have developed into real wars."

Jarecki Staff on Duty.

County Judge Jarecki, head of the county election machinery, also said that the situation seemed to promise trouble. He and a staff of special prosecutors headed by former Gov. Edward F. Dunne, will be on duty all day today in the city hall.

All 5,000 Chicago policemen will be on duty. The Voter's Nonpartisan association has picked 1,200 ex-service men to watch the polls in a semi-official capacity. Credentials have been issued to 35,000 watchers for various political factions.

Joseph Hibbs, 1000 Monroe street, a Democratic precinct captain in the 27th ward, was slugged by two men last night in Monroe street near Racine avenue. Capt. John Stege of the Des Plaines street station was notified and said that as a result of the beating he would assign an extra patrolman today for Hibbs' precinct. Stege said Dago Lawrence Mangano is interested in the 27th ward results.

Ballots Found in Box.

Assistant State's Attorney Edward Markham started an investigation last night of a ballot box that had been delivered by the Melrose Park authorities to the 4th precinct polling place in the Mohawk Athletic club, 14th avenue and Lake street, Melrose Park. In this box were found 500 ballots that had been cast in the school elections Saturday. Mr. Markham said he was convinced that the ballots were left in the box by error.

Fifty suspected hoodlums, rounded up in a preelection drive, were freed on charges of disorderly conduct yesterday when arraigned before Judge Jay A. Schiller in the South State street court.

SUGGESTS BALLOTING BY MAIL TO SAVE ON ELECTION COSTS

Plans for voting by mail were presented to County Judge Jarecki yesterday by Walter L. Gregory, president of the State Street council and manager of the Palmer house. Mr. Gregory contended that his plan would cut election costs and insure a greater return of ballots.

"My idea is that ballots should be distributed by mail to the registered voters in their homes one day in advance of the election," said Mr. Gregory. "With this ballot should be an envelope properly addressed to the election commissioners, bearing sufficient postage for delivery."

Mr. Gregory pointed out that the mayoralty election of last year cost Chicago taxpayers approximately $650,000. Under his system of balloting, Mr. Gregory asserted, the cost would have been about $106,356.

A greater vote would be obtained by the new plan, according to Mr. Gregory, since he said many persons stay away from polling places because of the crowding, the officious conduct of workers, or inclement weather.

BERRIEN COUNTY G. O. P. TO TALK OF MODIFICATION

Benton Harbor, Mich., April 11.—[Special.]—A resolution favoring modification of the dry law will be offered before the Berrien county Republican convention which convenes here Wednesday night at the Naval armory. A wet and dry battle is looked for among the 599 delegates at the meeting, which is to choose thirty delegates to the state convention in Grand Rapids April 27.

Congressman J. C. Ketcham comes from Washington to speak and also to attend the congressional district convention here Thursday afternoon.

The district parley will elect two delegates and two alternates to represent the Fourth congressional district at the Republican national convention in Chicago.

SENATE ORDERS INVESTIGATION OF FARM BOARD

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—A complete investigation into the activities and operations of the federal farm board was ordered today by the senate, when a resolution by Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], authorizing the inquiry, was passed without a dissenting vote.

Under the terms of the Norris resolution the senate agriculture committee will conduct the investigation, which is also to include an inquiry into all exchanges in the United States dealing in those commodities under the board's jurisdiction.

The investigation represents an effort to determine whether the activities of the board have been necessary and helpful to the farmer or if they have been injurious in any way to coöperative organizations, and whether the board's transactions will eventually result in losses or profits.

'Roscoe' Letters to G. O. P. Voters Are Branded Trick

Hundreds and possibly thousands of Republican voters received letters yesterday signed by "Roscoe Fairweather" notifying them that they are barred from voting in the Democratic primary today. It was reported the letters were received by men and women entitled to ask for Democratic ballots if they wish to and were branded by the regular Democratic organization as an effort to keep timid voters away from the polls.

STATE ATTORNEY CONTESTS HOLD INTEREST TODAY

The office of state's attorney was key position in the fight over county tickets yesterday as the campaign swept to its finish. The Republican battle between State's Attorney John A. Swanson and Judge Michael Feinberg, the Crowe candidate, held the political interest as being essentially the fight of 1928 all over again.

In his final addresses Mr. Swanson set forth that the real issue is whether Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney whom Swanson defeated in the landslide uprising of four years ago, is to regain political prestige and dominance through Judge Feinberg, whom Crowe is running for the office he lost in 1928.

Feinberg Tool of Crowe.

"Judge Feinberg is actually the tool of the fellow I beat four years ago, Bob Crowe," said Swanson at the Apollo theater.

"It was you voters who rose up against the old machine and took the powerful office of prosecutor from Crowe, then state's attorney. The fight at tomorrow's polls is still a fight against Crowe, who was retired four years ago and is now striving to come back."

Feinberg's "Jail Crooked Bankers" campaign was referred to as a "sham battle" by the state's attorney, who reminded the crowd that Crowe's partner, George E. Gorman, obtained a $48,000 fee in one of the Feinberg bank cases.

"Crowe put Feinberg on the bench and Feinberg's vote as a circuit judge also helped Gorman to get a $10,000 job as attorney for the south park board."

Vote for Every Office.

In closing, State's Attorney Swanson urged the voters to vote for every office today.

"John Swanson has never been a whiner," he told them. "I believe I'll win, but if not I'll be satisfied, for I'll know that the people will have gotten what they wanted. I'm asking reëlection on my record and I'm not making promises. I made only one four years ago when you elected me, and that was to give you an administration 'on the square.' That still stands as my pledge."

After predicting a peaceful election today, the state's attorney poked fun at the current grand jury tilt, saying that "a moratorium had been declared on their activities until tomorrow.

Sees End of "Foolishness."

"And then," he said, "all the arguments will stop and we'll have no more of this damn foolishness."

"If there is anything that should be considered by a grand jury," Swanson said, " the regular grand jury is sitting every day and the assistant state's attorney in charge of it will gladly present any charges any person has."

As to his own accomplishments in office, Mr. Swanson spoke, in part of the sanitary district victory, calling it "a striking example that your state's attorney is on the squa e."

Lyle Noisiest Foe.

"My noisiest opponent," he called Judge John H. Lyle; "the man who reminds his listeners every few minutes that 'I, John Lyle,' is speaking to them. He's really afraid some one will forget his name."

Referring to published statements quoting parts of a recent speech made by Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, in which he spoke of Capone's alleged attempt to control the primary, Mr. Swanson said:

"Mr. Sargent was merely quoting from a petition for a special grand jury, but the statements were published as his own individual assertions. He does not assume responsibility for these charges."

Feinberg Gives Same Speech.

Judge Feinberg's audience in the Erlanger theater heard his familiar talk, given during most of the campaign, which embodies his work in collecting money for bank depositors and an attack on Swanson's administration. One of his statements yesterday was: "Swanson carries two policemen with him wherever he goes, but I can't see why for he hasn't molested a gangster since he's been in office."

On the Democratic side, attention was engrossed by the contest between Thomas J. Courtney, minority leader in the state senate and organization choice for state's attorney, and Matthew D. Hartigan, municipal judge, who is running on the Igoe ticket.

Senator Courtney spoke before a packed meeting at the Grand theater. He presented his record at Springfield for the consideration of the electorate and promised an administration "free from crookedness" if elected state's attorney.

Judge Hartigan in his final speeches remarked: "Why is it I get no answer to my question, what were Courtney and Swanson doing at Mayor Cermak's house the day before the Cermak crowd indorsed Courtney? It seems like a fair and honest question."

WARRING JURIES DECIDE TO TAKE TIME OFF TODAY

Fisher Swears In His Own Group.

Cessation of grand jury hostilities came about naturally yesterday when, without any known agreement or armistice, each of the special grand juries born of campaign charges decided to hold no sessions today. The Judge Michael Feinberg special jury made a few perfunctory investigations, but the Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher jury merely organized and postponed activity until after the primary.

The situation of two special grand juries and two men designated as special state's attorneys was having little, if any, political effect, as far as could be learned. Judge Feinberg's Republican candidacy for state's attorney in opposition to State's Attorney John A. Swanson was presumably responsible for the two sets of appointments and unless the primary is marked with unusual violence the attention of one or both juries is expected to be turned into other channels, if either or both are continued in existence.

Fisher Jury Sworn In.

Chief Justice Fisher, who has ruled that the Feinberg appointments are invalid, null and void, swore in his own special grand jury yesterday morning. He appointed Cecil Franklin Baker, 558 Willow road, Winnetka, an architect, foreman of the jury. Floyd Thompson, former Supreme court justice and Democratic nominee for governor four years ago, whom Judge Fisher appointed special state's attorney, was present but said he had not yet decided whether to accept the appointment.

Judge Fisher began the session by mentioning the petition which resulted in the double set of juries and prosecutors. It was filed by Richard Prendergast, a Feinberg partisan who is seeking to become ward leader, and whose legal associate, Attorney Louis E. Hart, was thereupon named by Judge Feinberg as special state's attorney.

By a vote of 18 to 2 the Circuit court judges decided that Judge Feinberg was personally interested in the subject matter of the petition and they transferred jurisdiction to Chief Justice Fisher, who said yesterday he was acting in pursuance of that decision.

Fisher Tells of Petition.

"Tomorrow in the state and county the primary election will be held," Judge Fisher stated to the men he selected as special grand jurors. "There has been filed with the clerk of this court a petition which charges that organized gangs of ill-disposed persons are functioning in this community to keep alive 10,000 places where illicit liquor flourishes, contrary to law, and that over 1,000 gambling resorts are flourishing.

"The petition says that a certain per..n in custody after conviction in the United States courts (Capone) is in control. And that individual, in order to retain his power, has devised a scheme to obtain control of one or both major parties through electing a number of ward committeemen sympathetic to his cause and has succeeded, the petition states, in getting the names of 75,000 men and women on the poll books who are not legally entitled to vote."

He told jurors they would have the duty of investigating any charges of wrongdoing in the primary and said it was imperative that the charges of intended violence and fraud either be proved or disproved. He warned the jurors not to approach their duty as partisans or to be influenced by any one.

Judge Feinberg and his designated prosecutor, Mr. Hart, meanwhile were holding forth in the county building, far away from Judge Fisher's west side court and juryroom. The first action was the finding that George Seif, clerk of the Criminal court, a Democrat, was in contempt of court, following his continued refusal to recognize Judge Feinberg as a judge of the Criminal court and to furnish him with a clerk. Judge Feinberg ordered a finding made, but directed his clerk to leave blank the space for providing for the punishment for the contempt.

Then the jury retired and heard complaints from several precinct captains of Prendergast's ward and questioned some judges and clerks of that ward about Prendergast's charge that their had been illegal registrations. Mr. Hart said he had no announcements to make. No indictments had been voted, he said, and he had assigned the staff of police given him to County Judge Jarecki for whatever election duties Judge Jarecki may have for them.

Mayor Cermak spoke last night to an audience of more than 10,000 voters of his own ward, the 22d, in behalf of the candidates on the regular Democratic slate. The meeting was held in the Pilsen park auditorium at 26th street and Albany avenue.

"Support the regular ticket tomorrow," he said, "and nominate candidates who can win in November. If you do this I promise you that we'll have a Democratic President and get rid of prohibition, for as Illinois goes, so goes the nation."

The mayor declared that taxes could be cut in half if the sale of liquor were legalized and taxes levied on the traffic in alcohol. He added that only one Democratic ward committeeman was supporting Igoe for the Democratic nomination for governor "and that committeeman is Igoe."

Whiting Crime Solved by Finger Print.

A finger print led to the capture last night of the murderer of Alberta Knight, 12 years old, who was raped and strangled in her home in Whiting early Sunday morning. It also cleared a hobo suspect against whom police had already built up a circumstantial case.

The rapist-slayer is Glen Donald Shustrom, 23 years old and six feet tall, who works in the oil refineries, and lives at 1612 119th street, Whiting, less than a block from the Knight home at 1547 119th street. Shortly after his arrest he confessed. An hour later police freed George [Blackie] Ross, 33 years old, the hobo whom they planned to book for murder today.

The Knight girl, daughter of Mrs. Cynthia Knight, widow of a Baptist minister, was killed in bed. Mrs. Knight operates a rooming house, and it was believed that one of the roomers or a friend committed the crime. Ross had slept at the house Saturday night and he was suspected. Chief Clay Collins of Whiting, to make the case certain, requested Hammond police to take finger prints in the bedroom. This was done by Harry Rimback, finger print expert.

The only finger print discovered was that of a left index finger which was left on a bedpost. Immediately Chief Collins re-arrested all the roomers in the house, and had their finger prints taken. Shustrom was also called in because he had visited Jack Gibson, one of the roomers Saturday night. The print of left index finger tallied with that on the bedpost. He denied at first that he had murdered the Knight girl, but broke down when confronted with the evidence.

"I saw the girl in her bedroom alone," he said. "I crept in, and attacked her. To prevent her from screaming, I covered her head with a blanket. Then I choked her. I wasn't sure she was dead, so I tied an electric light cord around her neck."

POISON FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Frances Strunka, 52 years old, said to have been despondent over ill health, died in the county hospital yesterday of poison which she took several days ago in her home at 1925 South Loomis strete.

DEMOCRATS ACT TO SPEED UP TAX BILL IN SENATE

Hoover Wins Aid Pledge in Conference.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Active steps to expedite action on the billion dollar revenue bill and other pending legislation before congress were taken by senate Democrats tonight following an afternoon conference between Minority Leader Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.] and President Hoover.

At a conference of more than 30 Democratic senators, a resolution was adopted stating that "it is the sense of the Democratic senators that the hearings on the revenue bill be closed at the earliest possible date, and that the passage of the measure be expedited in every way possible."

Pave Way For Action.

Senator Robinson said, following the caucus, that he had visited the White House after the senate adjourned today and had discussed the revenue bill, projected governmental economies, and the bonus and the general national business situation with the President. At this meeting Senator Robinson said an attempt was made to pave the way for a Democratic-Republican agreement on economy proposals.

Senator Robinson said he had no knowledge of any intention on the part of President Hoover to call a conference of business leaders with a view to avoiding any dangerous liquidations. Reports were current, however, that the President was considering such a move.

5 Day Week Broached.

Concerning his White House visit Senator Robinson said tonight that "no firm decision" on the subjects discussed had been reached. It was understood, he said, however, that "such changes as are necessary in the revenue bill shall be advanced as promptly as possible."

"There was some discussion of salary reductions and of proposals for placing the government service on a five day week," he said, but no attempt was made to reach an agreement. As to his personal opinion on the President's proposal to stagger federal employment by enforced furloughs, Senator Robinson said it "merited consideration" but that he had not had an opportunity to study it carefully.

With the Democratic demand for rapid action on the tax measure, it became probable that hearings on the bill will be closed early next week and the legislation brought to a final vote on the floor of the senate. The recent collapse of the stock market is understood to have prompted the bi-partisan steps for expediting the bill's approval.

"There was limited discussion at the conference of senators pertaining to consideration by the senate of essential emergency relief measures, including advances to the states and public construction," Senator Robinson said. "Plans were made to call a conference when in the opinion of the chairman it became "desirable or necessary."

Adoption of the resolution was looked upon as a Democratic closing of the door upon any attempts to bring general tariff provisions into the revenue bill. It left the items already included, such as the import taxes on oil, coal and several other items to a separate vote.

"There is no express agreement for exclusion of other items," said Senator Robinson, "but the course of discussion indicated that any further tariff proposals be quickly disposed of."

TEACHER SEIZED IN SCHOOLROOM AS AN AUTO THIEF

Coincidence Ends Day's Search by U. S.

For several days, up to and including yesterday, Deputy United States Marshals Barratt O'Hara Jr. and Henry Woods searched through the west end of Rogers Park for a fugitive from justice—a young man charged with stealing automobiles and transporting them from one state to another.

They didn't have the fugitive's name, but they had his picture and had been informed that he had been seen loitering in the vicinity of the Armstrong school at 2111 Estes avenue. Druggists, garage men, delicatessen store owners and residents of the neighborhod all said, however, that they had never seen anybody who looked like the photograph.

A Coincidence Solves Mystery.

Late yesterday afternoon, tired of tramping about, the deputies decided to go into the school basement, have a drink of water and go home. Just as they reached the drinking fountain a class of manual training students was dismissed. The class members all dashed by the federal men, but the instructor remained in the schoolroom. Woods and O'Hara looked at him. Then they looked at the picture they carried, nodded their heads and arrested him.

At first the instructor, Chris Demos, denied he was the man for whom the deputy marshals had a warrant. The evidence of the photograph, however, was clear, and Demos was taken to the federal building and charged with violating the Dyer act. He was held in bonds of $2,000 by Commissioner Walker and will have a hearing on the charge next Monday.

Alleged Head of Theft Gang.

Demos, who is only 19 years old, is a nephew of Assistant State's Attorney Andrew Vlahos. Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher said that he was the alleged leader of a band of seven youths who had stolen cars in Gary and sold them at points outside Indiana. The other six, it is said, have already confessed and implicated Demos.

Demos asserted that he had been employed at the Armstrong school for some months as a special instructor in manual training. He is not paid by the school board, but out of a special fund. He gave his home address as 7004 South Western avenue.

Four Bombs Are Exploded as 4,000 Spaniards Strike

GRANADA, Spain, April 11.—(AP)—Four bombs exploded at short intervals here today as 4,000 extremist construction workers began a strike demanding higher wages. There were no casualties. Police were ordered out with riot guns and all radical labor centers were ordered closed. The bakers also went out on strike.

UNFOLD MURDER CASE AGAINST MRS. FORTESCUE

Prosecutor Piles Up Mass of Evidence.

and that she "pointed her finger at Joe and me."

Jones was also identified as the man loafing in the doorway and who lured Kahahawai into the hands of his abductors by exhibiting a fake warrant for arrest. It was brought out that in his pocket later was found the fake warrant which read: "Life is a mysterious and exciting affair and anything can be a thrill."

Darrow quickly interrupted when Ulii was asked to step down and pick out Mrs. Fortescue. Darrow had the woman stand up instead. She stood as straight as a ramrod and held herself in stern control.

Asks Habits of Kahahawai.

Another witness testified that three days before the killing Mrs. Fortescue appeared at the judicial building to inquire as to whether Kahahawai and the other four defendants accused of raping her daughter, Thalia Massie, were still in town and as to where they reported while on probation pending a new trial.

A Japanese boy who rode in a police car with George von Arnswald, a detective, and got close enough to see something big on the floor of the car, injected a new feature in the case. But for this lad's keen observation the police might not have persisted in their chase.

The story of the chase was vividly described by Detective Von Arnswald, who overtook the death car and arrested Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie and Lord.

"I spotted the automobile when I noticed its curtains were drawn," he said. "I followed it in a police car. Through its mirror I noticed the woman who was driving was watching me. The car ahead began speeding up. We drew up alongside and I told the Japanese boy with me to look inside the other car.

Sees White Bundle.

"He said he saw a white bundle. We passed it and stopped. I held out my badge but it passed me at a fast clip. I fired two shots and took up the chase again. We pulled ahead again and stopped the car. I looked in the back and saw a white bundle. I placed the living occupants under arrest.

"The lady sat down on a rock. I touched the leg which was sticking out of the bundle and it was cold. I lifted up the head and it fell back."

As Von Arnswald identified the occupants of the car, Lord grinned as the witness stepped forward and pointed him out.

Darrow Questions Youth.

Standing and peering at Ulii, Darrow questioned the youth slowly.

"How did you know the mustache of the man you have identified as Massie was false?" the lawyer queried.

"It was flat," Ulii replied.

"Did you ever see a false mustache before then?" Darrow asked.

"No."

"Ever see one since?"

"No."

Darrow thereupon excused the witness. As the various witnesses came to testify against the quartet Darrow was sparing with his questions.

Admiral Stirling in Courtroom.

The curtain was lifted on the drama at 9 o'clock with the courtroom in absolute order and a quiet, silent crowd outside. These people were not apathetic, but it is not their nature to stage noisy demonstrations. The mixed audience jammed forward into the passageways. Social leaders, club women and lawyers were included in the crowd, and on a bench under a window where a cool breeze drifted from the mountains sat Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of this naval district. He was dressed as a civilian and was accompanied by Commander R. W. Bates of the shore patrol.

Admiral Stirling was apparently unnoticed by most of the people, although he is the author of the now famous report branding Honolulu as "unsafe for women," and more recently the advocate of a military commission for the government of the islands. He was answered a few days ago by a prominent Japanese legislator who said that the admiral gave him a "pain in the neck."

Prosecutor Opens Case.

All attention was fixed on the sheer moving drama of the trial, which is expected to clarify the atmosphere here and in many ways to substitute facts for rumor and theory.

The prosecutor, in immaculate white, opened the case. He talked to the jury without notes in a slow, effective manner, outlining the case, which appeared shockproof to the audience. He declared he would ask a verdict of guilty on the charge of second degree murder against the four defendants. Second degree murder does not carry the death penalty.

In his reconstruction of the crime, Kelley brought in details which showed the preparations for the death of Kahahawai. Anticipating a possible plea of self-defense, he said he would prove that there was no struggle in the Fortescue home.

Mrs. Fortescue showed no signs as to how the story of the death of the young Hawaiian affected her. She seemed well steeled for the ordeal. Lieut. Massie appeared as if under suppressed excitement and was apparently impressed by the details Kelley poured out.

Displays No Animosity.

The case for the prosecution was carefully prepared. Kelley displayed no animosity against the defendants and no vindictive accents, but he was calm and sure. He drew up his case as if going through with a duty, untouched by all the extraneous angles involved, the keen interest of thousands, the army and navy, the political situation set boiling, and the inevitable effect upon the Ala Moana rape case which he is also called upon to prosecute.

Like a play rehearsed many times lived over and over, the actors were glad to get into action at last. Mr. Kelley's prologue was brief.

The prosecutor first told of the orders to Kahahawai, who had been placed on probation after the mistrial in the rape case, to report at the judicial building each morning at the office of W. A. Dickson, part Hawaiian clerk of the Circuit court. He said that on the morning of Jan. 8 Ulii, who resembles the lynched Hawaiian, arrived with Kahahawai at the building.

Three persons were noted outside of the building that morning, Kelley said, waiting at prearranged places to put into action the forces of death. Mrs. Fortescue was there in a blue roadster. Jones was lounging about the entrance smoking a cigaret. The third, Lieut. Massie, was sitting in a blue-green sedan which had been rented the night before by D. E. Gilkey, a sailor from the submarine base.

"Put on the Spot."

Kahahawai and his cousin reported to the court clerk as usual and left the building to go toward town. They were almost opposite the statue of the island's warrior king, the prosecutor said, when these descendants of the island's race were pointed out by the hand of Mrs. Fortescue.

"She put Kahahawai on the spot," Kelley said.

At King street Kahahawai and his cousin stopped a moment for the traffic and a car bearing Jones and Lieut. Massie slipped beside them, Kelley continued. Jones showed Kahahawai a paper with a gold seal affixed and said:

"Maj. Ross of the territorial police wants to see you."

Kahahawai asked permission for his cousin to come along, too, and Ulii put his foot on the running board, but Jones ordered him off and said they would be back soon, according to the prosecutor's version.

The boy, Kelley said, watched the car and when it did not travel in the direction of Maj. Ross' office, he reported to the bailiff, who told him to see Ross about it. Ulii was told to go to the police. Instead he went home to change his shirt. The police were notified by some one else, and at 9:05 a. m., a message was broadcast to look for a sedan with two white men and Kahahawai.

Officers were already out in radio cars looking for an escaped convict, Daniel Lyman, and at 9:50 a. m., one squad saw a sedan driven by a woman, with a man sitting beside her, prosecutor related. The left rear curtain of the car was pulled down. This was what caused the chase, Kelley said. They were pursued out an ocean highway leading toward Koko Head.

Mrs. Fortescue, Kelley said, was the driver of that car. Lieut. Massie was with her. In the rear with the body was Lord. The body was covered with a shroud of tarpaulin and two sheets, which were bound with 25 feet of new rope with a blue thread in it, a type found only at the submarine base, Kelley said.

Found Rope Under Bed.

More of this rope was found later under a bed in the Fortescue home, where four investigators made a search that afternoon. Kahahawai was dead when the car was opened.

At Massie's feet was a bundle of the abducted man's clothes. The body was naked, according to Kelley. Mrs. Fortescue got out of the automobile and sat on a rock by the roadside, saying nothing. She made no statement later when she was arrested.

The prosecutor then recited the following:

The three defendants were taken back to Honolulu in a patrol wagon with the body at their feet. Officers went to the Fortescue and Massie homes. A blue roadster was in front of the Massie house, the radiator of which was hot.

Find Home Unlocked.

Jones was there and had been drinking, but whether he was intoxicated or was simply feigning, it was unknown. The officers found the Fortescue home unlocked. The house is well hidden by a hedge, and the prosecutor said it was an ideal place for a murder, as the neighbors would have been unable to see a body taken out of the rear door into the car.

A shot was heard about 9 o'clock. Kelley said. There are two bedrooms in the house. One has a double bed and is a front room near the bathroom. All the windows were closed and the curtains down, and there were signs that the bathroom had recently been mopped. There was a damp towel in the closet with clots of blood on it, the prosecutor went on. Splotches of blood were near the door. A man's shirt in the closet was reeking with sweat, and the left sleeve had been torn off. A woman's dressing gown was also there. A purse on the davenport in the living room was open showing a picture of Kahahawai on top of a vanity case. And there was Kahahawai's cap and a coil of new rope.

Find Loaded Gun.

A .32 caliber Ivor-Johnson revolver was found in the kitchen, loaded, as well as a box of cartridges, the prosecutor added. Sheets from the bed were missing.

Jones was stripped of his clothing in his cell and on his right hip beneath his belt was found the fake warrant wrapped with a clip from a .32 caliber automatic, Kelley said. A .45 caliber automatic, loaded, was also in the house. Keys to the Fortescue house and automobile were found on Jones as well as a bullet for a .32 automatic casing in his watch pocket. Kahahawai, Kelley said, was killed by a bullet which severed an artery and that he bled to death in the bathroom. It was indicated that the fatal shot was fired seated on the bed, Kelley added.

Kahahawai's clothes were taken off after his death, Kelley said, and washed in the bathtub. It was done in such a hurry, he added, that they were torn and that since then the missing buttons have been found.

Kelley's statement drew no stir from the defense. Darrow merely arose and announced he would reserve his statement to the jury and the prosecution then called its first witness.

CIRCUS ARRIVES TODAY FOR ITS SPRING DEBUT

Approximately forty steel cars, each seventy feet in length, bearing the Sells-Floto circus, arrived early this morning in the New York Central yards. The circus left Peru Ind., at 8 o'clock last night, to be unloaded shortly after daylight at 18th and Clark streets.

Due to a previous booking, Sells-Floto was unable to obtain possession of the Coliseum until midnight last night. Several hundred tons of dirt will be moved into the structure today, and the thirty elephants will assist the workmen in preparing the ground for the rings, stages and hippodrome track.

Performers are on the way to Chicago from various American cities and also from Europe. Rehearsals will start tomorrow, with the dress rehearsal scheduled for Friday night. The opening performance of the 16 day engagement will take place on Saturday afternoon.

BANDITS WRECK MEXICAN TRAIN AGAIN; 2 KILLED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, April 11.—An international passenger train bound from Laredo, Tex., to Mexico City was derailed last midnight near Obregon. It was the same train which was wrecked three weeks ago by bandits. Last night's wreck is also believed to have been caused by bandits.

The locomotive and two coaches turned over. Two trainmen were reported killed, but no passengers were hurt. Many passengers were reported to have fled in the darkness when a heavy military escort aboard the train opened fire.

Plutarco Elias Calles, minister of war, has ordered commanders of federal troops in the neighborhood to investigate. The locomotive and two cars burned while the passengers camped in the open until a relief train arrived early today. Another train of six coaches and the locomotive was derailed near Chapingo on the Vera Cruz railway last night about fifteen miles from here. No passengers were reported killed.

YOU eat all you want of delicious foods—take no harmful drugs like thyroid—no nauseating "salts"; no back-breaking exercises—yet you lose excess fat so fast you can hardly believe the scales—you wear clothes sizes smaller as inches peel off bust, hips, limbs, neck, arms, and face—Oh! it's so wonderful—you'll never realize how thrilled you are going to be until you actually see what it does for you. You feel so peppy—and you look years younger. If you don't win love after this—you are just hopeless, girls.

Here's the recipe—and be sure to cut it out of the paper:—You just get yourself a big bottle of BonKora—enough for a month or six weeks. It never costs over a dollar—all druggists have it or can get it for you. Eat three square meals a day—four if you prefer—but cut out the no-good starches and fats and eat more of the strength and tonic foods that the directions in the package tell about.

This BonKora is different from every other treatment you ever heard of. Doctors tell us fat is 66% water anyhow and this treatment simply makes the fatty parts of your figure throw off enough of the heavy water to make you more nearly NORMAL in weight.

Now let me warn you—when you have reduced your weight and measurements to normal, be satisfied and quit taking BonKora, except occasionally as a conditioner. Don't let yourself become too thin.

BonKora is free from any harmful drugs, is not habit-forming and may be taken by anyone according to directions. Remember the name BONKORA—Beware of imitations! Big bottle of BonKora only 98c at all

N. Y. POLICE OPEN PROBE OF LINDY RANSOM FAILURE

New Jersey Grand Jury to Check Baby Hunt.

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—A sweeping police investigation of the ransom deal by which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was swindled of $50,000 was ordered today by Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney.

DR. JOHN F. CONDON.

Meanwhile Attorney General William A. Stevens of New Jersey let it be known in Trenton that he felt "in duty bound to go into the Lindbergh kidnaping" and intends to go before the grand jury, which convenes tomorrow morning, prepared to meet any demands that may arise for evidence in connection with the case.

Stevens said he will take with him blueprints and photographs of the Lindbergh home and said, "I shall tell them of the activities of police and the efforts to run down the kidnapers." He added, however, that he believed "there is nothing upon which the grand jury can act at this time."

Find Trace of Ransom Bill.

A third angle appeared with a report from Greenwich, Conn., that an attractive middle-aged woman had attempted to pay for some purchases in a bakery with one of the $20 ransom bills. The proprietor is said to have checked the number and said "Why, that's one of the Lindbergh bills." Whereupon the woman snatched it up, rushed out to a green town car, in which a man was waiting, and was whirled away.

Police sent out a message over the teletype describing the woman and car and asking she be seized for questioning. Doubt was expressed that it was possible for the bakery owner, a Mrs. De Corneille, to have picked out the number K B 03387539A from a list of 2,000 serial numbers of $20 bills, at a glance. The list is not classified by letters or numerically.

Police Question Condon.

Acting under Commissioner Mulrooney's orders, detectives from police headquarters early tonight questioned Dr. John F. Condon—the Jafsie of the want ad columns—who tossed the $50,000 bundle of currency over a fence to three men who were waiting inside St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx on Saturday night, April 2.

Col. Lindbergh and Al Reich, former heavyweight boxer, were waiting in the Lindbergh car less than a block away when the money was turned over to the mysterious trio which had promised the kidnaped baby would be returned eight hours later. Dr. Condon, however, was the only one who saw the three purported kidnapers.

Out of deference to the 72 year old Fordham university lecturer the police interrogation did not take place at the modest Condon home in the Bronx, where newspaper men have congregated ever since his connection with the ransom deal was revealed Sunday morning.

May Meet Lindbergh.

Instead he was allowed to go to an unannounced meeting place, where detectives went over the entire ransom negotiations. He was accompanied by Reich, who has been acting as his bodyguard and who once fought Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight.

Prior to the police interview the gray haired pedagogue had left his home with two suitcases in a car driven by his son-in-law, Ralph Hacker of Fort Lee, N. J. He returned about 3:30 without the suitcases and departed at once with Reich to submit to police questioning.

Although it was not definitely verified it was believed that Dr. Condon also was to meet Col. Breckinridge and Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf when it became known that the aviator's legal adviser and the chief of the state police had made a visit to New York.

Just how much Dr. Condon revealed to the police could not be learned. He still believes the men with whom he was dealing were acting in good faith, and he is afraid he may disclose something which will jeopardize the baby's life.

The three Norfolk, Va., negotiators stepped into the picture with a statement by the Rev. Dobson Peacock that the abductors with whom they have been dealing assert one of their number had deserted the gang. They believe it is this person to whom the ransom was paid.

He professed to see hope in the continued absence of John H. Curtis, chief of the trio, who left by navy plane Sunday, a few hours before the ransom hoax became known. The Rev. Peacock said he was "positive his prolonged absence means he again has established contact with the kidnapers."

Another clew blew up when the "noted character,"—the words are Col. Schwarzkopf's—questioned by the police was revealed today as Sylvan Ortlieb, a German-American in his middle thirties. Taken into custody Friday night at the home of his mother his identity was closely guarded until Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York announced it today, later adding that he had been cleared and released.

Considerable speculation was aroused this evening by the visit of a fingerprint expert of the state police at the Morrow home in Englewood. He remained in the house for an hour.

Col. Lindbergh is now convinced he was dealing with a double-crosser when he paid the ransom, but he believes that the man he paid double-crossed his own associates, the actual kidnapers, as well.

The colonel is now convinced that in the ranks of the kidnapers there was disagreement. One faction apparently wanted to raise the amount of the ransom from the original $50,000 stipulated. One part wanted to cash in at $50,000.

The result was that one man, or one faction, secretly made use of the code in their possession and communicated with Col. Lindbergh without the knowledge of the other kidnapers. They got the money and got away, thereby double-crossing Col Lindbergh and their own associates, who still have the baby.

Kidnaper "Crosses" Pals.

That is the trickery that Col. Lindbergh is now convinced was practiced upon him. Its successful operation obviously makes it harder than ever for the actual possessors of the baby to communicate with him, since he has no assurance that the same trick will not be attemped again.

Publication of the serial numbers of the ransom paid the supposed kidnapers was not the only means Col. Lindbergh has taken to apprehend the men who swindled him out of $50,000.

Using surgical plaster, a preparation which takes impressions even better than plaster of Paris, Lindbergh and his aides have obtained the footprints and handprints of the agents to whom the money was paid.

Like publication of the serial numbers, however, this step was not taken until Col. Lindbergh was positive that he was being bilked.

At Trenton, Gov. A. Harry Moore announced that the state of New Jersey was willing to offer a reward in addition to the one of $50,000 offered by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the New York Daily News, and the Detroit Mirror today if Col. Lindbergh so desired. The governor denied a report that Col. Schwartzkopf was to be displaced as the directing genius of the investigation.

Henry "Red" Johnson, sailor suitor of Betty Gow, in custody in Newark since March 6, was surrendered today by the Newark police to federal immigration officials.

$50,000 REWARD FOR BABY

All law enforcement authorities having failed thus far to secure the return of the Lindbergh baby to its parents and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh having been swindled out of $50,000, THE TRIBUNE, in conjunction with the New York News and Detroit Mirror, offers $50,000 reward for exclusive information which will enable THE TRIBUNE, or the News or the Detroit Mirror to restore the baby to its parents; the reward to be payable promptly after the safe return of the child.

1. This reward shall not be payable unless the child is delivered to a representative of THE TRIBUNE [or the New York News or the Detroit Mirror] and THE TRIBUNE or the New York News or the Detroit Mirror be able to return the baby safe to its parents on or before May 10, 1932, as a direct result of information given to either of said newspapers exclusively.

2. No employé of THE TRIBUNE, the New York News or Detroit Mirror is eligible for this reward; nor is any member of an employé's family eligible.

3. The rightful recipient or recipients of the reward shall be designated by the managing editors of THE TRIBUNE, the New York News, and the Detroit Mirror. A majority vote of the three judges is necessary and their decision shall be final and conclusive.

4. Only one reward of $50,000 will be paid and no person will be entitled to claim or receive such reward after one reward has been paid.

5. The judges above named shall also have the right to decide [by a majority vote] whether said reward of $50,000 shall be apportioned to more than one person, and in what amounts the same shall be apportioned, and their decision shall be final and conclusive.

6. Payment of the $50,000 will be made in any kind of currency or coin the kidnapers or their agents may specify. The child, alive and well and identified, must be in our custody before any payment is made. No attempt will be made or permitted at entrapment of the kidnapers or their agents [1], while the child is being delivered, or [2], while the money is paid over.

7. THE TRIBUNE and the New York News and the Detroit Mirror to themselves reserve the right to change, modify or add to the foregoing terms and conditions of the reward offer and to substitute any judge above named in the event they fail or are unable to act.

MAN SEIZED FOR $30,000 DEMAND IN KIDNAP THREAT

Ordered Money Sent John Doe, General Delivery.

Norfolk, Va., April 11.—[Special.]—Joseph Bullock, 24, an employé of the Emergency Fleet corporation, attached to the idle fleet in the James river, was arrested today on a charge of attempting to extort $30,000 from Samuel J. Jones, president of the Norfolk Machine Works and Foundry corporation.

Bullock is accused of having written several letters to Jones demanding $30,000, under threat of kidnaping Jones' 6 year old daughter, Ruth May.

Bullock demanded that the money be placed in an envelope and addressed to John Doe, care general delivery, Norfolk. Jones notified the police and addressed an envelope to John Doe as directed. The envelope contained waste paper.

Makes Death Threat.

Bullock was seen when he called for the letter but was not arrested. Later he mailed a second letter to Jones, in which he made a second threat and reprimanded the machine works man for having failed to send the money as requested.

"Your April joke nearly cost you your life," Jones was informed in the second communication. "There are two foreigners in with me in this, and they were mad when you didn't send the money. I had to do a lot of talking to them. We've been working on this case for a month. This is your last warning. Is your daughter worth $30,000 to you?"

Seized at Window.

Since receipt of the letters Jones had employed two guards at his home and another for himself.

The federal authorities had a hell signal in the general delivery department, and when the alleged extortionist called at the window for the money he was seized.

Bullock was booked on charges of attempted extortion and extortion. He will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow.

Secret Exchange of Notes Revealed.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 11. — The long awaited showdown between the Irish Free State and Great Britain over the oath of allegiance to the crown and the payment of land annuities was brought to a head today in the house of commons.

J. H. THOMAS. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, said in answer to a question that correspondence between President Eamon de Valera of the Free State and himself is now available as an official paper.

He declared the British government stood absolutely on the Anglo-Irish treaty.

Commons to Debate Issue.

George Lansbury, Labor leader, said he would like a chance to debate the Irish situation. Prime Minister MacDonald said that would be a good idea. A date was set later in the month and the matter was then dropped for the present.

A "white paper" containing all the correspondence was issued today. The first section of the white paper is a verbal statement by the Irish commissioner at London repudiating the oath on the ground that it is not mandatory in the treaty.

Then follows a note from Thomas insisting on the British view that the oath is an essential part of the treaty and raising the question of the land annuities, which at that juncture had not been mentioned by the Irish.

De Valera's reply to this note was a rhetorical document reciting the age old wrongs done Ireland. He repeated the charge that the treaty was forced on Ireland and recalled that Britain still holds Irish ports and has rights in the event of war which makes Irish neutrality a mockery.

De Valera insisted on the Free State's right to repudiate the oath and to withhold the land annuities, but said that any lawful claims by the British government will be met by Ireland, thus leaving the way open for negotiation or arbitration.

Thomas' final reply simply reiterates the British view on both questions.

Ireland Gets Latest Note.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, April 11.—The latest British note, reiterating the London government's stand that the oath of allegiance to the king must stand, was received here today with a complete absence of feeling. The attitude of J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, was anticipated. While on the surface a deadlock appears to have been reached, a high Irish official tonight said that the free state does not regard that the door has been closed to negotiations.

The Irish cabinet will meet tomorrow, but owing to the large agenda already arranged, the British note will not be considered until Friday. The delay indicates that the government sees no need for urgency.

Regard Oath as Dead.

Actually the oath is already regarded as nonexistent. Only a small proportion of the people here would move a finger to retain it.

The delay of the cabinet in considering the matter will probably mean that a bill for the elimination of the oath will be introduced in the dail when it meets on April 20 and before a reply is sent to London. This would embarrass negotiations, from the British viewpoint. The fact is that De Valera appears determined to put the bill through, irrespective of British disapproval or consequent action.

U. S. PROPOSES TO ABOLISH GAS, TANKS, BIG GUNS

Shows France How to Attain Security.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, April 11.—America played France at her own game today at the reopening of the world disarmament conference by pleading dramatically for security, only the United States told France how she could have it.

The American plan is that Europe and the rest of the world should simply abolish poison gas, movable "big berthas" and tanks, the aggressive land weapons which cause insecurity.

As it was based on the French thesis, Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson said his proposal is so important that it demands immediate consideration. Andre Tardieu, French premier, jumped to his feet, as angry as if the American had slapped his face, and said the proposal could not be considered separate from or before the French plan for an international league army.

Moves to Sidetrack Scheme.

The French plan covers everything that this new American scheme does and omits the abolition of bombing aircraft and cruisers over 10,000 tons and big submarines, Tardieu said. He moved to sidetrack the Gibson scheme to the steering committee.

Gibson declared his plan "would at the same time increase defense and decrease expense," since insecurity, which brings armaments, can be traced to the fear that forts and defending troops would be helpless against a sudden attack by heavy guns, gas, and tanks.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, supported the American plan. He said the British already favored abolition of heavy guns and gas, and that he could announce today that they favored prohibiting heavy tanks.

Too Much for Tardieu.

This apparent Anglo-American understanding was too much for Tardieu and he took the floor again. The American plan would mean no more than the rules of The Hague conference for the gentlemanly conduct of war, Tardieu said.

The Germans also, strangely enough, were cold to Gibson's scheme. Count Rudolf Nadolny, German delegate, feared it would divert attention from the central problem of bringing about new low levels for land, sea, and air armaments.

The stir which the American proposal created among political sections of the delegations was more than matched by the discussion among military experts here, who have insisted that the distinction drawn by Gibson between defensive and offensive armaments is laughable.

Pitchfork May Be Offensive.

"A pitchfork can be an offensive weapon if used for attack," was one succinct comment, "while a bombing plane is a defensive weapon if used to repel an invasion."

In the opinion of many of the military gentry, Gibson's argument was based on the false premise that "basically the demand for security is founded on the fear of invasion." The ambassador declared in his address that "it may well be asked why this feeling should be more acute today than in times past. Before technical progress reached its present proportions there was a certain inherent superiority in defense.

Refers to "New Weapons."

"Within the last generation, however, certain new weapons have been developed to a point where frontier defenses no longer constitute an adequate safeguard against invasion."

Gibson's contention that there was formerly "a certain inherent superiority in defense" over offense was most strongly disputed. The orthodox military viewpoint is that throughout history, whenever a new offensive weapon has been discovered a defense against it was shortly forthcoming, and vice versa, so that the ratio between the efficacy of defensive and offensive arms remained substantially unchanged.

"We saw the supposedly impregnable fortresses of Liege, Namurs, and Antwerp reduced in rapid succession by heavy mobile artillery," Gibson said. "I think we were justified in assuming that these forts would have acted as an effective deterrent to invasion. A new war would see frontier fortifications rapidly demolished by heavy mobile artillery."

SENATORS HEAR 'EXPERTS' CROON TAXATION BLUES

Farmers, Bankers and Brokers on Deck.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Agriculture, demanding surtaxes on the city fellow's wealth; insurance, crying out against any additional burdens; the stock exchange, protesting increased charges on its trading transactions, and social welfare, urging a tax on the rich rather than on the poor, today sent their spokesmen before the senate finance committee which is considering the revenue bill recently sent over from the house.

John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' union, had just finished echoing the plea of Chester Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm federation, for a surtax, up to 65 per cent, on wealth, and had launched into praise of high estate taxes, when Senator Reed [Rep., Pa.] interrupted to ask:

"Why do you wait until a man is dead? Why not redistribute while he's alive, and call it communism?"

Shouts Communist Threat.

Simpson beat the table and shouted.

"Listen to me, Senator Reed, I'm about as old as you, and I tell you we're going to have communism if we don't do something about the concentration of wealth—redistribution or revolution, that's the lesson of history."

Senator Reed wanted to know who gave Mr. Simpson authority for a statement that four per cent of the country have 80 per cent of the wealth.

"Senator Borah said that a year ago," Simpson replied.

"About this Borah statement inquired Senator Reed, dryly, "Is there any confirmatory evidence?"

The senators laughed.

Later, Senator Reed interrupted the testimony of John Hovey of Boston, member of the New York Stock exchange, who protested a proposed increase in taxes on all stock exchange transfers. Then Mr. Hovey went on to argue that there is no such a thing as bears raiding the market, because all short sales are so checked and recognized, and no such sale can be made beneath the figure of the last legitimate sale made.

Witnesses for insurance companies protested against the house action in lowering that portion of the insurance companies' reserve fund which is exempted from tax, from four per cent to 3½ per cent. They suggested that a compromise of 3¾ per cent be agreed to.

The Rev. John A. Ryan, appearing in behalf of the joint committee on unemployment, argued that the general taxation principle of "ability to pay" not only justified high income and insurance taxes, but condemned a sales tax.

More from Virgin Islands.

And before the hearing closed came Prof. Paul M. Pearson, governor of the Virgin islands, to ask that income tax rates down in the islands be changed to include an annual income of $600 for an unmarried person and $1,200 for a married person or head of a family.

McDUFFIE ASKS SHOWDOWN ON U. S. SALARY CUTS

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—A showdown on the question of whether the house will vote a salary cut for all government employes, including cabinet members and members of congress, will come this week if the rules committee accedes to the recommendations of Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] of the house economy committee.

Appearing before the committee late today, the Alabama representative recommended a special rule permitting three pay cutting amendments to be offered as riders to the legislative appropriation bill reported out today. He asserted that unless the rule was adopted by the house and an amendment providing slashes in federal salaries added to the legislative bill all chances for effecting economy through reducing the federal pay roll would be gone for this session of congress.

Chairman McDuffie revealed that his committee had decided on the plan of attaching a pay cut rider to the legislative bill in the belief that if a pay cut program were introduced in a separate bill it would create bedlam when acted on in the house and find its way into a senatorial pigeonhole if it succeeded in reaching the senate.

Committee Views Known.

While the house committee is still going through the motions of considering the Hoover proposal for creating a five day week for per diem federal employes and giving furloughs without pay to other government employes as a means of cutting the federal pay roll, it was evident from Chairman McDuffie's statement before the rules committee that his committee will reject it in favor of a straight 11 per cent slash in salaries after the first $1,000 has been deducted.

Mr. McDuffie told the committee today that one of the amendments to be introduced will call for a 11 per cent slash in all government salaries above $1,000, a program expected to result in a savings of $67,000,000.

Under the McDuffie pay cut plan, which he intends to push to a vote, the worker making $1,000 would lose nothing. The man making $1,500 would lose $55 on the excess $500, and the official making $10,000 would lose $990. He proposed that every official employe of the government earning over $1,000 take a cut.

Reductions Expected.

While the outlook for drastic reductions in cost of government apparently were not aided materially by the White House economy committee Saturday, there were indications today that some reductions in the appropriations bills would be effected. The senate finance committee reported out the interior bill with a 10 per cent cut as ordered, representing a saving of $5,000,000 if finally approved. In the house, the legislative bill providing funds for congress, the joint committee on printing, the botanic garden, the government printing office, and the library of congress was reported out with but little reduction from budget figures.

Bill to Come Soon.

Just how much good will come from the conference between President Hoover and Chairman McDuffie's committee last Saturday was problematical today. While a tentative agreement representing reductions of between 160 and 210 millions was announced, it developed today that actual harmony was lacking on the major economy plank—that of federal pay cuts. The committee plans to introduce legislation bearing out its recommendations within the next few days.

Acting on the instructions of the senate to reduce the house appropriation by 10 per cent the appropriations committee introduced a measure calling for the authorization of $45,398,672 as compared with $50,446,432 provided by the house bill.

Practically every bureau in the department of interior felt the force of the senate's demand for economy. the committee report showing the following reductions from the house appropriations:

Office of the secretary, a cut of $81,500; general land office, $75,000; bureau of Indian affairs, $1,062,900; bureau of reclamation, $2,674,860, including a cut of $2,000,000 from the appropriation for Boulder dam; geological survey, $98,500; office of education, $105,000; Alaska railroad, $50,000; national parks service, $500,000, and Howard university, $400,000.

Introduction of the revised bill in the senate brought forth a short appeal for economy from Minority Leader Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.].

"There is no escaping the fact that some reductions must be made," Senator Robinson told his colleagues. "And somebody has got to be responsible. There is no use in our saying the executive branch must make the cuts. We now are at the point where we've got to reduce government expenditures regardless of embarrassment to ourselves or to the heads of the government departments."

RED CROSS HEARS HOOVER ACCLAIM WORK OF MERCY

Physician Warns Against Health Peril.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—The nation's gratitude to the Red Cross for ministering to the victims of drought, storm and unemployment in time of need was expressed today by President Hoover.

Paying a surprise visit to the opening of the organization's annual convention, Mr. Hoover gave it lavish praise and said the Red Cross "daily demonstrates that fine sense of service and devotion which expresses the heart of the American people."

The President said in part:

"During the past year the Red Cross has carried a great load in the national burden. It is serving at the same time to give relief from drought, from flood, from storm, from unemployment. It daily demonstrates that fine sense of service and devotion which expresses the heart of the American people."

The delegates were told tonight by Dr. Linsly R. Williams, director of the New York Academy of Medicine, that communities must not curtail their sanitation and public health activities as a means of trimming budgetary expenditures, lest disease and sickness gain a foothold.

Lisping through an EMPTY tooth space

Don't do this 5 or 10 years from now. Start war on pyorrhea today

Don't get the idea that anyone is too young to think seriously about lost teeth. Youth does not own all the good teeth. The old are not necessarily toothless. But . . . sometimes it is the precautionary measures started very early in life that are the salvation of teeth.

Pyorrhea may start when you are young. (Pyorrhea is the actual cause of half the adult teeth which are lost.) Pyorrhea begins at the gum line and works downward toward the tooth sockets. Five or ten years may pass before you know you have it, but at middle age four out of every five people are victims of this insidious gum infection.

Don't lose your teeth. Take these two precautions: First, be sure not to forget the address of your dentist. Visit him twice a year. He is a real friend. Second, pick out a toothpaste that does more than polish your teeth. Forhan's Toothpaste is a thoroughly good cleanser—none better. But it takes care of the gums too, and that is mighty important, because you cannot have healthy teeth in unhealthy gums. Dr. R. J. Forhan worked 26 years as a pyorrhea specialist, and his exclusive formula cannot be obtained by the public except in Forhan's Toothpaste. Get ahead of pyorrhea. Prevention is the only way. Start today with Forhan's. All druggists.

HOOVER'S FRIEND CAUSES SENATE BEAR RAID QUIZ

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—That the senate investigation of the stock market was precipitated by President Hoover's friend, George Barr Baker, was disclosed at the first session of the inquiry today.

Mr. Baker, it transpired, telegraphed Senator Frederic C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.] last Friday that Wall street "bears" had begun a concerted raid on stocks that would make the following day a "black Saturday" in stock exchange history.

Senator Walcott immediately communicated the warning to President Hoover and to Senator Smith W. Brookhart, acting chairman of the senate banking and currency committee, with the result that an investigation was forthwith initiated by the committee.

Wholesale Short Selling.

The Baker telegram said that the bear raid was to be inaugurated with wholesale short selling of United States Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph, Public Service of New Jersey, and Consolidated Gas of New York.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange, told the committee that no evidence had been discovered, up to date, of such bear operations, either actual or contemplated. He produced records of the short interest in the market from last May to April 5, last, and said that similar records up to the close of trading last Saturday would be available next Friday for committee perusal. He said the only knowledge of a projected bear raid he had from any source was what Senator Walcott had telephoned him on Friday.

In an executive session later the committee decided not to make the Baker telegram public unless Mr. Baker consents. Mr. Baker is a close personal friend of President Hoover of long standing and is understood to be one of the chief sources of the President's impressions of what is going on in Wall street. Mr. Hoover long has been of the opinion that it is the short selling by bears that is preventing the stock market from reflecting the revival of prosperity which he expected recent economic legislation to produce.

Whitney Produces Statistics.

Mr. Whitney took sharp issue with such views. He said repeatedly that stock exchange rules prevent bear raids and that short sales are not responsible for market declines. He supported this claim with statistics, such as figures showing that when the market declined last fall at the time Great Britain went off the gold standard, the short interest instead of increasing was reduced 2 million shares.

Between 2,000 and 5,000 short sales had been investigated by the exchange accountants, Mr. Whitney said, and only two were found to be intended to demoralize the market. In one case the sale was prevented and in the other the exchange compelled the dissolution of the brokerage firm responsible for it.

From May 25 to Nov. 30, he added, only 5 per cent of the selling was by short speculators, the other 95 per cent being liquidation of stocks taken from safety deposit boxes.

Brookhart Talks of Swindle.

Senator Brookhart said he believed investors deliberately had been swindled by corporations selling their stocks far above intrinsic values.

"Suppose I buy a cow from a farmer and a few weeks or months later the cow develops tuberculosis," said Mr. Whitney. "Can I blame the farmer? The corporation is no more to blame than the farmer for the impairment of the value of its assets."

"Do you think I can cure this depression?"

Withdraw Gold from U. S.

Mr. Whitney said there has been vast stock liquidation as a result of many developments, among them the enormous withdrawals of gold from the country, the disclosure of the falsification of the value of the Kreuger assets, and of the proposal of a tax on stock exchange trading, "which has caused grave concern to the investors of the country."

Mr. Whitney said the government, by inducing patriotic citizens to invest in Liberty bonds, had aroused a new popular interest in securities investments which was in a large measure responsible for the speculative era.

And he was willing to agree with Democratic senators that certain public officials—meaning, of course, Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, Mr. Mellon, and others—had by their optimistic predictions helped the inflation swell to the bursting point.

Talk of Abolishing Poverty.

"There was talk, wasn't there," inquired Senator Cameron Morrison [Dem., N. C.], "about poverty being abolished?"

"Yes, that a new era was with us," Mr. Whitney acquiesced.

Senator Brookhart brought out the fact that Mr. Whitney's brother is a Morgan partner and that Mr. Whitney's firm had handled many orders for the stock of the United corporation.

"I also have some United corporation stock and my children have," he said. "We bought it at 50. It's now around 5."

Senator Brookhart wanted to know who had sent the capitalized value of United corporation from 105 millions to one billion 400 millions. Mr. Whitney knew only that there had been more buyers than sellers.

"We're brokers," he explained. "We don't buy and sell."

Send Money on Margins.

Brokers did lend stock and money to their margin customers, Mr. Whitney admitted, but he could not see, he told Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] that that made them responsible. There were all sorts of statements and prospectuses and statistics services available.

"If the people don't study these," said Mr. Whitney, "I don't believe the corporations and the brokerage fraternity are to blame."

"But what percentage of the public understands the real value of a stock?" demanded Senator Glass tartly.

"I have no idea, but the facts are before them," and Mr. Whitney shrugged.

Blaine Takes His Turn.

"Indulged in by a hundred and twenty million people," amended Mr. Whitney.

Senator John J. Blaine [Radical Republican, Wis.] took his turn, recalling how shares had been split; how the market had "been built"; how the public had first "nibbled, then bit, then swallowed the bait whole."

Mr. Whitney could not see this view of it. Again he repeated that everything had been legitimate. Again he declared:

"The information is there. If the public doesn't want to use it I can't understand why."

Must Be Liquid Market.

In the face of suggestions by Senator Frederick Steiwer [Rep., Ore.], who questioned the value of a liquid market when it continued to go down, Mr. Whitney insisted there must be a liquid market.

"If the market closed, as I believe it would have to if short selling were prohibited, it would freeze the five or six billions in loans for which banks hold securities as collateral," he said.

"If deflation is going to proceed wouldn't it be better to have the banks' assets frozen?" inquired Senator Steiwer.

Sees Chaos in Frozen Assets.

"If you are advocating a moratorium for the whole United States I might agree with you," was Mr. Whitney's rejoinder. "But to freeze the holdings of the banks would result in chaos."

Still the senators wanted to get at the causes of the bull market of two and a half years ago.

WAR OVER CASH BONUS PAYMENT OPENS IN HOUSE

Backers Make Prosperity Chief Plea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—The battle over immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus flared up in both sections of congress today as the house ways and means committee began hearings to determine whether the public should be asked to assume an additional two billion four hundred million dollar cash burden to enable world war veterans to cash their adjusted compensation certificates.

In beginning their offensive before the house committee, the advocates of legislation permitting veterans to cash in their bonus certificates at once disclosed that they hope to float the bonus law through congress as "a prosperity measure," rather than as simply a bill to advance veterans upwards of two billions in cash. Spokesmen for the bonus law asserted its passage would start the United States back toward prosperity by increasing money in circulation, boosting prices and reducing the value of the dollar.

Attacked from Three Sides.

Shortly after the bonus advocates had had their say the movement for full payment of the bonus was assailed in three quarters. Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], senate Democratic leader, issued a statement in which he asserted that payment of the adjusted compensation certificates would produce harmful results. Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], and Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.] also attacked the bonus laws.

All three denounced that section of the proposed bonus law which calls for inflation of the currency by the issuance of two billion dollars worth of United States certificates, this new money to be used in paying off the veterans. The idea as advanced by the sponsors of the bonus law, that the measure could be financed by the simple process of running the government printing presses until two billions of new currency had been issued, came in for special condemnation.

Oppose Currency Inflation.

"I do not favor the cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates," Senator Robinson said. "I am convinced that legislation appropriating more than two billion dollars for that purpose will produce harmful results that will more than offset the benefits to be anticipated. If, as some propose, currency or federal reserve notes may be issued in payment of adjusted service certificates, why all this confusion and controversy over increasing taxes to balance the budget, if it can be accomplished by the simple process of printing money."

Majority Leader Rainey termed the bonus measures uneconomical, unsound and destructive. He asserted that the effect of issuing new United States currency without any increase in the gold reserve back of this class of money would have the immediate effect of weakening the American financial position and of greatly reducing the value of the dollar.

Cuts Reserve from 45 to 6.7 Per Cent.

He read a statement showing that if two billion dollars worth of new United States treasury notes were issued and added to the 346 millions of such currency now in circulation, the gold back of this money would be reduced from 45 per cent to 6.7 per cent.

"The gold reserve against United States notes amounts to 156 million dollars against which there was in circulation on Feb. 29 this year 346 million dollars," Mr. Rainey said during the house ways and means committee hearing. "This is equivalent to 45 per cent coverage. If an additional amount of two billion dollars of treasury notes are issued, the coverage of gold would drop to 6.7 per cent and the dollar would be so inflated it would lose every value as an international trade medium.

"England has a coverage of about 35 per cent against its note issues and France has close to 70 per cent. If we would face the world with a dollar backed by 6.7 per cent gold we would have to be satisfied with having the dollar accepted at a value of about 20 cents."

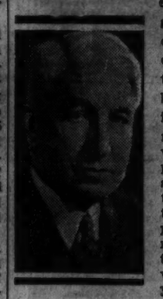
Urge Payments in Notes.

Three witnesses appeared before the house committee today in support of the Patman bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue treasury notes and use them in paying the soldiers' bonus. Representatives Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], William P. Connery Jr., and former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, all asserted passage of the bonus law would start the nation towards prosperity by putting money in circulation.

"Unless we can show the country," said Mr. Patman, first speaker, "that this bill will benefit the country and promote the general welfare, we are not entitled to win our fight. As a matter of fact, this country is suffering from a double gold standard. We have four billion in gold, according to treasury statements. That is enough for ten billion in currency."

Former Senator Owen admitted in answering questions put by Mr. Rainey, that if two billions of treasury notes were added to United States notes now in circulation the gold coverage would be reduced to 6.7 per cent.

A. of C. Seeks to Enlist Small Cities in War on Tax Burden



G. W. ROSSETTER.

The Chicago Association of Commerce is following up its efforts to enlist business organizations of the country in the campaign against the federal tax burden with an intensive movement directed at winning the support of the smaller cities and towns in the interior states to participate in the movement. Ninety-five letters were sent out yesterday to officials of local chambers of commerce.

"The business and professional interests of the middle west are thoroughly aroused over the necessity of reducing federal expenditures," said a letter signed by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago association. "Balancing the budget is only a beginning to this end, since there must be, as we see it, a most drastic curtailment in expenses of all departments and independent commissions."

Earlier last week letters urging support for the campaign were sent to key chambers of commerce in the larger cities in an effort to make the movement nation-wide.

How one Missouri county which found itself deeply in debt set about to clean house financially was explained in a recent talk by W. A. Masters of St. Joseph. The county in financial difficulties was Buchanan, in which St. Joseph is situated.

"We found something had to be done about high taxes and waste in public office and we set about doing it," Mr. Masters said. "Results were accomplished. Every city and every county can do the same thing. It is the system which has gradually grown up everywhere which is wrong."

Officials went on heedlessly spending the public's money until one day the county awoke to a $1,500,000 debt, Mr. Masters stated. With high taxes staring them in the face because of this burden, leading business and professional men of St. Joseph called a meeting at which a committee of six was chosen.

Then it was decided to appoint an expert to study the workings of each county department under the supervision of a member of the committee of six. The survey carried on disclosed that while there was no dishonesty, officials were exceedingly lax in their business methods, Mr. Masters said.

Mr. Masters stated that as a result of the survey the county was able to save $200,000 a year for the taxpayers.

16,000 JAM TWO COUNTY OFFICES TO PAY TAXES

Majority Are Owners of Small Properties.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

More than 16,000 property owners paid their taxes yesterday, according to an estimate of Edward R. McCabe of the county treasurer's office. Both the treasurer's main office in the county building and the branch office in the old Foreman Bank building, 30 North La Salle street, were jammed from about 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Mr. McCabe estimated that 12,000 were accommodated at the treasurer's office proper and more than 4,000 at the branch office. A glance at the lines of taxpayers showed that most of them were laboring people and the size of the bills indicated that nearly all were small property owners. Mr. McCabe estimated that more than $36,000,000 has now been paid, which indicated that about $2,000,000 was paid yesterday.

Few Outlying Agencies.

The failure of many small outlying banks deprived the taxpayers of subcollection agencies, which last year received more than half of the taxes paid before the penalty date. This has forced every one within the city to deal with the treasurer's office directly. Relatively few have been using the mails to pay their bills, so that the numbers which are now going to the treasurer's office are estimated to be three times normal.

An unusual feature of the taxpaying this year is the number who pay with currency. It is believed by the clerks of the treasurer's office that many of these persons have withdrawn their money from the banks and have been keeping it in safety deposit boxes or at home. The currency payments have added to the work of the receiving tellers so much that 30 were employed in the treasurer's office proper yesterday and 25 at the brach office.

Only about 130,000 bills have been paid, or about one-tenth of the total due by April 15. Both offices will be open today, although the treasurer's office is usually closed on a primary day, so that the property owners may be accommodated.

Some Lack the Cash.

Old time clerks of the office asserted yesterday that it is physically impossible to receive payment on the remaining tax bills in the three remaining days before April 15. But there are many who haven't the cash with which to pay, and they will not trouble the collector. Mayor Cermak announced again yesterday that the legislature will be asked to extend the penalty date for eight or ten days.

More inquiries regarding the use of tax anticipation warrants in the payment of taxes caused the treasurer to issue another circular on the subject. The current taxes, those for 1930, can be paid only with tax anticipation warrants for 1930, not with 1931 or 1929 warrants. A tax warrant of the county's corporate fund can be utilized for paying the taxes of the county's corporate tax levy. A tax warrant of the county highway fund can be used to pay only highway taxes, and a county tax warrant against its bond and interest fund can be used to pay only county bonds and interest, and so on. A city corporate warrant cannot be used to pay school taxes, nor can a sanitary district warrant be used to pay west park taxes.

Amount of Each Is Small.

The county corporate taxes are less than 5 per cent of the average tax bill of a property owner, and the county highway tax is about 2 per cent and the county bond and interest is about 1 per cent. To pay a property owner's taxes with tax warrants, he must have warrants for each tax levy in the proper percentage, which is extremely difficult for the small property owner.

Some of the suburban school districts have issued tax anticipation warrants for amounts as low as $12.50 each, yet scores of those warrants have been refused by the county collector because the part of the property owner's tax which must be given to schools is less than $12.50 for small properties.

County Tax Attorney Hayden Bell filed his brief and arguments yesterday with the state Supreme court in his appeal from County Judge Jarecki's decision holding the 1928 and 1929 tax assessments illegal.

TRIO DISPUTE THEIR "RESCUE" WITH "RESCUERS"

Whether three engineers of the city water department were saved from drowning yesterday in a tunnel 65 feet below the surface at Washburne and Blue Island avenues was still a matter of controversy last night between the engineers and the firemen who assisted them to the surface.

Battalion Chief Jerry Falvsey said that Capt. Walter Albers and Fireman William McDonald of truck No. 5 descended a deep manhole leading to the water tunnel, found the engineers up to their shoulders in water, and carried them a rope, by which they were assisted to the shaft opening and up the manhole.

"I've been in some tough spots, but I wouldn't want to be in the fix we found them in," declared Chief Falvey.

The three engineers, A. E. Gorman, H. H. Gerstein, and R. O. Waller, didn't think they had been rescued, however. They had gone into the tunnel, which was partly drained for repairs, at Jefferson and Van Buren streets, to make an inspection trip, they said. They waded through two or three feet of water remaining in the big tunnel to the manhole at Blue Island and Washburne avenues, and there an assistant, who had been following them on the surface, summoned the firemen to help them up the manhole with ladders, they asserted.

POLICE RECEIVE BULLETPROOF VESTS OF ARMOR

Policemen of the Wabash avenue station yesterday received eight bulletproof vests, purchased by subscriptions from all policemen assigned to the station. The garments, designed by Capt. Thomas Kilroy and Lieut. Andrew Barry, are said to give complete protection against body wounds. Elliott Wisbrod of Evanston is the maker of the vests, which are composed of thin armor plate.

Two policemen, Raymond Kelly and Robert Granger, were shot and killed in the district in a little more than a week. Each of the three touring squads of the station will have two of the vests. One will be kept in the station and the other will be kept in a patrol wagon. Capt. Kilroy said tests made of them showed that they would turn bullets.

From Isle of Pines

A carload of watermelons, the first consignment of the season, arrived in Chicago from the Isle of Pines, Cuba, yesterday over the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad. The melons were unloaded at 25th place and Canal street for distribution by Cohen and Gordon company, commission merchants, at 216 South Water street.

SCIENCE GROUP CELEBRATES ITS 75TH BIRTHDAY

The Chicago Academy of Sciences, the oldest cultural organization in the city, celebrated its 75th anniversary last night in the lecture hall of the institution at Clark and Center streets, Lincoln park. The annual address was given by Dr. W. D. MacMillan, professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago, who recently announced a new theory of the creation of the universe, envisioning a universe of millions of worlds, some of which may be peopled by a race of men far superior to that of the earth.

Before the address results of the annual election were announced. Dr. Henry C. Cowles was reëlected president, Francis R. Dickinson succeeded Dr. W. H. Haas, who has resigned, as a vice president; Dr. Edmund Andrews was reëlected a vice president, and Dr. Nathan S. Davis III. was reëlected secretary.

The academy was founded Jan. 13, 1857. Funds for the construction of the present building were donated by Matthew Laflin, philanthropist, in 1892. The academy is supported by its members, affiliated societies, and endowments.

Mrs. McPherson to Consider Sale of Angelus Temple

Los Angeles, Cal., April 11.—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, Los Angeles evangelist, said today any proposition to purchase Angelus temple, advanced by Paul Rader, another evangelist, would be considered carefully by herself and the temple board of directors.

JOSEPH LEITER, FINANCIER, DIES OF PNEUMONIA

to attempt the coup which had the world gasping for a time. He was backed by the vast financial resources of his father and he conceived the idea of buying most of the wheat in the world until he could name the price.

In April, 1897, Leiter began buying wheat at 73 cents a bushel. By the following spring he had purchased 18,000,000 bushels of cash wheat and 22,000,000 bushels of futures, and in May, 1898, he had forced the price up to $1.85, a new high at that time.

Philip D. Armour had sold 9,000,000 bushels to Leiter, and as the day approached for delivery he found himself with not a bushel in his grain elevators. He made overtures to the 29 year old speculator, who at that time could have sold out with profits of $4,000,000. But Leiter believed he could send the price much higher. He refused.

Armour, one of the daring financial spirits of the time, rushed a fleet of ice breaking tugs to Duluth and opened the channels to his big grain freighters. There was plenty of grain at the head of the lakes, and Armour was able to deliver not only the 9,000,000 bushels on delivery day but poured an additional 9,000,000 bushels into the Chicago market.

Corner Collapses.

The Leiter corner collapsed. All the paper profits were wiped away and $10,000,000 in Leiter cash went glimmering. Later, in a lawsuit in 1914, Leiter said that the deal and later financial battles had cost him $20,000,000 in a short time.

This failure did not make Levi Leiter lose confidence in his son. He was said to have assumed all of Joseph Leiter's obligations, with the exception of $2,000,000 which were later repaid by the son. Neither was the son discouraged. In the years following he was reported as being interested in a combine of Chicago street railways, in an attempt to form a milk trust here, and a meat trust in Canada. He founded the city of Zeigler, in the heart of the Leiter coal properties in lower Illinois.

Managed the Estate.

When his father died in 1904 he became trustee and manager of the estate. In 1908 he married Miss Juliette Williams of Washington, D. C. They have one son, Thomas. Leiter made two yachting trips around the world, visiting little known ports.

Leiter was always being sued and appearing in courts. The famous legal struggle in which he and his sister, Lady Hyde, were the chief combatants, began in 1923 when she filed suit to remove him as trustee, charging that he had mismanaged their father's estate to his own profit.

For eight years, the feud was at white heat. Leiter won before Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan, who declared that the estate had been properly managed and the Appellate court upheld this view. He was, however, ordered to pay large sums to the estate.

Last May, a compromise ended the squabble. Both Leiter and Lady Hyde resigned as trustees. The lawyers split $1,012,000 in legal fees.

Interested in Racing.

In late years, Leiter became interested in horse racing. His stable was said to represent an investment of half a million dollars.

Leiter always called Chicago his home although his visits here in late years were more of a business than a social nature. Last August he decided to spend more of his time here and leased the residence at 44 Banks street as a town house. The Leiters lived in Lake Forest last summer.

PARDONS GIVEN 217 BY GOVERNOR BILBO DECLARED ILLEGAL

Jackson, Miss., April 11.—(AP)—Pardons given 217 prisoners under the administration of Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo were declared illegal and void today by Attorney General Greek Rice. He described the convicts' release as nothing more than "escapes from the penitentiary."

The opinion was founded on a lengthy investigation which he said disclosed the pardons were made without compliance with legal requirements such as publication of pardon applications and other technicalities.

Twenty-four convicted of murder were recipients of his clemency. Others included 27 convicted of manslaughter, 37 found guilty of violating the prohibition laws, 12 for criminal assault, and 30 for grand larceny.

DOYLE'S WIDOW TELLS HOW HE 'FORESAW' WAR

LONDON, April 11. — (AP) — Lady Conan Doyle, widow of Sir Arthur, testified today in a libel suit brought by a woman Spiritualist against a newspaper that Sir Arthur knew the Sino-Japanese fighting was coming two years ago.

Before he died, Lady Conan Doyle said, Sir Arthur learned many things about the future from his spirit "guide."

She cited this as evidence that the activities of a medium are not the workings of the medium's subconscious mind but are motivated from the spirit world.

28 TOWNS JOIN IN DEMAND FOR CUBIC FOOT GAS

Twenty-eight Chicago suburbs and downstate towns have joined the Illinois Municipal league in a petition to have the Illinois commerce commission restore the cubic foot as the basis of measuring heating gas, instead of the British thermal unit measurement, authorized last fall.

Attorney Harry R. Booth, counsel for the league, expects to present the petition to the commerce commission within a few days. Hearings to fix a permanent rate for the mixed natural and manufactured gas now offered consumers by Illinois gas companies will be resumed before the commission on Thursday.

Municipalities joining in the petition are Oak Park, Wheaton, Park Ridge, Blue Island, Maywood, Geneva, Naperville, Palatine, Woodstock, Hillside, North Aurora, West Chicago, Lockport, Evergreen Park, Hazel Crest, Decatur, Ottawa, Streator, Pekin, Berkeley, Villa Park, Carpentersville, Dolton, Frankfort, St. Anne, Calumet Park, Spring Forest and Schiller Park.

As a precedent for their petition, the municipalities cite the fact that the Indiana and Missouri commerce commissioners recently ruled out the thermal unit as a basis of measurement on the grounds that it created friction between the companies and the consumers.

Fire Chief of Niles Center Free on Bond in Rum Case

Michael Schmitz, for 20 years chief of the fire department of Niles Center, was released in bonds of $1,500 by United States Commissioner Walker yesterday when he was arraigned on charges of violating the prohibition law. Schmitz, according to dry agents, admitted ownership of the Auto inn, 8024 Lincoln avenue, which was one of 19 places raided by agents on Saturday. A hearing on his case was set for April 25. Charges against John Bowman, bartender at the inn, will be heard at the same time. He was released in bonds of $1,000.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

CANBERRA, April 11.—The commonwealth government issued a new proclamation tonight, attaching all betting tax receipts at race courses and entertainment taxes in New South Wales and also the revenues of the state railways and tramways to meet the default of Premier Lang's government. Notices also were served on banks with headquarters in Sydney and Melbourne requiring them to pay to the commonwealth all monies received on New South Wales' account.

Premier Lang was not long in countering this action. He issued instructions that railway and tramway revenues, amounting to £220,000 [$1,600,000 on the gold basis] weekly, must not be handled by the banks. The railway revenue from country centers will be sent to Sydney under strong guard.

Lang, who is now acting as a dictator, has not called the cabinet of a Labor party meeting since the high court judgment confirming the commonwealth government's action in attaching monies of the New South Wales government. The state tramways and railways employés association today decided to stand solidly behand Lang. The railwaymen's president said that whenever a man is arrested for a breach of commonwealth law, another will be ready to replace him.

County Employes Paid for Half of December

County employés got their pay checks yesterday for the first two weeks in December, and at the same time pension checks were distributed to blind persons and those on the mothers' pension rolls for the last half of December. The payments, totaling $450,000, were made as a result of the recent purchase of $910,000 worth of county tax warrants by loop banks.

SEEK TO LOWER MILK PRICE BY PAY REDUCTION

Drivers Asked to Take a 20 Per Cent Cut.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Milk distributors of Chicago and suburbs yesterday paved the way for a reduction of one cent a quart and one cent a pint for bottled milk by asking milk wagon drivers to accept a flat wage of $40 a week for one year, beginning May first.

The dealers' offer was made in the third conference between a committee of seven distributors and seven representatives of the drivers' union at the Hotel La Salle. The five year contract which has guaranteed drivers a minimum wage of $50 a week, plus commissions and two weeks' vacations with pay, expires April 30.

Robert Fitchie, spokesman for the drivers, declared that the union would refuse to accept the 20 per cent wage cut. Negotiations between the employers and union will be resumed later in the week.

Want One Year Contract.

Dr. F. D. Walmsley, president of Borden's Farm Products company, acting as spokesman for the dealers, stated following yesterday's conference that no discussion had taken place following the dealers' offer. He explained that there would be no consideration of renewing the five year contract, since economic conditions made a one year contract imperative.

"The milk distributors stated at the opening of negotiations with the drivers' union that they would pass along to consumers any reduction in the wage scale," he said. "We estimate that the $40 per week is the least wage reduction possible to reduce both quart and pine bottles of milk one cent."

Milk is retailing in Chicago and the nearby cities at 12 cents a quart and 8 cents a pint. In two previous reductions of one cent a quart each on Jan. 1, 1931, and Jan. 1, 1932, farmers shouldered the largest part of the cut. No change has been made in retail prices on pints of milk since the raise from 7 to 8 cents per bottle on Dec. 1, 1922.

Although the Chicago butterfat prices on which dealers base what farmers are paid for cream have dropped from 53 cents a pound in December, 1922, to 19 cents on the present market, retail prices of cream in Chicago remain the same—16 cents a half pint for table cream and 21 cents a half pint for heavy whipping cream.

McHenry County Riot.

Dairy farmers in McHenry county who have been shipping milk to the Kraml dairy in Chicago at prices lower than those set by the Pure Milk association, which virtually controls all milk sold in the Chicago area, were the center of a riot near Union, Ill., yesterday.

Deputy Sheriff Harold Reese of Woodstock, called to the Thurow farm where irate dairymen from neighboring counties had protested the price cutting, was slugged by John Konecek, a farmer. Konecek's companion, Clarence Bonnel, was in turn struck over the head with the butt of a gun by Sheriff Leslie Edlinger, before the enraged farmers were separated. Thirty cans of milk had been dumped by the milk association members. Bonnel and Konecek were arrested and released on bonds of $2,000 each, with a hearing on charges of rioting against them set for April 19.

Don Geyer, manager of the milk association, and Ole Stalheim, a director, later appeared with the independent farmers in the office of State's Attorney A. V. Lumley. They reimbursed the farmers at $2 per hundred pounds for the dumped milk and reached an agremeent whereby the independent farmers' milk can be marketed in Chicago beginning this morning without further resistance.

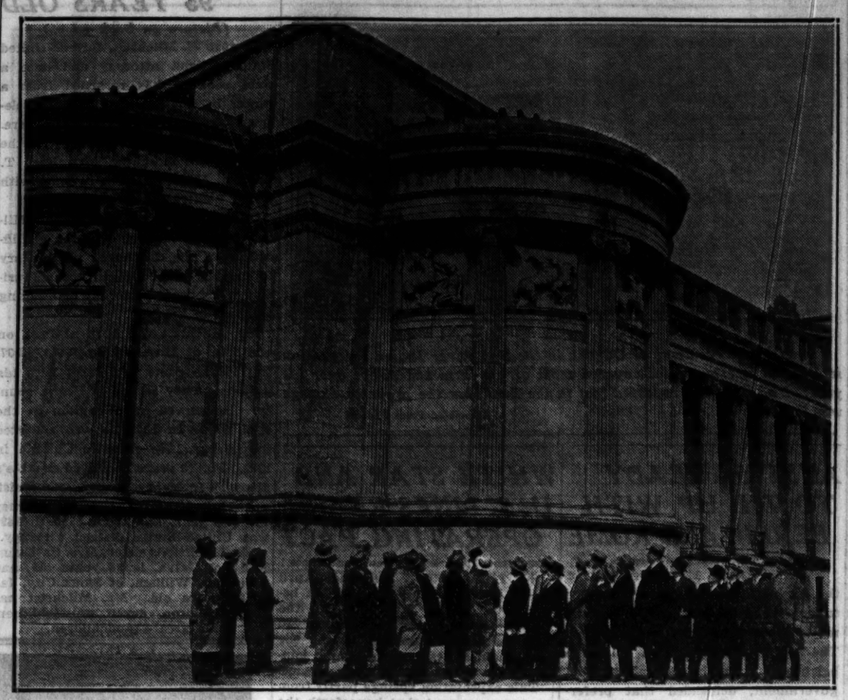
Engineers Inspect Museum in Jackson Park



Delegation from American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers' advisory committee for the Museum of Science and Industry looking at the carved stonework which has replaced the plaster which formerly lined the walls of the building in Jackson park, which was the Fine Arts building at the 1893 world's fair and has been renovated as the result of a gift made by Julius Rosenwald.

BLUEPRINTS GIVE EXPERTS A VIEW OF NEW MUSEUM

Group Inspects Work in Jackson Park.

Twenty expert geologists, mining engineers and metallurgists inspected the unfinished Museum of Science and Industry in the Fine Arts building in Jackson park yesterday. Where steel scaffolding and huge unfloored areas are now, the visitors envisioned coal and diamond mines in action, oil gushers, gushing oil, glaciers and icebergs in formation, and, near them, volcanoes scatterin gtheir boiling lava.

This vision was provided for the group by a morning spent over blue prints submitted for their approval. The experts, assigned by the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers to cooperate with the staff of the museum in the geology and mineral industries section, came from Washington, New York, Inspiration, Ariz.; Butte, Mont.; Golden, Colo., and elsewhere. They will complete their survey today.

Earth's Story in Miniature.

In the tentative plans for the museum 10 to 12 rooms are required to show the nature of the earth. In this geological show the visitor may make his own sand dunes himself with wind [from fans] and sand.

He may pull a lever or press a button and see in a "pressure box" in five minutes' time what the earth accomplishes in 3,000 years. This will be done by reproducing the various strata of the earth's interior in wax. Horizontal levers pressed toward each other will take the place of the horizontal pressures in the earth's interior.

As these forces of gravity work, an eruption of the surface takes place. In the space of a few minutes, mountains will form, lakes and oceans shift, deserts will add their treeless expanses to the earth's surface, and the changeless laws of nature will work inexorably, controlled by mechanical devices.

Coal Mine To Be Reproduced.

The first of the mines that will be viewed, when the museum is opened to the public on May 1, 1933, is a coal mine. There will be a coal tipple more than 80 feet high. The visitor will enter the elevator in the tipple and descend, the shaft walls moving upward swiftly, creating an illusion of depth and speed. The coal mine itself will be in the basement of the building. Much of it will be actual coal, but part will be in plaster resembling coal.

622,000 BUSHELS OF WHEAT ASKED FOR UNEMPLOYED

More than a billion and a quarter loaves of bread will be baked for the unemployed throughout the nation when consigned government wheat has been milled into the flour, according to American Red Cross officials last night.

William Baxter, in charge of the distribution of the 40 million bushels of wheat which congress voted to the Red Cross from federal farm board holdings, stated yesterday that applications from all parts of the country total about 622,000 barrels of flour. This would require about 2,875,000 bushels of wheat.

Although the Aurora Red Cross chapter has announced application for 14 carloads of flour, no other applications from the Chicago area have been reported. Chicago and Cook county relief organizations were reported yesterday as still having under consideration the possible use of the Red Cross wheat.

Illinois downstate communities had placed orders for 24,870 barrels of flour with the Red Cross up to April 7, according to Mr. Baxter.

"Ruthless Murder," Says the Prosecutor.

Dallas, Tex., April 11.—(AP)—A county grand jury investigation into the killing by two federal dry agents of Marion McGlothlin, a storekeeper, started here today.

L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton, the dry agents, are charged with murder and assault with intent to murder. The latter charge is based on the wounding of the storekeeper's wife. She was shot in the hand.

The McGlothlins were shot when the agents attempted to arrest Mr. and Mrs. Lester Cox at the little highway store. Mrs. McGlothlin said she and her husband were unaware of the agents' official identity and seized weapons in the belief a holdup was in progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox said they had negotiated with the agents for the sale of some whisky and meeting the officers at the store announced they were unable to obtain the liquor.

Calls It "Murder."

District Attorney William McCraw asserted after listening to these statements that "an honest, law abiding, peaceful citizen had been ruthlessly murdered." He announced that Smith and Heaton probably would testify tomorrow before the grand jury.

Claud B. Cooper, federal deputy prohibition administrator for this district, also appeared before the jury today, remaining in the room about thirty minutes.

Agents Still on the Job.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—Until evidence has been produced that they did not act in self-defense, two prohibition agents, accused of killing a man in Dallas, Tex., will continue as members of the federal enforcement staff.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, made this statement today. The agents are Laurence C. Smith and Nathaniel D. Heaton. The man fatally shot was M. C. McGlothlin.

"I don't know," Woodcock said, "whether the shooting was justified, but our deputy, Claud Cooper, and his men have made arrests in 1,312 cases without hurting anybody, and they have seized 537 automobiles. To arrest that many Texans without hurting anybody shows some restraint and skill.

"Nobody hates to see anybody hurt in enforcement more than I do, not only for sentimental but practical reasons, but a prohibition agent has as much right to protect himself as anybody."

Dry Agents Seize Beer at Old Hawthorne Hotel

Special prohibition agents led by Agent Eliot Ness yesterday seized a seven ton truck, loaded with 45 barrels of beer, in the rear of the Western hotel, 22d street and Cicero avenue, Cicero. The hotel, formerly the Hawthorne, was once Capone headquarters in the suburb. The driver of the truck, who escaped, was rolling the barrels into a store in the same building with the hotel, where the agents found that equipment for a bar was being installed.

HIGHEST COURT AGAIN UPHOLDS PRIVACY OF HOME

Can't Search with Mere Arrest Warrant.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—In a decision handed down today by Justice Pierce Butler, the United States Supreme court sought to throw a further safeguard around the American home against unlawful searches and seizures by prohibition agents.

PIERCE BUTLER.

The decision affirmed the Circuit court's decision that the prohibition agents who raided, on a mere arrest warrant, the New York premises of one Daniel M. Lefkowiz and Pauline Paris, used by them as headquarters for receiving bootleg liquor orders, and then took possession of all papers and documents in the room, were not legally justified in so doing.

The Supreme court holds the arrest of Lefkowiz was properly made, but says:

"There is nothing in the record to support the claim that at the time of the arrest the offense for which the warrant was issued or any other crime was being committed in the presence of the officers. The mere soliciting of orders from the room in connection with the other uses alleged in the complaint is not sufficient to constitute the maintenance of a nuisance thereon."

It calls the conduct of the agents "unrestrained."

Hasty Charges Unwise.

"The fourth amendment," Justice Butler points out, "forbids every search that is unreasonable and is construed liberally to safeguard the right of privacy. The authority of officers to search one's house or place of business contemporaneously with his lawful arrest therein upon a valid warrant of arrest, certainly 's not greater than that conferred by a search warrant issued upon adequate proof, and sufficiently describing the premises and the things to be sought.

"Indeed, the informed and deliberate determinations of magistrates empowered to issue warrants as to what searches and seizures are permissible under the court, are to be preferred over the hurried action of officers and others who may happen to make arrests. Security against unlawful searchers is more likely to be attained by resort to search warrants than by reliance upon the caution and sagacity of petty officers while acting under the excitement that attends the capture of persons accused of crime."

Aviation Notes

Lieut. George W. Goddard, director of photography of the Army Air Corps Technical school at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., is completing a series of tests this week on a new type lens with an adjustable focus. Lieut. Goddard has been making the tests in an Army Fairchild monoplane, Wasp powered, from Chicago airport. The military value of the lens is that small areas can be photographed in great detail while the plane is flying at high altitudes, and that by a single adjustment the lens also can be used to photograph large areas.

An additional through trip each way between Chicago and New York will be added to the air mail service, effective Friday, postoffice officials announced in Washington yesterday. The addition will provide five trips each way on week days. The newly scheduled planes will leave New York at 5 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 11:47 p. m., and leave Chicago at 4 p. m., arriving in New York at 11:24 p. m. United Air Lines is the mail contractor between Chicago and New York.

14 VOLCANOES IN ANDES POUR GAS; PERIL THOUSANDS

Towns Threatened with Asphyxiation; Beg Aid.

Descabezado, 12,300 feet, and Maulino. All these latter volcanoes are in Talca province.

Scientists, however, said many others of the dozens of active cones in the mountain range were probably also in eruption. As the eruptions went on underground rumbling noises added to the terror of the people.

Ashes Fall 600 Miles Away.

A west wind prevailed today and tons of the fine white ashes were picked up and whirled 600 miles across the continent to the east coast. The cities of Buenos Aires, Argentina, 500 miles to the east, and Montevideo, Uruguay, 600 miles away, reported that ashes fell there throughout the day.

A glare to the south last night gave the first warning of the coming general eruption. Such phenomena are common in Chile, but now the entire line of volcanoes seem to be in activity. Small tremors are felt at intervals. The noise resembles artillery in action far away.

Military planes flying over the region were unable to take photographs or make accurate observations due to the absolute darkness and the swirling fine ashes.

U. S. Attaché Flies Over Area.

One plane flew near Tinguiririca volcano, which is situated near San Fernando city. The latter place was in absolute darkness. There were no lights, the electric current having been cut.

This observation was made by Ralph Wooten, air attaché at the American embassy, who flew two hours over the region. He returned to Santiago at midday. The photos he had taken turned out to be only gray smears. Wooten said that from San Fernando to the south, atmospheric conditions resemble perpetual night.

At at altitude of 18,000 feet, Wooten said, the temperature dropped to 16 degrees below zero when the ashes cut off the heat of the midday sun. The ash haze was so thick that close observation was impossible, except for the sight of huge flaming craters at high altitudes, in which there occurred thunderous explosions.

The skies over the volcanoes are also filled with aerial explosions, which tinge the clouds with red. Lightning of a reddish violet hue flashes out in enormous zig-zag lines every five or ten seconds. Between flashes one hears the roar of thunder, which seems to be echoed and retransmitted by a continuous underground rumble.

Scientists Study Eruption.

Astronomers and volcanologists this afternoon also studied the eruptions from an airplane, which flew over the regions of the volcanic activities. The plane flew south from Santiago at an altitude of 12,000 feet and passed through successive zones of light and dark, Julio Bustos, chief of the El Salto observatory and one of the observers in the plane, said.

At some places, he said, it was pitch dark, notably in the vicinity of the cities of San Fernando, Curico and Talca, where big fires were lit at midday to show the flyers the route.

Opposite Curico the flyers turned eastward, approaching the Andes range where three different eruptions were seen from a great distance. The volcanoes expelled thick smoke and ashes which sometimes completely obscured the pilot's vision. At times balls of fire exploded in midair and sent showers of fragments to the ground.

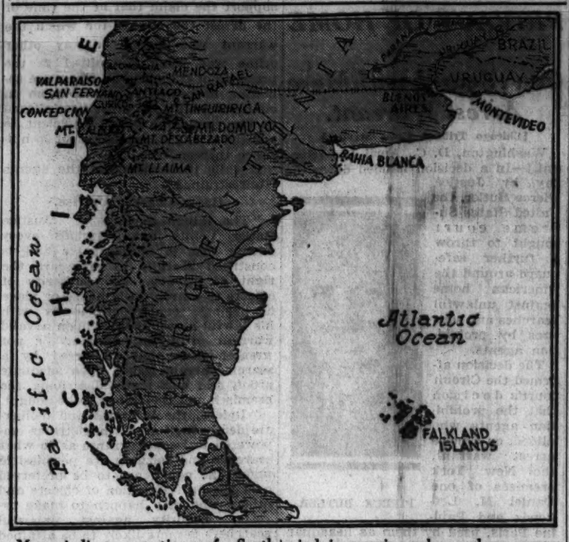
Air Becomes Unbreathable.

The atmosphere became so thickly charged with fine ashes near Talca that the air became unbreathable and the flyers were forced to return to Santiago. The volcanologists on their return examined samples of the ashes obtained from the air while on the flight. They were found to contain a volcanic glassy matter known as magnetite phroelene.

Dark vapors are slowly filling the valleys and moving northward. It is expected that Santiago and Valparaiso will be covered in a few hours in the same way as Buenos Airs, Mendoza, Montevideo and other cities beyond the Andes range.

The observatory here expressed the belief tonight that the eruptions are a northward continuation and development of the eruptions that started at Mount Llaima in 1927 and have persisted, although not with such violence, at that peak ever since. A communique said that earthquakes and volcanic activity seem to be definitely connected in Chile, although the exact nature of the link has not been absolutely defined.

SOUTH AMERICAN BACKBONE AFIRE



Map indicates section of South America threatened with asphyxiation after fourteen volcanoes in the Andes went into eruption. A strong west wind is carrying ashes and gas across the continent from Chile to the Atlantic coast of Argentina and Uruguay. Several Argentine towns have asked the government to rush oxygen tanks.

CUBA TO TRY 3 YOUTHS FOR PLOT TO KILL MACHADO

Denies They're Forbidden to See Lawyers.

HAVANA, Cuba, April 11.—(AP)—The government denied today reports brought up in the United States senate that three students awaiting military trial Thursday on charges of having violated Cuba's "explosives law" in a plot to assassinate President Gerardo Machado had not been permitted to see counsel.

Three attorneys for the youths said, however, that they had not been allowed to see their clients or other political prisoners, including 16 young women, held in the Isle of Pines prison.

Held for Three Months.

The accused trio—Ruben Leon, Ramon Valdes Daussa and Rafael Escalona—were arrested three months ago in a house in the suburb of Vedado by police acting on an anonymous tip. In the garage the raiders said they found an automobile loaded with dynamite and wired electrically to explode. In the house, they added, were arms and ammunition.

Admitting the youths had not been allowed to see friends and relatives "to prevent further plotting," a government spokesman confirmed for the first time reports that they would be tried for having plotted an attempt on the life of President Machado.

"Six times they placed the automobile in an effort to blow up the executive's car," he said, "but their efforts never succeeded."

The spokesman said the students also would be charged with having tossed the bomb that killed one person and wounded many in the Vibora Tennis club last fall. The charges were denied by the defense attorneys. The defense of the trio will be based, the attorneys said, on a contention that the law of Feb. 16 by which jurisdiction of the military courts was extended to include civilians was unconstitutional.

Charges Arouse Borah.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—The reported plight of three Cuban students held for trial in Cuba in a bombing plot was brought before the senate today by Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] with the assertion that if charges brought to him were true it was not a matter to which the United States could be indifferent.

Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, read an account of the case sent to him by the Cuban Patriotic league, which also had been sent to Secretary of State Stimson by the organization.

"RED SHIRT" MOB HALTS ELECTIONS NEAR PESHAWAR

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PESHAWAR, India, April 11.—"Red Shirts," operating on the northwest frontier picketed polling booths at Charsadda and Mardan with such violence and effect today that at Charsadda this evening only one vote had been recorded. A yelling mob stoned electoral officers and police, hurting many. Women carrying copies of the Koran held aloft joined the demonstration and climbed the roofs of adjacent buildings to urge the faithful to abstain from voting. The police charged and an Indian inspector received a knife wound.

Meanwhile another detachment of "Red Shirts" hurried to three bridges which span the Swat river between Charsadda and Shabkadar to intercept truckloads of Hindus, mainly of the trading and money-lending class, who were driving to Shabkadas to record votes in a minority constituency. As the trucks swung into view they leaped from the sides of the dusty road, shouting and brandishing cudgels. Occupants of the trucks were dragged into the road and beaten.

The "Red Shirts" are now moving to Mardan, where voting begins tomorrow morning. Their leaders boast they have a large force, including 2,000 women, to block the road through Kohat pass when Viceroy Lord Irwin drives through after a Peshawar visit Saturday.

VIENNA, April 11.—Distrustful of the big powers ever getting together to help her, Austria decided to take matters into her own hands today. The Agrarian party, which holds the balance of power in the anti-Socialist government, demanded that preferential treaties such as Premier Tardieu of France proposed, be drawn up immediately—only with Germany and Italy however—something which Tardieu did not propose.

"We cannot expect anything from France, let us tie up with Germany and Italy," the Agrarians told Chancellor Karl Buresch, basing their demands on recent secret visits of the Agrarian leader, Franz Winkler, minister of the interior, to Rome and Berlin. His return from Berlin last week revived rumors here that Germany and America are planning to revive their customs union which the world court and the league of nations torpedoed last year.

This time Italy is included and the three nations would defy the league as Japan did, if objections were raised, according to the report. Chancellor Buresch himself denied today that he intended negotiating preferential treaties with Germany and Italy, but added, "we must wait to see what happens in Geneva." The chancellor announced drastic decrees forbidding all luxury imports—hitting France and the United States particularly.

"If the nations protest, I will tell them that this is a life and death struggle with us and that, henceforth, we will import only the bare necessities of life," he said.

SUICIDE VERDICT IS RETURNED.

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at an inquest into the death of Henry Horwitz, 60 years old, said to have been worried over finances, who shot himself earlier in the day at his home, 5346 Cornell avenue.

WHITE STAR AND U. S. LINES REACH OPERATING PACT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SOUTHHAMPTON England, April 11.—A close working arrangement between the White Star line and the United States lines is expected to emerge before summer, with the Leviathan, Majestic and Olympic joining in a weekly trans-Atlantic service.

This expectation springs partly from an announcement that henceforth the White Star line will direct all the United States lines' operations at Southampton. The local office of the American organization has been closed, and beginning with the President Roosevelt's arrival Thursday enroute to New York the White Star line will dispatch all the United States lines' vessels.

It thus happens that the International Merchantile Marine will have the White Star's agency in the United States and the White Star will direct International Merchantile Marine vessels here.

At the same time it is officially stated that the Homeric not only will spend the summer cruising, but will be used several months after the summer season in short trips from Southampton to various beauty spots.

It is assumed here that all the vessels in the present re-shuffle including the Leviathan, Majestic and Olympic, will continue to fly their distinctive house flags.

Finland's Rush to Buy Liquor Exhausts Supply

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 11.—More than $150,000 worth of alcohol was sold to the public last week, the first after the passing of the prohibition law. Lines outside of government stores are increasing daily and it is feared that if new imports do not arrive soon the supply of alcohol will be exhausted.

Thomas E. Milchrist, former United States district attorney and once a state senator, has returned from a winter in Hot Springs, Ark., to celebrate his ninety-fifth birthday here. The celebration will be held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fred T. Bascom, 10861 Prospect avenue, with whom he lives.

On his return Saturday Mr. Milchrist began looking over the qualifications of the candidates preparatory to casting his ballot in today's primary. He spent yesterday transacting business in the loop.

Mr. Milchrist was born at Peel, on the Isle of Man, on April 13, 1837. In 1848 he came to Illinois with his parents. They settled in Peoria county. He served as a captain in the civil war. In 1868 he was admitted to the bar. He came to Chicago in 1889. For 18 years he served as state's attorney in Henry county, was assistant United States district attorney for one year, and from 1890 to 1894 was United States district attorney.

Mr. Milchrist's sister, Mrs. Catherine Kelly of Galva, is 93 years old, and a brother, William, of Sioux City, Ia., is 87 years old. Mr. Milchrist has three children, seven grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Relieves His Own Mother of Neuritis

She's Out of Bed and on Her Feet Every Day Now

So certain does Nurito banish sciatica, rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago and neuritis that the head of the syndicate which has purchased this German Specialist's prescription treats his own mother with it. Although 90 years old, she never feels a pain or ache since using it. Many who had despaired of ever getting relief have been overcome with joy after a few doses of Nurito. For not only has it stopped their suffering but it has done so without the use of narcotics or opiates.

If you're tired of using ineffective remedies, make this simple test: Go to Walgreen's and ask for Nurito. If the very first three doses do not stop your pain your money will be refunded without question. Don't wait a single unnecessary minute—go to

WE ARE KEEPING FAITH WITH THE AMERICAN PEOPLE by keeping our rates down

A few months ago we reduced our rates to the lowest point in our Chicago history. We see no reason at this time to increase these rates.

We are, in a sense, a public service institution and, as such, derive great satisfaction in continuing this definite contribution toward removing financial distress.

Our business owes its success, in a large degree, to the integrity and strength of the American family. Therefore, the more we can do for the American family, the stronger is our position.

By keeping our rates down, we are making it easier for the public to secure ready money, so that they can get out of debt and regain their purchasing power. And as purchasing power returns, business will improve, jobs will be more plentiful and unemployment will be relieved.

LOWEST RATES ever offered by us IN CHICAGO

on that part of loan between $100 and $300. Only 3% per month on that part less than $100. This means that in every case our rate is considerably less than authorized by Illinois law.

Now $1 equals $3 in buying protection against colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth washes. Hence it goes 3 times as far. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

EVERYBODY is trying to stretch the dollar—so here's a way to make your mouth wash dollar stretch as far as three. Change to the new discovery—Pepsodent Antiseptic. You see Pepsodent Antiseptic is three times as powerful as other leading mouth washes—by adding water you make it go three times as far—get three times as much for your money—get extra protection against sore throat colds—also against the social evil of unpleasant breath. When you pick your mouth antiseptic you have two leading kinds from which to choose. You have the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. Or you have Pepsodent Antiseptic that is powerful enough to be diluted and still be effective, yet is utterly safe when used full strength. Add two parts of water if you wish—it still kills germs in less than 10 seconds. You can't fool germs by diluting an old-type mouth wash that should be used full strength—but you can fool yourself. Be safe—be saving. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic. It remains effective when diluted. Health, pleasant breath and economy—three things that mean a lot to you.

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds, prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, it kills germs even when diluted with water!

CHINA APPEALS TO LEAGUE AGAIN AS PARLEY FAILS

Japs Refuse to Set Date for Evacuation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 11.—The Sino-Japanese peace conference, which has dragged through fifteen sessions since March 24, was indefinitely postponed today, despite efforts of Sir Miles W. Lampson, British minister, to effect a last minute compromise.

Sir Miles, acting under instructions from London, made what was described as an almost desperate effort to bring about a compromise prior to the meeting of the league of nations assembly committee scheduled at Geneva soon.

Sir Miles' efforts failed because the Japanese refused to set a definite date for withdrawal of their troops from the Shanghai area and because of China's refusal to sign any agreement unless the Japanese were willing to set such a date.

Demand League Interpretation.

Quo Tai-chi, vice foreign minister and chief Chinese delegate, and his associates did not attend today's session, claiming that they had failed to receive instructions from their government. It was learned, however, that the government has sent a full report on the situation to Geneva with a demand that the league interpret its original resolution specifying that the Japanese troops withdraw to within the international settlement of Shanghai.

The Japanese insist that it is impossible to withdraw their troops in accordance with a fixed schedule, since the withdrawal is contingent on local conditions as regards the safety of Japanese residents.

The Japanese also insist that insufficient space is available in the Hongkew section to quarter their entire force of 50,000 troops, 5,000 horses, several hundred pieces of heavy field artillery, dozens of tanks and armored cars and thousands of trucks and other war paraphernalia. It is necessary to quarter a considerable portion of their forces outside the settlement, they declare.

China Makes Concession.

China finally agreed to this proposal, but remained adamant on a definite time limit for the evacuation. Quo Tai-chi said tonight that China might be willing to agree to a Japanese withdrawal within two or three months, but that the nearest date the Japanese had mentioned was six months. The Chinese, therefore, decided that it is useless to continue the conversations here and passed the matter to the league, hoping that the league assembly will exert further pressure on the Japanese.

Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the 19th route army, who has been watching the conference from the Chinese front line positions about twenty miles west of Shanghai, declared:

"The insincere attitude of the Japanese army shows that China's only hope rests in continued resistance. Submission would lead China to inevitable ruin. There is no doubt that the Japanese are dilly-dallying in order to divert world attention from the Shanghai incident and allow time for the patriotic fervor of the Chinese people to cool and the morale of the Chinese troops to suffer."

Suspension of the peace negotiations leaves the situation exactly as it was when hostilities ceased. The Japanese have 50,000 troops holding a line thirty miles long west of Shanghai, stretching from Soochow creek to the Yangtze river. The Chinese have taken advantage of the lull to bring up reinforcements. It is now stated that the Chinese have 220,000 troops in their front lines and along the two railways connecting Shanghai and Nanking and Shanghai and Hangchow.

Skirmishing and minor clashes between Chinese and Japanese troops are almost daily occurrences. It is believed here that the Japanese government is anxious to liquidate the Shanghai adventure, which, with the Manchurian expedition, has already cost $125,000,000, but Japanese military authorities, and particularly hundreds of the younger officers, are unwilling to quit without obtaining a decisive victory over the Chinese troops, which are still in a belligerent mood.

League Envoys Hear New Charges.

PEIPING, China, April 11.—(AP)—Chang Hsueh-Liang, who was expelled from the governorship of Manchuria by Japan, told the league of nations investigating commission today that the real cause of the conflict between China and Japan is that China at last is arousing herself from her long political lethargy.

The young marshal was host to the commission at a luncheon in the old winter palace which is part of the forbidden city. He emphasized the Chinese contention that Japan has engaged in a long and bitter campaign against China's economic and social progress as well as against her approaching political unification.

Today the league commission received a telegram from the new government of Manchuria suggesting that the commission decline to bring Dr. Wellington Koo, the Chinese statesman, with it when it comes to Mukden. The telegram did not say that Dr. Koo would not be permitted to enter the country, but it did point out that he is persona non grata in Manchuria because of his connection with Chang Hsueh-Liang. The commissioners said they would take no notice of the telegram that Dr. Koo would go along to Mukden.

Japs Take Manchurian Town.

TOKIO, April 11.—(AP)—The Japanese military expedition at Chien-Tao, Manchuria, occupied the village of Ehrtaokou, west of Pait-Saokou, after a fierce battle with Chinese troops, in which three Japanese and 60 Chinese were killed, dispatches to the Rengo News agency today said. The Chinese burned two-thirds of the 400 houses in the town before the Japanese arrived, the dispatches said.

Dispatches from Harbin, Manchuria, said the Chinese had reoccupied Hailin and neighboring towns after the withdrawal of the Japanese. It was charged that the Chinese killed several Japanese and Chinese residents on their return.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 11.—(AP)—Five Arkansans, who were ejected from Kentucky yesterday while seeking to enter the coal fields to aid striking miners, today tentatively identified a newspaper photograph of Lee Fleenor as that of one of the men they charged with beating them in Harlan county.

Fleenor, a deputy sheriff of Harlan county, was accused of killing two miners last August and recently was indicted on murder charges. Sheriff J. H. Blair said tonight Fleenor had been dismissed two weeks ago, when more than eighty deputies were ousted, but since then he has been resworn.

Lucien Koch, 24, director of Commonwealth college at Mena, Ark., and leader of the ejected group, at first said Fleenor was the man who beat Sam Sandberg, 29, a Commonwealth student. Later Sandberg said that he was not certain Fleenor actually beat him, but that he saw him standing nearby holding a stick before the beating started.

Fail to Reach Fleenor.

Efforts to reach Fleenor by telephone in Harlan county tonight failed and Sheriff Blair said he was not certain Fleenor was in the county. Blair said he understood Fleenor was out of the state yesterday.

Meanwhile it was reported that four men and two women from Anderson, Ind., also had been escorted out of Harlan county by vigilantes Sunday. Sheriff Blair said Garry Weir and Joseph Schmidt, who identified themselves as representatives of a magazine published by the Church of God, interviewed him yesterday concerning conditions in the coal fields. Blair said he had not heard from them since.

Officers at Big Stone Gap, Va., and Cumberland Gap, Tenn., said they had not heard of ejection of any group besides the one from Arkansas.

Koch Withholds Reply.

Koch said tonight he had received a reply to his telegram to the American Civil Liberties Union in New York, but he would not announce its contents pending further communication. He said he had asked the union's advice before deciding upon the next move.

"I'd be willing to go back to Bell and Harlan counties if I were assured of protection," Koch said, "but unless we are assured protection it would not be reasonable for us to go back in the face of what took place."

Injured Showing Safety of Parachute Jumping

Hollywood, Cal., April 11.—[Special.]—Louis Babbs, 27 year old movie stunt man, was dangerously injured today while engaged in enacting a News-Reel scene intended to demonstrate the safety of parachute jumping from a plane. Babbs was standing in the cockpit of a stationary plane to show how to pull a rip cord when a gust of air from the propeller suddenly opened the folds of his chute and sent him headfirst through the air to land heavily 20 feet away.

YOUTH HELD AS ROBBER.

Claude Johnson, 19 years old, 4809 Kenmore avenue, who has been identified by three holdup victims, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 by Judge Thomas A. Green in the Town Hall police station yesterday on robbery charges.

HURLEY DOESN'T WANT CURTIS' JOB, HE TELLS FRIENDS

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley today took time out long enough to deny published reports that he is a candidate either for the Republican vice presidential nomination or the next chairman of the Republican National committee. While Mr. Hurley's friends are confident he would not refuse the vice presidential plum if offered to him under circumstances which would not offend Vice President Curtis, they deny he is seeking to undermine Mr. Curtis' claim to the nomination.

Recently, a number of members of the Republican National committee have spoken of Mr. Hurley as the ideal man for the Republican committee chairmanship when Senator Simeon D. Fess [O.] steps out at the close of the Republican convention at Chicago next June.

Another member of President Hoover's cabinet who has been persistently mentioned for chairmanship of the Republican national committee is Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. There are Republican leaders in Ohio who seem to be convinced Mr. Brown is to be called upon to manage the Hoover campaign.

2 SWAP WIVES, THEN ALL 4 GO ON HONEYMOON

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 11.—[Special.]—After years of friendship, two of this city's best known families, next door neighbors, swapped mates here yesterday and today all four are enjoying their honeymoon together.

The bridegrooms, Malcolm E. Parrott, 45, and George Minard Smith, 36, are fellow members of the Dutchess County Golf club and are prominent business men of the city.

The families have lived next door to each other on Ferris lane, in the exclusive residential sections for several years.

On Saturday Parrott and the first Mrs. Smith, together with Smith and the first Mrs. Parrott, obtained marriage licenses, from Town Clerk Catherine Hotaling in Sharon, Conn., where they were married the next day by the Rev. L. F. Travis, of Sharon M. E. church. Each couple acted as witnesses for the other at the ceremonies.

GALE IS LULLABY FOR INFANT BORN ON LONELY LIGHT

Boston, Mass., April 11.—[Special.]—The baby whose expected arrival caused a Hull physician to risk his life in several attempts to reach the mother on Boston light during a raging gale on April 1, was born today at 10:40 a. m., at the peak of another storm to Mrs. Richard C. Norwood, 27, wife of the assistant keeper of the light.

Dr. Walter H. Sturgis of Hull, whose efforts to reach the light 11 days ago were blocked by the storm, was called at 4:10 a. m., today by the expectant father. Although there was a stiff northeaster with rain, Dr. Sturgis was taken to the light in a power surfboat of the Stony Beach coast guard station.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, April 11.—The massacre of 1,000 Moldavian peasants by soviet troops when they attempted to flee from Russia, which was described in dispatches to THE TRIBUNE on March 29, was explained in a front page article today in the Moscow Pravda. The official organ of the soviet government alleged that the massacre was provoked by Rumanians and even insinuated that Rumanian troops fired upon the refugees. It also stated that the story of the massacre was sent abroad as a Rumanian plot to compromise Russia further in the eyes of the world.

Details of murders along the Rumanian frontier were glossed over in Pravda's article, which alleged that Rumanian agitators were working in soviet territory, stirring up the peasants against the government and organizing attempts to cross the frontier.

Uprising Follows Massacre.

Diplomats stationed at Moscow were informed that the massacre resulted in a serious uprising in the soviet Moldavian republic and that a part of the Kharkov garrison was sent to restore bolshevik authority.

A member of the German legation at Moscow today announced that since the first of the year 800 German engineers have left Russia, refusing to sign new contracts compelling them to work exclusively for rubles and to place themselves under soviet labor laws. German engineers were brought to Russia to replace Americans who left in 1931 and they in turn are now being replaced by Austrians. The Austrians are signing contracts to work in Russia for one year under the above terms.

Accompanied by his wife, Paul Neumann, a German chemical engineer, arrived in Riga today en route home after spending a year at the Biresniki fertilizer plant of the soviet chemical trust in the Perm district. Neumann, who supervised the plant which is obtaining nitrogen from the air by the Bosch-Haberschen method, said the soviets have already begun to convert their factory's production into poison gas.

Scorns New Contract.

When the soviets canceled his contract without notice and offered him another calling for payment in rubles, Neumann said he left. His previous contract called for the payment of $175 a month at a German bank. Besides, he received 500 rubles [about $250 par value in Russia. He reported that the ruble has a purchasing value of four cents at special stores maintained by soviets exclusively for foreign specialists, and that the prices at stores patronized by Russians are from 200 to 300 per cent higher.

Coincident with reports of American engineers of famine in other districts, Neumann said that in Perm the population is actually starving. He asserted that famine is inevitable in Russia this year and that hunger is already stalking soviet cities.

CAPT. PRENDERGAST MAKES A RAID TO TOP OFF HIS LUNCH

Capt. John Prendergast of the South State street police had lunch yesterday with his secretary, Jack Smith. On the way back to the station they saw two well dressed men ascending the stairs to the second floor at 1146 Wabash avenue.

"There's nothing like knowing your district," said the captain to his secretary. "Let's go up."

At the head of the stairs they met a smiling man, who asked, "Do you want to lay a bet?"

"Yes, I'll make a little bet," answered Capt. Prendergast. "I'll give you odds that you'll be up before Judge Jay A. Schiller Wednesday. I'm the captain of this district and my place is just across the alley—do you know it?"

The man, who lost his smile, identified himself at Phil Levy, 52 years old, 305 South Clark street. In the office, the captain found racing sheets. Levy insisted he had been open only 20 minutes.

DETROIT LEVIES $200 A YEAR TAX ON SPEAKEASIES

Detroit, Mich., April 11.—(AP)—The city council today voted a credit of $1,000,000 for the 1931-'33 budget to come partly from a license of $200 on each near beer saloon—some of the councilmen referred to them as "speakeasies."

Near beer saloons now are assessed a $1 regulatory fee and at police headquarters it was said that only 578 such license were issued last year, of which 55 have been renewed since April 1, when all expired. The assessor's office estimated there were 735 near beer saloons in the city.

Kenneth J. McCorron, president of the board of assessors, suggested the increase in license fees. The assessors, he explained, have difficulty fixing ownership of such places for assessment purposes. Operators hesitate to admit ownership, he explained, in fear such admissions will be used against them in the event of raids for prohibition law violations.

92 ARE CHARGED AS CONSPIRATORS IN MINE RIOTING

Terre Haute, Ind., April 11.—[Special.]—As a result of an inquiry into a riot at the Dixie Bee mine near Pimento last week, Charles C. Whitlock, prosecuting attorney, has filed affidavits against 92 persons, charging them with conspiracy. The affidavits are in three counts, one alleging violation of the mob law of the state, the second charging conspiracy to destroy property and life while disguised, and the third rioting.

Twenty men were arrested today, twelve at Sullivan, three at Terre Haute, and five at Pimento. Four were released on $2,500 bonds each. Several of the men probably will be charged with contempt of federal court. The Dixie Bee mine, scene of the disturbance, was operating as a cooperative under protection of a federal court injunction.

The men arrested include Fred Grier, Stanley Tureswiski, and James Caffee, Terre Haute, and Henry Everwine, Abe Berry, James Cutts, Edgar Payne, and Harry Payne, Pimento.

More than a dozen persons were injured, several seriously, by alleged union sympathizers seeking to prevent operation of the mine on a nonunion basis.

Mary Astor Announces Heir Expected in August

Hollywood, Cal., April 11.—[Special.]—Mary Astor, motion picture star, and her husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, today announced the expected birth of a child in August. Miss Astor married Dr. Thorpe secretly in Yuma last summer. Her first husband was Kenneth Hawks, film director, who was killed in an airplane collision.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A GLEAM OF HOPE.

Senator Smoot, as chairman of the finance committee, has issued a statement which is more than a little reassuring to the American people. He said:

"The American people and foreign countries may rest assured that the finance committee will report to the senate at the very earliest date a bill that will balance the American budget and the taxes necessary to accomplish this will be in such a form that will inflict the least burden on business and the people of our country."

If this statement indicates, as it seems to, a change of heart on the part of Mr. Smoot and his colleagues in the senate and house, the country is justified in the hope that we are on the road to recovery. There have been times in the past when Mr. Smoot was thought of rather as a tax spender than as a tax saver. His present position, indicating, as it no doubt does, the position of many of his associates, is therefore of more than casual interest.

It is only a step from Mr. Smoot's present position to acceptance of the basic fact that the only relief which congress can give is through a radical reduction in government outlay. It is impossible to add a billion dollars to the taxpayers' bill, as the house has done, and at the same time "inflict the least burden on business and the people," in Mr. Smoot's phrase. No matter how skillfully the tax bill is drawn, it must serve to withdraw from private individuals and corporations money which otherwise could be used in buying goods, in hiring men, in maintaining wage rates, and in capital expenditures.

Mr. Smoot's formula, if it is to be effective, must be translated into terms of economy rather than of new taxes. If that is done, his conversion will be of great, even epochal, importance to the country, for it will signalize the acceptance in Washington of the fact that budgets can be balanced as well by reducing costs as by increasing taxes.

How difficult it is for politicians to slash the appropriations is indicated by the limited accomplishment of the Hoover-congressional conferences on economies. After weeks of intensive demand for relief from all corners of the United States, congress and the executive finally put their heads together and worked out a program of savings. What they will amount to, if adopted, is still to be determined, but probably $200,000,000 is the most that can be expected under the present scheme. That sum is less than 5 per cent of the present annual cost of the federal government.

As a start that is something, but the taxpayers will not be content with so small a reduction. If Mr. Smoot's statement can be read as a pledge of much more substantial reductions the country has reason for satisfaction. Meanwhile, taxpayers will be well advised to continue their pressure for genuine relief unrelentingly.

IN DEFENSE OF AMERICANISM.

The demoralization wrought by the depression is having some results which may go a very long way in compensating for the material losses the nation has suffered. One of the most encouraging signs is the beginnings of organized revolt against the radicalism which in one guise or another attacks American principles and institutions. The astounding exhibition in the house of representatives no doubt crystallized in the minds of many citizens a sentiment of resentment which has been growing for some time against criticism of the American order. We must, of course, expect, in the severe ordeal through which the country is passing, profound discontent and a searching for remedies which is often ignorant and ill advised. These are days in which the quack and the demagogue thrive in an atmosphere of disillusionment and discouragement.

But, costly as are the mistakes we have all shared in making and are all paying for, they do not justify the criticism of American ways, of the American order, which we are hearing so much of at this time. Our misfortunes are not the result of following American principles but of abandoning them, and it is high time Americans who are disgusted with defeatism and are stanch in their American faith rallied to its defense.

A group of such Americans in Chicago, composed of men active in the business and civic life of the community, have evidently arrived at this conclusion and have incorporated an association known as Defenders of America. This organization, it is announced, will look especially to the schools and colleges as the first place to make their fight against subversive influences. The Defenders' offices are at 1 North La Salle street, but it is hoped the organization will spread throughout the country. It can make itself most effective by cooperating with the Legion and other organizations doing patriotic work and by acting as a stimulating and coördinating agency as well in its own behalf.

There is no doubt that Americanism—American ideas and customs, American principles and institutions—is being vigorously belabored so that the material troubles of the present have produced a curious mood of doubt and apology even among many Americans who are really loyal. This is especially unfair to youth, for youth is predisposed to change and novelty and lacks the discipline of experience which checks hasty condemnation and experiment. American youth is entitled to the intelligent and vigorous exposition of American institutions and principles. They are a birthright too precious to be frittered away for lack of reasoned defense.

FASCIST PROPOSALS.

The program of the Fascist grand council for the relief of a distracted world contains generalities from which few will dissent. They would be more impressive if they were not all subject to interpretation highly profitable to Premier Mussolini's Italy. We in America will readily agree, as we have for some years been aware, that the cause of the depression in Europe is more political and moral than economic. That is to say, the political ambitions and national self-interest which perverted statesmanship at Paris and brought forth the financial and economic monstrosities of the so-called peace treaties laid the foundations of the depression. It is politics, not economics, which has governed the enormous public expenditures and reckless borrowing which have brought all Europe to the brink of ruin. It is politics, rather than economics, which has destroyed economic coördination in Europe and strangled the forces of restoration in central and eastern Europe with obstructive barriers to trade. It was politics which tore apart the interdependent territories of central Europe.

But Italian politics was a leading factor in that immense and tragic folly. There was no power at the council board of Versailles more ruthless in its demands for political readjustments regardless of economic realities. Perhaps Sig. Mussolini repents for Italy and is ready to make the restorations of war loot necessary for readjustments essential to the peace and economic recovery of Europe. If so, his pronouncement is momentous. If not, it is a futile gesture which will deceive no one.

Settlement of the question of reparations is a large proposal, the realization of which every one, including the United States, devoutly wishes. But the ideal settlement which has held the forefront of European discussion has been a settlement at the sole expense of the United States. We have no doubt that Sig. Mussolini would favor prompt cancellation of reparations with the proviso that it should carry cancellation of international debts. This simple plan would cost Italy not one lira. It would be the best of bargains for Italy.

As for the proposals for armament reduction, we again observe that they in no way call for sacrifice on the part of Sig. Mussolini's country. They call for the abolition of those instruments of warfare which the limited resources of Italy can least afford. Their abolition would substantially increase her relative military and naval strength by limiting that of other powers with which Italy cannot compete in armament. That the American delegation seems to be falling in with this scheme of reduction is significant of the deterioration of our foreign policy and diplomacy under the present administration.

Indeed, the humanitarian zeal of the Fascist, as of the communist, governments, both of which seized and still maintain their power by the most ruthless force, will not light the fires of generous emulation in the American bosom. Sig. Mussolini has too recently left off rattling the saber to be very convincing as a bearer of the olive branch.

THE HERMIT STATE.

Five Arkansas collegians tried their luck in Kentucky, where the Columbia students failed, but only proved that in this particular east is east and so's the west. The Kentuckians not only ran them out but gave them a birching. New Yorkers can be suspected of smart aleckism when they enter rural regions to investigate the aborigines, but Arkansas is a good old fundamentalist state which itself taught a New York atheist the error of his ways. An Arkansas student will take it very bitterly to be bounced out of the hills by way of one of the Cumberland gaps.

When the one gallus boys refuse to receive even their brethren and treat them as brusquely as Theodore Dreiser, Waldo Frank, and the New Yorkers were treated it is apparent that Kentucky has gone sour on the human race. Thus far the visitors have been thrown out, but if repeated attempts to inquire into conditions get the hermit state's spirit really up the invaders will begin to disappear and fresh scalps will be hung in the courthouse.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Sun.]

Dean Hawkes' explanation of the expulsion from Columbia of Reed Harris, editor of the Spectator, clears up much of the confusion attendant upon the little tempest. If the dean had made this statement earlier there would have been no need for confusion; the public would not have been misled into a suspicion that somebody at Columbia had been trying to tamper with the freedom of the press.

It appears that Editor Harris printed certain articles reflecting on the management of a dining hall; that these were interpreted as charging graft; that he was asked to substantiate his statements; that he was unable or unwilling to do so; that he was fired out of the school in consequence. Many an editor in the cruel, noncollegiate world has been fired for less reason. If these are the facts the faculty was within its rights. It is unfortunate that this has led to twaddle about freedom of the press where no question of that freedom was involved. What this affair does involve is that responsibility of the press without which there can be no such thing as freedom.

A university is not obliged to permit its students to publish newspapers, but when it does consent it should give reasonable latitude. So long as the student editors do their work honestly and intelligently, and so long as that work in itself conforms to ordinary canons of decency and propriety, the faculty should not interfere. But no law or convention compels a college to guarantee to student editors immunity from editorial responsibility that noncollegiate editors would never dream of seeking. If the authorities believe the work is not being done with the requisite skill, zeal and fairness, it is their duty to intervene. If expulsions from the university are essential to the exercise of their disciplinary function, then there should be expulsions.

A DOLLAR A YEAR.

Mr. Hoover says he's willing to cut the President's salary down to a dollar a year. He's willing to work for that. It's a mighty fine idea, but suppose we all do that. Suppose everybody—that is, everybody that has a job—says that from now on all he will accept in his little pay envelope will be a dollar a year. If we only get a dollar a year how are we going to pay the installment on the radio, the auto, the electric refrigerator, the pneumatic sweeper, and Laura's sealskin coat? And what will the groceryman say when we order a half bushel of potatoes, two dozen eggs, a sack of flour, and a box of strawberries? "And your salary is a buck a year," the groceryman will say. "At that rate you won't be able to pay me for three years, and, besides that, you may be buying a beefsteak or some liver sausage over in the meat market. And you might blow yourself for a pair of shoes or a new suit. Then where would I get off? Nothin' doin'!" This thing of working for a dollar a year sounds mighty fine, but don't the rest of you birds get the habit. It doesn't look as though it would work out.

BARTERED.

She reached out grasping fingers for a little purse of gold,
Her lovely rosy cheeks and golden hair.

She spent her days in bowing to a host of tinsel names;
Because she thought to know them meant renown.
And all the while Love sat beside an empty hearth alone,
And finally rose, and wandered in the town.

Above her blackened hearth, she set them high;
And all day long she gloats upon the treasures she has won,
And never knows that life has passed her by.

MARJORIE F. W.

THE BASEBALL SEASON opens today, which will in a measure take our tear dimmed eyes away from congress as it thinks up more kinds of income tax for us to pay.

THE CONTINUATION of the world crisis, according to our old friend Nicholas Murray Butler, is due to the inefficiency of governments. Indeed, yes, to a certain extent, granted, but is it not also due in part to the habit of our great minds to utter piffle instead of wisdom?

IT BEATS THE DUTCH!

Sir: Your "feeling donsey" paragraph the other day piqued my curiosity—I knew I'd seen the word in print before. But Martha Shoemaker, in yesterday's Line, beat me to it. Her mention of the Pennsy Dutch recalled where I had come across the expression.

In Henry W. Shoemaker's "Thirteen Hundred Old Time Words," published by the Times Tribune Press, Altoona, Pa., in 1930, he lists the word thus:

DONSIE—Light headed; not feeling up to the mark; giddy.

Mr. Shoemaker's pamphlet, published by the Pennsylvania Folk-Lore society, is quite the quaintest thing I've run across. Many of the words are of Huguenot derivation, with not a few gypsy expressions showing their influence. It's a great "hech" or "hex" country, the mountains of Pennsylvania, and so, of course, the "black magic" of the gypsies has flourished there since the first ones came to America, back in New England days of witchcraft.

Among others are:

MUMPER—A gypsy thief, or beggar.

DON FARRAN.

AND WE WON'T HAVE to look any more at the pictures of the candidates in the act of telling the sovereign voters what great things they'll do if and when elected. Most of them look like a sick catfish trying to sing "Good Night, Sweetheart."

"RIVALS FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION Meet as Frank and Al."—Trib. Ah, that is indeed sweet, but they should go further; let them also be frank and earnest—you know, like the two comics in vaudeville: "Let's be frank and earnest with each other," "All right, I'll be Frank and you be Ernest."

If I were a bold gangster,
And with the gangsters stood,
I'd murder, kidnap, hijack, rob,
And park where'er I would.

I'd bribe and bully, bluff and beat,
And maim without a fear,
But I would pay my income tax

EOLUS.

AND NEXT WEEK is Be Kind to Animals week. We do trust that during that week at least Gov. Roosevelt tries to be just a little kinder to certain poor dumb animals and stops beating the Tammany tiger. The horrible howls of anguish of the poor beast as the governor belabors it savagely with a feather are simply agonizing.

COURAGE, MESSMATES! The primaries are today. The hours will be long, but late this afternoon the polls will close. Then it will all be over, the country will be saved or eternally damned, whichever way you want to look at it, and then we can all go back to sleep. R. H. L.

SNORING.

W. T. W. writes: Is the matter of snoring of enough importance to merit consideration? Is such a rich fount of facetiousness that, perhaps nothing should be done about it unless we should try to make them so snorty that they might improve to real "snootiness."

REPLY.

The sounds which excite you are caused by vibration of the soft palate. When this curtain is caught in cross currents it vibrates, causing the noises called snoring. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the mouth is partly open and some of the breath is traveling that route and some the other, and the palate hangs just where the two paths cross.

When a person lies flat on his back, gravity tends to drop the enlarged jaw and open the mouth, and the same force puts the curtain in the best position to be caught in the cross current. When the curtain falls across the nose channel in such a way as to stop it, the breathing ceases for a short time, to be resumed with a snort as the palate muscle contracts and pulls the curtain to one side. And that is enough, from the standpoint of physics.

The most important underlying factor in snoring is lack of room in the nasal air passages. In children the principal obstruction to the free flow of air through the nasal passage is enlarged adenoids. In adults the obstruction generally lies farther forward, being located within three inches of the outside. In the plan of growth, one of the later accessions is the face. The face of babyhood is very different from that of maturity. The principal structure grown on is the nose. As a rule, we do not grow as much nose as we need, or, if we do, not enough of it is set aside for air passage purposes. When repeated infections have caused the membranes and bones along the air routes to thicken up, insufficient room is left.

Your question is, does snoring harm the snorer? A brief answer and one that is reasonably near correct is—no. It disturbs his sleep somewhat, dries his mouth, and causes coated tongue and unpleasant breath. That is about the limit of the indictment.

Nevertheless, for one reason or another, people prefer not to snore. The various methods of prevention consist of operations to enlarge the nasal passages, procedures to hold the lips closed during deep sleep, and devices to make one sleep on the sides or front, rather than on the back. Procedures in each group have their advocates. They work sometimes. None, however, are wholly satisfactory.

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA.

Mrs. B. writes:

1. What is pernicious anemia?

2. What are the signs by which we may know it?

3. I awake at night sometimes with the feeling of a leaden weight in my back adove the waistline and below the shoulder blade in the right side. It seems as though I can't even move. What is this? My doctor thinks I imagine it.

4. Is a whisky cure injurious to the health, even in after years, and just what does it do?

REPLY.

1. Another name is primary anemia. It is an anemia in which the reduction in blood cells is greater than that in coloring matter. Its cause is not known.

2. The results of a blood test are far the best basis for a diagnosis of pernicious anemia. Other signs and symptoms are not very distinctive.

3. These symptoms have no relation to pernicious anemia. Your physician is probably right. At any rate, his opinion is better than my guess.

DAMAGE IN X-RAYS.

A. S. writes: If a man takes many X-rays in a short period, would it affect his health in any way?

REPLY.

X-ray is a most powerful measure. Any measure that is powerful for good is also powerful for harm. How much harm it does depends on such circumstances as the dosage, where given, and so forth.

PATCH BALDNESS.

V. W. S. writes: Is the disease of the head and beard, called alopecia areata, contagious?

REPLY.

Patch baldness may be due to any one of several causes. When due to ringworm it is catching; when to any one of several other causes it is not.

FLOATING SPECKS.

J. V. writes: What is the cause of floating specks before the eyes? Are they symptoms of disease? Is there any cure?

REPLY.

They are generally caused by floating solid particles in the liquids that fill the eyeball. At that, they do not differ, markedly, from the other contents of the eyeball. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred they are without significance. Level headed people ignore them. Neurasthenics and others given to examining their works too closely watch them and worry. In a few cases they signify trouble.

STEPS TO CITIZENSHIP.

Knoxville, Ill., April 3.—[Friend of the People.]—1. Please advise me how long it takes to get naturalization papers. 2. Does a man have to be 21 years of age to get them? C. W. B.

1. An alien may file a declaration of intention [first paper] at any time after arrival and the establishment of a home. He must, however, be five years in the United States before he may apply for final papers, at which time the declaration of intention must be at least two years old. A petition for citizenship must remain on file, before final action is taken thereon, at least ninety days. Thus, an alien may, if diligent, become a citizen in a little more than five years and three months after arrival in the United States. 2. A declaration of intention [first paper] may be filed at the age of 18 and a petition for citizenship at the age of 21. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director U. S. Department of Labor.

ADMINISTRATOR'S LIABILITY.

Vincennes, Ind., April 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I had some notes amounting to about $1,000 in my father-in-law's lock box. He was killed and there was an administrator appointed. This was in 1923. 1. I asked him what he had done with the notes, and he said he left them at my brother-in-law's house. Recently I asked about the notes and my brother-in-law said the administrator had not left them with him. The man who was appointed administrator can't produce the notes and he now says he didn't leave them where he told me. 2. Can the administrator be made to pay the amount of these notes or produce them? This took place in Illinois. A. B. L.

1. You do not state whether the probate estate has been closed nor the date of the loss of the notes. If you do not have the facts in any more detail than you have given us, your first step should be to investigate the facts.

2. In general, an administrator is liable for negligent loss of the assets of the estate. It may be the bondsmen are also liable. As above stated, we cannot advise further without having further facts.

MAY FORECLOSE.

Joliet, Ill., April 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the holder of gold bonds on which interest was due Jan. 1, but which remains unpaid. How long must I wait for the interest? J. P.

You are entitled to foreclose immediately upon default if that is what you mean to ask.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21.—Minister Denby cabled the state department that the Chinese government has appointed two peace commissioners, Chang Yin Huan and Fhao, who will proceed at once on their mission from Peking to the Japanese capital. Chang Yin Huan is a member of the Tsung Li Yamen, or Chinese imperial council. A few years ago he was Chinese minister to Washington and is reputed to be a thoroughly skilled diplomat in the form peculiar to oriental countries. Fhao is now acting governor of the rich Chinese province of Huan. There is some speculation here as to whether an armistice will be declared. Such a course is usual in the case of wars between civilized countries, but there is reason to believe that the Japanese are not disposed to trust the Chinese in the smallest degree.

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 23.—Gen. Kasura on Dec. 19 attacked Gen. Lung's position, seven miles west of Hai Cheng. The position was defended by 10,000 Chinese, who were routed after four assaults by the Japanese force consisting of four regiments of infantry and five batteries of artillery. The latter bombarded the Chinese, who had established themselves in the village of Kung Wassi. The infantry then charged through the Chinese lines three times. The Chinese loss was estimated at 500 killed or wounded and the Japanese also suffered severely.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Russia expects to have 500,000 soldiers in Manchuria by September and the Baltic fleet will sail for the war zone in July. The Russian military plans, according to a high authority, are of far greater magnitude than is generally believed. Gen. Kuropatkin is on an inspection tour of the outposts along the Yalu river and Gen. Rennenkamp's Cossack division, numbering 10,000 men, has arrived on the upper Yalu.

DENVER.—The civil and military authorities of Colorado have defied each other in connection with the miners' strike and a serious, if not a critical, situation has developed. Judge Theron Stevens of the District court at Ouray has declared Adjt. Gen. Sherman M. Bell and Capt. Bulkeley Wells to be in contempt of court for refusing to surrender to the court Charles H. Moyer, president of the miners' union. The officers, backed by Gov. Peabody, declare that if Sheriff Corbett gets the men he will have to thrash the entire state militia, for he holds the militia is not subject to writs of attachment or injunctions.

CHICAGO.—In the primaries yesterday Roger C. Sullivan's clan was swept into control of all branches of the Democratic party organization in Cook county and Illinois by a landslide vote. Sullivan carried 28 of the 35 Chicago wards in the fight for the control of the Cook county central committee and practically every precinct in the country districts. The complete vote in Chicago, however, shows former Mayor Harrison, Michael Zimmer, and Robert E. Burke won for delegates at large to the national convention.

CHICAGO.—In the Republican primaries Cook county factions smashed into a triple tie for control of the party machinery. Neither the city hall, Deneen nor Brundage factions won an actual majority of the county committee. City Clerk John Siman and City Treasurer Charles H. Sergel broke the Sherman slate and were elected delegates to the national Republican convention as Roosevelt partisans. The other fifty-six of the fifty eight delegates are undoubtedly for Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman for President. The Progressive party also elected delegates to its national convention. Its delegates at large are James R. Campbell of McLeansboro, Frank H. Funk of Bloomington, Harold L. Ickes of Chicago, and Raymond Robins of Chicago. Marion H. Drake and Anetta D. Fitch were elected district delegates from the First district.

COLUMBUS, N. M.—[By airplane from Gen. Pershing's camp at the front].—Although there is a general Mexican belief here that Francisco Villa is dead, Gen. Pershing says he will believe the report only when he finds the body of the bandit and it is identified beyond question of doubt.

PARIS.—There was a cessation of the German infantry attacks to the west of the Meuse, although the bombardment of the French lines between Le Mort Homme and Cumieres continued, according to the war office. The Germans were driven out of the French trenches which they had taken between Douaumont and Vaux.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM IN ITALY.

Chicago, April 7.—In THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of April 6, I read of a suggestion made by Dr. A. J. Carlson urging the American scientists to boycott the international congress of physiology in Rome next summer as a protest against Premier Mussolini's order that the Italian university professors must take the oath of allegiance to the Fascist régime, and describing the order for the oath as a "defiant attack on academic freedom."

I wish to state that in the kingdom of Italy the universities are supported and controlled by the state [that is why they are called royal universities] and the professors of the royal universities are, therefore, officials of the government just as the officers in the army or in the navy or in aviation or in the foreign service or in any other government branch.

Only a few universities are self-supporting and independent of the state. The professors of the royal universities, in their capacity as public government officers, have always been requested to take the oath of loyalty to the king and to the law of the country. This has been going on since the days of the unification of Italy.

After the event of the Fascist régime, which, as you know, is not a party, but the union of all the parties, and a new conception of a new form of government, the oath was changed for every officer of the government to include an expression of loyalty to the Fascist régime.

Translation of the oath as it has been modified by the Fascist régime is:

"I swear to be true to the king and to his royal successors, and to the Fascist régime, and to loyally comply with the constitution and the other laws of the state, and to fulfill the teaching functions and to comply with all the academic duties with the purpose of forming active, wholesome and devoted citizens to the motherland and to the Fascist régime.

"I swear that I do not belong nor will I belong to organizations or parties whose activities will not be in conformity with my duties to my office."

I may add that the professors teaching in the independent nongovernment universities have never been asked to take the oath.

Permit me to add that every officer of the government or of public administration in this great republic is requested to take the oath . . . "that he will support and defend the constitution of the United States against their enemies, foreign and domestic; that he will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that he takes this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that he will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office . . . so help him God."

I may conclude by stating that in Italy there are 1,225 royal professors and that out of them 1,213 took the oath and only 12 refused to swear allegiance and loyalty to the government of their country. G. CASTRUCCIO.
Royal Italian Consul General.

WHERE TO BEGIN.

Chicago, April 2.—I read with unusual interest your editorial in the morning paper on the tax bill. Taxes are a burden from whatever source they may be drawn. They come from the people that can find the money with which to pay them and finally through the shifting processes they fall on those who usually pay. For that reason I am not so much interested in the source from which the taxes may come, but I want to particularly commend THE TRIBUNE for the campaign it has started to reduce public expenditures and to make this increased burden of taxation unnecessary.

The agricultural departments of the nation and various states, with their network of extension workers extending down to the counties, constitute an army of jobholders who frighten the timid politician. I am glad to note that THE TRIBUNE has become specific and is indicating where to begin. If this campaign started by THE TRIBUNE is taken up by the press generally and is persistently prosecuted a saving of a quarter of a billion dollars can be made in the agricultural departments alone without injury to the public and to the distinct advantage of those who farm.

EMANCIPATED.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 5.—I am off radio. The end came the other night when, dog tired from the daily grind, I twisted the dials and drew the advertising patter of a firm of cheerio undertakers!

But, truth to tell, I was already fed up with the inanities of broadcasting and ready to quit. I do not feel that, for the sake of mangled fragments of opera, an occasional symphony, or a public address which I can read a few hours later over my morning coffee, I can longer stomach the constant society of high pressure salesmen. I believe, as did my English forefathers, that a man's house is his castle and I decline to allow cheeky fellows on whom I would shut my doors to steal into my home by way of a box of vacuum tubes.

Henceforth the merchants who get my patronage will be those who use other channels than the ether to advertise their wares. I claim the privilege of reading or ignoring advertising matter as I see fit. I intend, by my own fireside at least, to choose my company. No agents or peddlers need apply. I shall not receive crooners, saxophone players, scothsayers, cheapjack masters of ceremony or any of the other leather lunged hucksters of the air. My house shall no longer be a market place. I propose to have peace. I have sold my radio.

A LETTER TO A CONGRESSMAN.

Chicago, April 7.—Following is a letter which I am mailing to the Hon. James T. Igoe, representative of the Sixth congressional district of the state of Illinois:

"The morning's mail brings to me your speech in congress of Feb. 19, 1932, entitled 'The High Cost of Prohibition to the Taxpayer.' While I am in hearty accord with your views on prohibition and with your plea for economy in balancing the federal budget in connection therewith, I cannot harmonize with these protestations for economy your advocacy of the soldiers' bonus, and I cannot help but believe that your burst of oratory on behalf of economy in connection with prohibition is anything but pure hypocrisy.

"The country today is laboring and suffering under federal, state and local taxation. Truly the taxpayer is under the hand of the Egyptian and there is no Moses to lead him forth.

"Congress, state legislature, and local taxing bodies apply the lash of higher and higher taxes, and then arise to prate of economy.

"You, honorable sir, view with alarm a three billion dollar deficit and then strive to burden the taxpayer with an addition to Edward Hines hospital, costing two million dollars, and soldiers' bonus of one billion dollars.

"You say that unless the budget is balanced it is about time we handed the country back to the Indian. I say the Indian has the country. The marauding congressman, the thieving state representative, the senatorial 'sons of wild jackasses' and all their tribes of red faced politicians and office holders have the country and are ravishing it to their hearts' content.

"Perhaps it will be different next election." WALTER M. FORBES.

FOREST PRESERVE PURCHASES.

Chicago, April 7.—THE TRIBUNE of April 7 has an editorial entitled "Trees for the Taxpayers." I desire to make further comment. I claim to know the value of land. Nearly all tracts purchased to form the forest preserve were not even good farm land and were not worth more than $100 per acre. Most of it cost the taxpayers $3,000 per acre. Why doesn't somebody wake up?
W. N. F.

A TRIFLE LATE.

Chicago, April 5.—Uncle Sam has finally figured up just how much butter and other dairy products were manufactured by our agrarians for the year 1930. Uncle Sam arrived at these figures Dec. 23, 1931, but he was unable to put them before the public until today. It might have been of considerable interest in January, 1931, but at present we are more interested in when the depression is going to end than the amount of butter manufactured in 1930. Why not cut off some of these expenses?

SUPREME COURT HOLDS REMAP IN 3 STATES INVALID

New York, Minnesota and Missouri Cases Decided

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—Three states were told today by the Supreme court that their reapportionment laws were invalid because they lacked their governors' approval.

New York, Minnesota, and Missouri had passed statutes reshaping their congressional districts, but the decision threw the tangle back where it was when they began.

The question presented in all three was the same—whether the legislature had the right to redistrict without the governor's signature on the legislation—as is required where ordinary statutes are concerned, unless passed over his veto.

Cardozo Takes No Part.

Justice Cardozo took no part in the case, as he had participated in the New York Supreme court's decision, but the other eight justices apparently were unanimous in their agreement that redistricting was law making and that the governor has an important place in it.

Immediately there arose the prospect that every candidate for the house in Minnesota and Missouri would have to run in the state at large unless their legislatures passed a new and valid redistricting law in the brief time before election. Chief Justice Hughes said so in his opinion.

Both these states lost house members under the reapportionment law approved by congress in 1929.

Missouri Loses Three.

Minnesota's representation was reduced from 10 to 9 and Missouri from 16 to 13. New York, however, gained two, its representatives being increased to 45.

New York's two additional representatives will have to run in the state at large, Chief Justice Hughes said, unless that state is redistricted before the November elections.

In his lengthy opinion, Chief Justice Hughes said "the primary question" was whether the power conferred by the constitution upon the states of prescribing the time, place and manner of choosing their representatives to the national legislature was that "of making laws."

Involves Lawmaking.

"The subject matter is the 'time, place and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives,'" he said. "It cannot be doubted that the comprehensive words embrace authority to provide a complete code for congressional elections . . . in short, to enact the numerous requirements as to the procedure and safeguards which experience shows are necessary in order to enforce the fundamental right involved. . . . All this . . . involves lawmaking in its essential features and most important aspect."

Minnesota's law was vetoed by Gov. Olson but the state Supreme court decided it was valid nevertheless. In a similar situation in Missouri, that state's highest courts took the view that the Supreme court did today.

The New York legislature passed a resolution which theoretically did not require Gov. Roosevelt's signature, but the state courts held it invalid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THOROLD, Ont., April 11.—THE TRIBUNE'S paper fleet opened the 1932 navigation season through the Welland canal today when the Thorold, the New York News, and The Chicago Tribune, owned by The Tribune company, left here at 9:10 a. m. [Chicago time] in a race to Chicago.

The three ships passed Port Colborne, where the last locks in the canal are located, and began their 800 mile race across Lakes Erie, Huron, and Michigan at 11:30 a. m. A fourth ship, the Bennington, chartered from D. Sullivan & Co., left the mill of the Ontario Paper company, a Tribune subsidiary, at 1 p. m., with a cargo of paper consigned to THE TRIBUNE. Capt. Fred Mastine, master of the Bennington, before his departure, telegraphed H. A. Laird, traffic manager of THE TRIBUNE, that he is confident he will pass at least one of THE TRIBUNE ships before they reach Chicago.

Thorold Has Largest Cargo.

The Thorold, a motorship especially designed for carrying paper, has 3,200 tons in her hold. She is commanded by Capt. George Ferguson, a veteran of the great lakes. Capt. B. J. Brown is carrying 1,325 tons in the Chicago Tribune. Capt. F. V. McIntyre, who won last year's race to Chicago against the Thorold, has 1,327 tons in the New York News, and the Bennington has a loan of 1,501 tons.

The vessels are carrying a total of 14,706,000 pounds of print paper, but it will all be consumed by THE TRIBUNE'S presses in only about three and a half weeks. The newspaper uses 2,000 tons a week.

The ships are expected to reach Chicago on Friday afternoon or Saturday morning. The two big cranes for handling paper at THE TRIBUNE'S warehouse near the mouth of the Chicago river were rebuilt during the winter, and will be able to empty the holds of the New York News and The Tribune in six hours each and that of the larger vessel, the Thorold, in thirteen hours.

The two steamers will load with grain for Montreal, and are expected to finish their trip to that port by April 25. By that time the ice will be out of Shelter bay, several hundred miles northeast of Quebec, and the ships will be able to go down the St. Lawrence river and begin their regular seasonal task of carrying pulpwood from THE TRIBUNE'S forests there to the Thorold mills. The Thorold will continue to carry paper from the mill to Chicago. THE TRIBUNE'S paper comes to Chicago by water during nine months of the year.

The regular navigation season on the great lakes and the Welland canal does not open until Friday, but special arrangements were made with canal authorities to have bridge and lock tenders on hand today to send the paper fleet through.

ECUADOR'S ARMY QUELLS REVOLT; LEADERS JAILED

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, April 11.—(AP)—The rebellion against the government was put down today when government troops, after two hours of fighting, captured all of the men who precipitated the uprising last week by seizing Ecuador's two ship navy and taking over the fort at Punta Piedra.

Col. Ricardo Astudillo, chief of the government forces, returning from the battle, said federal troops boarded a gunboat held by the rebels. They found four of the mutineers dead and a number wounded, he said. Commandante Ildefonso Mendoza, rebel leader, was taken prisoner along with his followers and will be brought to Guayaquil tomorrow.

Col. Astudillo said his loyal troops encountered the rebels near Punta Arenas and engaged them in battle, ending the revolution victoriously by capturing the gunboat. The rebels previously had been driven out of Punta Piedra and fled aboard the gunboats Tarqui and Cotopaxi, first to the island of Puna, in the gulf of Guayaquil, from which point they controlled the port, then toward Fort Bolivar.

Beekeeper Who Didn't Fear His Bees Dies of Stings

Middletown, N. Y., April 11.—(AP)—John Reamer, veteran Unionville bee keeper, who always worked unprotected about his hives, because he was not afraid of bees, died today as a result of having been severely stung about a year ago. For some time he had been unable to talk and gradually the poison spread through his system. He was 78.

FIND PAPER WITH MARK OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR

LONDON, April 11.—One of the most precious manuscripts in existence, bearing the sign manuals of William the Conqueror, Matilda, his queen, Archbishop Lanfranc, Roger de Beaumont and Robert de Beaumont has come into the possession of Maggs Bros., London booksellers.

The document, written in Latin on vellum about 1087, promised the granting by Waierand, count of Maulen, of the church and endowed lands of St. Mary at Bury St. Edmunds to St. Stephen's church in Caen, Normandy.

HINDENBURG BEGS GERMANS TO GO FORWARD AS ONE

Implores Nation to Unite to Combat Distress.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 11.—President Paul von Hindenburg in a proclamation issued today accepted his reelection and thanked the German people for their renewed expression of confidence. He pledged himself "to continue to serve my fatherland and folk with all my power."

"True to my oath, I will continue to fulfill my duty of remaining above all parties with justice dominant, and with a fixed desire to help our fatherland to freedom and equality externally, and to unity and progress at home," he said.

Begs for Unity.

"I implore all German men and women, whether they voted for or against me, to cease their wranglings and close their ranks," he said. "Again, as seven years ago, I appeal to the entire German people to cooperate. It is necessary to unite all powers in order to surmount the present confusion and distress. Only by standing together are we strong enough to master our fate. Therefore, in unity, let us go forward with God."

Whether Von Hindenburg must again take the oath of office has not yet been decided, but it is believed to be unnecessary since his oath was taken after his first election and "contained no time limit," according to official circles.

Reject Fascist Demand.

In all events, the reichstag will not reassemble until May inasmuch as the council of elders today rejected a demand by Adolf Hitler's Fascists and the communists that it be called for April 26, two days after the Prussian diet elections.

In accordance with the custom, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening today submitted the resignation of the cabinet to the newly elected president, but Von Hindenburg declined to accept it. Wilhelmstrasse denied rumors of an immediate reconstruction of the cabinet, but political circles forecast changes after the Prussian elections.

The work of the cabinet, held up by the presidential election campaign, will now be feverishly resumed as many important points must be settled before Chancellor Bruening leaves Wednesday or Thursday for the Geneva disarmament conference. He will be gone about ten days.

Tackle Foreign Problems.

Foreign problems will be energetically tackled now that the German voters have confirmed the reparations policy of Von Hindenburg's cabinet. Thorny internal problems which must be grappled with include the position of the Fascist storm troops in view of recent disclosures of alleged movements to throw the country into civil war.

Other subjects are the budget, wage problems and plans for a nationwide financing of revenue-producing public works to provide jobs for part of Germany's 6,000,000 unemployed. Economic experts of Germany's labor unions will meet on Wednesday to help tackle this problem.

Body of Man Recovered from Ogden Park Lagoon

The body of a man about 45 years old was recovered yesterday from the Ogden park lagoon, 65th street and Racine avenue. A union button found on his coat indicated that he was a street car employé. He had been dead for several months. In the afternoon the body of a 35 year old woman was taken from the lake off Miller beach, Gary. She had been dead two months.

MILLIONS HELPED TO HEALTH BY ALL-BRAN

Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

In ten years Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has gained an increasing number of friends. Today it is used by millions with satisfactory results.

New tests show added reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN. Laboratory experiments prove it has "bulk" to exercise the intestines and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

Another benefit of ALL-BRAN is that it has twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

The headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from constipation can be overcome by this pleasant cereal. How much better than using habit-forming pills and drugs.

ALL-BRAN action is gentle. Its "bulk" is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, or use in cooking. Tempting recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 11.—Illes Brody went on trial in the Criminal court today on charges of blackmailing two American sisters. The women are identified as "Mrs. B." and "Mrs. C." Mrs. B, the complainant, met Brody, who is a Hungarian, in Reno last September after she had obtained a second divorce. The pair went to Paris, taking Mrs. B's two sons, and ran up a hotel bill of $360 which they were unable to pay.

According to the prosecution Mrs. C, who was in London, went to Paris, paid the bill, gave Brody $75, and brought her sister to England. Brody, who said he was a newspaper man, followed and threatened Mrs. C with depriving her of her $1,200 monthly alimony by publishing a story that she was living with another man if she did not provide him with $150.

Police secreted themselves in a room adjoining that in which a meeting was arranged and Brody's arrest followed. Brody's defense is that Mrs. B owes him $350. On the witness stand Mrs. B said she loved Brody "for as long as these things last," but had no intention of marrying him. She denied she owed him money.

CANNON'S CASE APPEALED BY U. S. TO HIGHER COURT

Reversal of Ruling for Bishop Is Sought.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—The government today moved to a higher court with its attempt to convict Bishop James Cannon Jr., and Miss Ada L. Burroughs of Richmond, Va., of violation of the federal corrupt practices act.

John J. Wilson, assistant United States attorney, filed in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals a petition seeking reversal of a lower court decision sustaining a demurrer to an indictment filed by the head of the Virginia anti-Smith fight of 1928 and the organization's treasurer.

Campaigned Against Smith.

They were indicted for failure to make proper accounting to the house of representatives of contributions received during the Southern Methodist churchman's campaign against Alfred E. Smith.

In February Justice James M. Proctor of the District of Columbia Supreme court held that ten counts of the indictment failed to charge any offense under the corrupt practices act. The justice declined, however, to pass upon the constitutionality of the act, which had been challenged by attorneys for Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs.

Defective Report Alleged.

Broadly speaking, the election laws require that money contributed to presidential campaigns be reported to the clerk of the house. It was charged that Bishop Cannon and his treasurer conspired to withhold reports on certain contributions by Edwin C. Jameson, a wealthy resident of New York.

Justice Proctor held the indictments void because they did not say Miss Burroughs had knowledge of these contributions. He decided a person could not be held criminally responsible for failing to report contributions of which he or she had no knowledge.

Action to procure new indictments cannot be taken now, the three year limit prescribed by the statute of limitations having expired.

OAK PARK POLICEMAN GETS $1,000 REWARD FOR SLAYING ROBBER

A check for $1,000 was given to Detective Earl Olsen of the Oak Park police yesterday for slaying one bandit and capturing another in the Western Union office at 1022 North boulevard, Oak Park, on March 29. The presentation was made by Peter F. Welch, special agent for the Western Union, and Willis McFeely, president of the village. The bandit slain by Olsen, who had been guarding the office after three robberies in six months, was George Young. Floyd Cox was seized as Young's accomplice.

D'ANDREA, CAPONE BODYGUARD, ENDS TERM IN JAIL

Philip D'Andrea, bodyguard of Al Capone, was released from the county jail yesterday after serving five months of a six months' sentence for contempt of court. The sentence was imposed by Federal Judge Wilkerson when D'Andrea was found carrying a gun in court during the Capone trial. He earned five days off each month for good behavior.

D'Andrea refused to see reporters before his release, which gives him an opportunity to vote today. At 4:03 p. m. he dashed out of the doors of the jail toward a Lincoln automobile parked at the door. He held a newspaper before his face to thwart photographers.

As he was about to step into the car a gust of wind lifted his hat from his head. In his anxiety to retrieve his hat D'Andrea dropped his protective newspaper and scrambled for his hat. Photographers snapped their cameras. The driver of the car, obviously disguised with dark glasses, started his car toward the photographers. One seized the door of the car and almost wrenched it from the hinges.

D'Andrea recovered his hat, leaped into the car and held the door closed as well as its condition permitted. The driver removed his glasses as the car sped away. The 1931 license on the car was issued to D'Andrea, the records revealed.

Hold Up Six in Embroidery Company Office; Gets $950

Three bandits, with a shotgun and revolvers, robbed the Chicago Embroidery company, 1715 Ohio street, yesterday afternoon, after holding up Johannes Bodenmann, president of the concern, and five employés. The gunmen took $900 from the cash drawer and $50 and a diamond stickpin from Bodenmann.

SEIZE 3 BOYS; TWO CONFESS AUTO THEFTS

Sergt. Thomas Donnelly and his detective squad saw three youths riding in Taylor street yesterday in an automobile which the police suspected had been stolen. The boys abandoned the car and ran. After a search of the neighborhood one of the squad saw a foot beneath a board which blocked a narrow passage between two houses.

He pulled the foot and found Joe Cozzi, alias Malone, 17 years old, 907 Lytle street. Behind Joe crouched Sam Fosse, 17 years old, 933 Polk street, and Joseph Nuzzio, 16 years old. The Nuzzio boy was taken to the juvenile home. His two companions were taken to the detective bureau and, after it was found that the car was stolen, were locked up.

They soon went to sleep in their cells. When he was awakened, Cozzi admitted that he had stolen fifteen other automobiles recently, with other members of the "42" gang. He wanted money to hire a lawyer for his brother, Ted, 20 years old, who is serving a term in Pontiac reformatory, also for automobile stealing, he said. Fosse admitted other automobile thefts, saying he wanted the money for "good times."

"DIRTY FACE" spoils everything

It's a fact! Romance, charm, loveliness, all vanish when 'Dirty Face' comes into the picture. For dirt ages the skin. It accumulates in the normal skin, until the pores become clogged, the skin loses its elasticity, and its youth. The blush of romance cannot linger long on a skin that's dark and muddy.

Fight clear of dirt the modern Daggett & Ramsdell way. Get yourself a set of their two creams, and follow these simple directions. They'll cost you only a few cents a week. Why not start today?

● EVERY NIGHT use Perfect Cold Cream liberally to get rid of below-the-surface dirt. This marvelous cream provides the essentials every skin must have—lubrication, moisture, protection. Three groups of special ingredients supply them, all balanced properly of course. Famous for more than 40 years.

● DURING THE DAY whenever your skin needs freshening, cleanse it quickly with the new Perfect Cleansing Cream (liquefying). Melts instantly upon application, its fine oils cleanse in half the usual time.

The J. L. Hudson Company

Third Largest Department Store in America

Writes a Letter

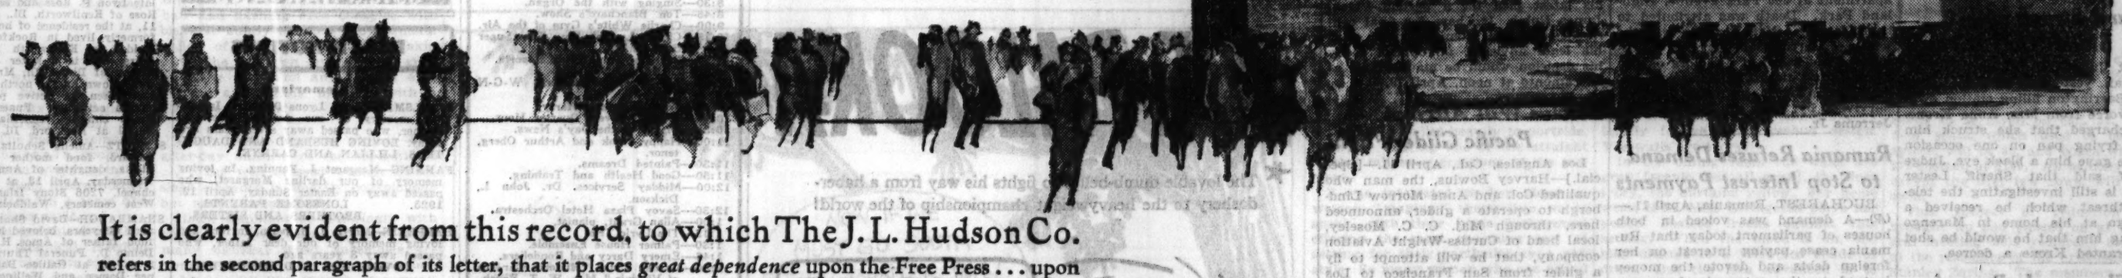
DETROIT
March 8, 1932
The Detroit Free Press
Detroit, Michigan.
Gentlemen:
For fifty-one years, our opinion of the sales value of the Free Press is clearly shown in the amount of advertising placed in its columns. And this advertising volume, as you well know, has constantly increased over the years, as the influence of your newspaper has broadened in its scope.
During the year 1931, of our entire volume of main store newspaper advertising lineage, 38 per cent. was placed in the Free Press.
Today, we can well re-emphasize the words of the founder of this company, Mr. J. L. Hudson, when, in his letter to you dated May 13, 1911, he said: "I am glad the Free Press has always stood for the best things of the community and has been not only a power, but a great educational advantage in our city and State".
Yours very truly,
Jos. B. Mills
Publicity Director
The J. L. Hudson Co.
Detroit

PERHAPS no other store anywhere so carefully scans its market possibilities, or is so critically appraising of its advertising methods, mediums and results, as is The J. L. Hudson Company of Detroit, third largest department store in America.

How this company places its advertising investment is of immediate import to every sales executive seeking a thoroughly tested system of making sales in Detroit. Imitation of its methods would not necessarily be sincere flattery alone, but rather a procedure suggested by what this company's vast knowledge of this market and its advertising mediums have disclosed as a successful method of selling in Detroit.

Out of 1,195 pages of advertising placed by this company for its main store promotion in 1931, 457 of these pages were placed with the Free Press, or 38.2% of its lineage; 521 pages or 44.8% of the lineage went to the first evening newspaper, and 217 pages or 17.0% of its lineage to the second evening newspaper.



It is clearly evident from this record, to which The J. L. Hudson Co. refers in the second paragraph of its letter, that it places great dependence upon the Free Press . . . upon the buying power of its circulation . . . upon the proved responsiveness of its readers, throughout Detroit and its trading area.

This same buying power coverage, embracing approximately three out of every four homes in the better-buying districts of Detroit, which The J. L. Hudson Company has utilized so profitably, and on a constantly expanding basis for over a half century, can be commandeered by your own advertising to move merchandise quickly to customers in the Fourth Market.

REJECTS CLAIMS OF CREDITORS TO AMES' INSURANCE

$1,100,000 Policies Held by Suicide Business Man

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. yesterday delivered an opinion in which he held that the $1,100,000 insurance trust created by the late Knowlton L. Ames, chairman of the board of the Booth Fisheries company and owner of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, was inviolate and could not be used to settle creditors' claims against his estate.

JUDGE TAYLOR.

The ruling was given when the judge dismissed the suit brought by Gurnett & Co., Boston stock brokers, against the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York and the Pennsylvania Mutual Life Insurance company, which had written policies for Mr. Ames. The brokerage concern asked that the defendants be ordered to pay the policies to the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, the trustee for the trust, as assets of the estate. As such the fund would be available to creditors.

Estate Found Insolvent.

The bill was brought soon after Mr. Ames shot himself on Dec. 31. His estate later was disclosed as insolvent, with assets of $50,000 against total claims of $536,429. Of this amount the Gurnett company claimed a debt of $324,361 as a result of market transactions. A suit for the sum was pending against Mr. Ames at the time of his death and still is awaiting final judgment by Judge Walter Steffen.

Beneficiaries of the ruling are Mr. Ames' widow, Mrs. Ada Howell Ames; his daughter, Emily Ann Ames, 5 years old, and his son by a former marriage, John Dawes Ames. The terms of the trust under which they are the immediate assignees were made public during the suit.

The sum of $250,000 is set aside as a life trust for Mrs. Ames, from which she shall receive the income in monthly installments. At her death the trust terminates and the principal will be divided between her daughter and her stepson or their heirs. A trust of $150,000 is created for Emily Ames, the income to be controlled by John Dawes Ames until she is 25. At that age she will receive the income directly and at 40 the principal will be turned over to her.

Son to Inherit $700,000.

The agreement provided that two $60,000 notes to the trustee should be paid from the remainder of the insurance, and the residue given outright to John Dawes Ames, who thus inherits approximately $700,000.

Under the agreement, which mentions Mr. Ames' other children, Mrs. Rosemary Meyer of London, England, and Knowlton L. Ames Jr., owner of the Chicago Evening Post, as secondary beneficiaries in case of the death of the three direct heirs, the trust will be given to Princeton university, if, at its termination, there are no living relatives.

The case is the first of its kind to be tried within the state. Attorney Bernard J. Shapiro for the brokerage house, argued that the trust was invalid, because there was no actual property involved, the trust prior to the death of Mr. Ames consisting only of the insurance policies. Attorney Richard S. Tuthill who represented the insurance companies, opposed this view, asserting that the policies had actual value.

The Judge's Ruling.

Judge Taylor held with the latter attorney saying in his oral opinion: "If a promise on the part of the insurer to the beneficiary—after a notice by the insured to the insurer of the physical transfer of the policies to the beneficiary, and the making of a change by recognizing the new benficiary, the Central Republic bank—came into being as it did and ran directly to the bank as trustee, it was, until extinguished by some act of the insured, a valuable thing for the time it lasted. In this case it was until the death of the insured."

Husband Struck with Skillet Gets Divorce

Circuit Judge E. D. Shurtleff at Waukegan yesterday granted Fred Krone, Barrington filling station owner, a divorce from Mrs. Anna Krone. Krone charged that she struck him with a frying pan on one occasion and once gave him a black eye. Judge Shurtleff said that Sheriff Lester Edinger is still investigating the telephone threat which he received a week ago at his home in Marengo informing him that he would be shot if he granted Krone a decree.

Mrs. Florence L. Ross of Kenilworth Is Dead at 74

Mrs. Florence L. Ross, 74 years old, died yesterday at the home of her son, Clyde P. Ross, 1321 Chestnut avenue, Kenilworth. Mrs. Ross had lived in Kenilworth for the last 20 years, since the death of her husband, Lyon P. Ross, who was general manager of a Rockford furniture company, and had been active in church, club and musical circles in the suburb. Funeral services will be held at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Kenilworth Union church. Burial will be in Rockford.

MEDICAL COST COMMITTEE TO GIVE A REPORT

After five years of investigation into various phases of the prices paid by the public for medical attention, the national committee on the cost of medical care, in session at the Palmer house, announced yesterday that a report would be made public tonight on its deliberations.

As a result of various fact finding studies published during the five years of its existence and especially its final report, which is now in process of preparation, recommendations are expected from the committee to medical organizations, hospitals, clinics and individual physicians as to fees for patients. Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, chairman of the committee, who is not attending, is represented by Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of Yale university. Chicagoans who were present yesterday as committee members included Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health; Dr. Olin West, secretary of the American Medical association, and Dr. Michael M. Davis, health director of the Rosenwald fund.

Arthur Jerrems' Widow Dies of Heart Disease

Mrs. Mary Morse Jerrems, 56 years old, was found dead last night in her apartment at 360 Park avenue, Highland Park. Death was attributed to heart disease. Mrs. Jerrems was the widow of Arthur W. Jerrems, chairman of the board of directors of Jerrems, Inc., Chicago tailoring concern, who died about a year ago. She is survived by one son, Arthur W. Jerrems Jr.

Rumania Refuses Demand to Stop Interest Payments

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 11.—(AP)—A demand was voiced in both houses of parliament today that Rumania cease paying interest on her foreign debts and devote the money instead to the payment of government salaries and pensions, which have been unpaid for months. Finance Minister Argetoianu replied that the country must not resort to a moratorium.

BIND WATCHMAN, STEAL SAFE.

NO MORE FOOT MISERY

Just a touch or two of Ice-Mint and your foot troubles are soon over. No matter what you have tried or how many times you have been disappointed here is real comfort for your feet.

You won't have to cut a corn again or bother with bungling tape or plasters.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes shrivel up and lift off so easy. It's wonderful. No pain or soreness when applying Ice-Mint or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin.

Ice-Mint is certainly magical the way it draws out inflammation from swollen, burning, aching feet. Ice-Mint imparts such a delightful, soothing coolness to the feet you sigh with relief. It is a real secret for fine, healthy feet. It is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who stand all day. It prevents foot odors and keeps feet sweet and comfortable.

Just ask in any drug store for Ice-Mint and give your poor, suffering, tired, swollen feet a real treat. There is nothing better.

MARK CUMMINGS GIFTS REVEALED TO EMPLOYES

Particulars of the bequests which D. Mark Cummings, Chicago capitalist who died Feb. 2[illegible] in Arizona, made to nine employés long in his service became known yesterday when his will was admitted to probate by Probate Judge Martin C. Decker at Waukegan.

Henry C. Saltonstall, 6931 Crandon avenue, Mr. Cummings' office manager for 40 years, and Otho S. Gaither, 90 years old, a retired employé now living in Beverly Hills, Cal., will receive a year's salary at once and $5,000 a year thereafter. William C. Melohn, 7354 Merrill avenue, is to receive double the salary paid him as Mr. Cummings' private secretary if he acts as manager of the estate, and otherwise is to receive $5,000 and two years' salary.

Three servants in the Cummings homes at 1550 State parkway and in Lake Forest, Catherine Wahlen, Bettie Beyer, and Maude Wallis, will receive two years' wages, and a fourth, Amanda Carlson, will receive one year's wages. Erland Borg, gardener, will get $2,000, and Ernest Daniels, chauffeur, $1,000.

Mr. Cummings bequeathed $200,000 to his widow, Mrs. Ruth Dexter Cummings, and left the residue of the $1,350,000 estate in trust for his daughter, Edith, and son, Dexter, and the children of the latter.

COAL PRODUCTION FAILS TO MEET SOVIET PROGRAM

MOSCOW, April 11.—(AP)—A sharp drop in coal production planned for the first quarter of 1932 aroused the newspaper Pravda today to sound an alarm.

Pravda said the situation in the coal industry was menacing the most important phases of other industries, chiefly the metallurgical works, which are one of the basic sections for the successful completion of the five year plan.

Although the total coal production was 17,221,500 tons for the first quarter of the year, or 35.6 per cent above the same period in 1931, it represented an accomplishment of only 86.9 per cent of the plan for the quarter. This was blamed by Pravda on unskilled management, inadequate organization of labor and the failure of many mines to institute the system of piece work wages, resulting in much shifting of workers.

Gov. Rolph to Decide Fate of Tom Mooney in Week

San Francisco, April 11.—(AP)—Tom Mooney, in prison since 1916 for bombing the San Francisco Preparedness day parade, a crime he consistently has denied committing, will learn one week from tomorrow the outcome of his latest plea for a pardon. Gov. James Rolph Jr., here for final conferences on the Mooney matter with his legal advisers, announced today his decision would be made public at Sacramento at noon, April 19.

WALKER-BERRY FEUD GROWS IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—The animosity between Mayor James J. Walker and controller Charles W. Berry, which has been growing more intense, became bitter today over the assertions of Frank J. Taylor, commissioner of public welfare, that the controller was holding up additional appropriations for unemployment relief.

Mr. Berry made public copies of letters he had written to the mayor and the commissioner in which he characterized Mr. Taylor's assertions as "maliciously false" and "contemptible falsehoods."

Mr. Berry took exception to a letter written to the mayor last week in which Mr. Taylor said that a proposal to issue $20,000,000 of five year bonds for emergency relief had been vetoed by the controller. The letter contained this passage:

"While this proposal met with the sympathetic approval of the mayor, it has not been accepted by the controller, who refused again only this week to agree to it."

Dr. E. E. Reininger Dies; Practiced Here for 34 Yrs.

Dr. Edward E. Reininger, veteran Chicago physician, died Sunday at his home, 334 South Grove avenue, Oak Park, of ulcer of the throat. He had been ill about a month. Dr. Reininger, who was 77 years old, had practiced in Chicago and Oak Park since 1888. He was on the staff of the Cook county hospital for twelve years and with the Chicago Homeopathic college for a similar period. He is survived by four brothers and two sisters. Funeral services will be held at 720 Lake street, Oak Park, at 2 p. m., tomorrow. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery.

MRS. FRANCES EMILY MATTHEWS, 78 years old, died of a stroke yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frances M. Kellar, 6484 North Oakley avenue. The funeral will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow from the chapel at 6208 North Western avenue. Mrs. Matthews was born in Liverpool, England, but had lived in Chicago since 1892.

FRANCIS JENNINGS, 74 years old, 3859 Lake Park avenue, a retired merchant, suffered a heart attack in the Regal Shoe store at 39 North Dearborn street yesterday and died at the Iroquois hospital.

CHAUNCEY N. HARPER, former head of C. N. Harper & Co., sales promotion firm, will be buried today after services at 3 p. m., at 6959 North Clark street. Mr. Harper, who was 65 years old, died Saturday at his home, 1720 Morse avenue.

A story in last Sunday's TRIBUNE relative to fee reductions among member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association stated that the fee for Sunday morning golf at five north side members of the association—Vernon, Pickwick, Elmgate, Sportsman's, and Techny Fields—was $2.50. This was the fee charged last year, but, in line with other price reductions at these five clubs, the fee for Sunday morning golf this year has been cut to $2.

SEEKS TO AVERT A WIDENING OF HOSPITAL STRIKE

Efforts were made yesterday by Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb, county commissioner, to prevent a general "sympathy" strike of workers in unions affiliated with the attendants and orderlies who walked out of the psychopathic hospital last Thursday. The employés struck because 27 attendants were dismissed in an economy move.

Mrs. Plumb conferred with representatives of the janitresses, truck drivers and window washers, who had threatened to strike. The representatives agreed to recommend postponement of action of their groups until the county committee investigating the situation has made its report. In addition to the ousting of the hospital employés, the other unions complained that a 10 per cent salary cut seemed imminent.

Meanwhile the striking attendants continued their picketing in front of the psychopathic hospital. Frank S. Shaw, president of the Cook County School of Nursing, which supplies help for the hospital, said that the strikers were out and he didn't want any more dealings with them.

BUCHAREST, April 11.—An official communique on the subject of Prince Nicholas' flying visit to Rumania was issued today. It said merely:

"His highness Nicholas requested a year's leave on account of ill health which has forced him to rest abroad. The leave was granted and Nicholas leaves Bucharest again Tuesday."

This confirmed reports last night that it was impossible to effect a rapprochement between King Carol and his brother, Nicholas, on their quarrel over the latter's marriage to a commoner. So long as Nicholas does not bring his bride to Rumania, nothing prevents her recognition as his wife. As Nicholas remains a member of the royal family his allowance is not suspended.

Gamaliel Bradford Dead; Was Noted Biographer

Wellesley, Mass., April 11.—(AP)—Gamaliel Bradford, internationally known biographer and author, died tonight in his home at Wellesley Hills. Despite a handicap of ill health during the greater part of his life, Bradford devoted many years of exhaustive study to the biographies which brought him acclaim. His work on "Lee, the American," took him through 14 years of painstaking research. It was, however, "The Soul of Samuel Pepys" that brought him international recognition.

4TH MONTREAL BUSINESS LEADER KILLS HIMSELF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., April 11.—The fourth suicide of prominent Montreal business men within a few days occurred today. He was B. N. Sinclair, manager of the employment department of the Canadian Tube and Steel products, who shot himself. The others were W. C. Cottingham, managing director of the Sherwin Williams Paint company; Kenneth Molson, a member of one of Montreal's most prominent families, and J. A. Kippen, president of Kippen & Co., stock brokers. Molson also killed himself with a revolver. Cottingham and Kippen sat in their garages and were asphyxiated by carbon monoxide fumes from their automobiles.

Gets His Wife's Promise That She'll Take Divorce

Morris Lippert, second hand furniture dealer at 9019 Commercial avenue, who won a wife with a trunk full of worthless imperial German marks and pre-war Berlin special assessment bonds, is prepared to lose her on Saturday. He told Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday that he had paid his wife, Anna, whom he met through a matrimonial agency, $100 on an agreed $300 settlement. Mrs. Lippert left her husband a month ago and has a bill for divorce pending. Lippert said she had promised to appear Saturday to get the decree. Judge Trude had sentenced Lippert to jail for failure to pay temporary alimony, but this sentence was suspended when the settlement was reached.

BREAKS PRISON; REPENTS, BACK AFTER 22 YEARS

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—Religion and a repentent heart returned to a Sing Sing cell today a convict who had escaped from that prison nearly 22 years ago. After two decades and more of conscience ridden liberty, Walter Bannigan is again behind the bars and by his own will and wish.

On July 10, 1908, the late Judge William Clapp of Westchester county sentenced Bannigan to serve fourteen years and four months in Sing Sing. He had been convicted on a charge of assault and three charges of blackmail.

On the night of Oct. 7, 1910, a guard fell asleep and five prisoners, Bannigan among them, escaped.

But for all except Bannigan their luck was poor. One after another, four were captured, but there was no trace of Bannigan until he arrived today in company of a mission superintendent and surrendered.

Three Saints, Four Sinners Make a Book

Gamaliel Bradford Author of Biographies.

"Saints and Sinners," by Gamaliel Bradford [Houghton-Mifflin].

IT is generally stated that Gamaliel Bradford invented the formula of psychological biography before Lytton Strachey's "Queen Victoria" was published. At least Bradford has been painting his impressionistic portraits of souls for many years.

Among the many distinguished books he has written are "The Quick and the Dead," "The Soul of Samuel Pepys," "Lee the American," "Damaged Souls," "Daughters of Eve," and "Confederate Portraits."

"Saints and Sinners" contains sketches of seven men, four sinners and three saints. They are Cesare Borgia, Casanova, Talleyrand, and Byron, Saint Francis, Thomas à Kempis and Fénélon. The contrast between these men goes farther than merely one between good and evil. Each man represents a separate and different kind of saintliness and sinfulness. Saint Francis is the Vagabond of God and Casanova is the Vagabond of the Devil, Cesare Borgia represents the riotous living of a strong fearless youth, Thomas à Kempis' soul is utterly absorbed in the contemplation of the divine, while Talleyrand is a man whose worldly greed and ambition are unsurpassed.

Fénélon entangles himself with the world as a teacher and a writer, as a man of courtliness and a certain sophistication while he maintains untainted his purity, goodness, and faith, and Byron loves sin not for itself but for the glamour and reputation the perverse world accords it.

At the beginning of each sketch there is a chronology [which is really worthless because the major events mentioned are scarcely touched on in the text and stand as unillumined data of no importance] and a picture of the figure to be examined. The dullest study in the book is on Thomas à Kempis because the reader is presented with an explanation of the theological theories of the monk instead of a "portrait of his soul."

Talleyrand Study Most Interesting.

The most interesting study is of Talleyrand, a suggestive although inadequate picture of an enigma the secret of which seems to have escaped the author. The portrait is interesting in that it stimulates the reader to further study of Talleyrand.

It is perhaps not in place to quarrel with Gamaliel Bradford's method. Nevertheless the impression of superficiality should be traced to its source.

The reader feels that Gamaliel Bradford reads much of his hero's writing and that of his contemporaries with a preconceived interpretation of the hero's character. This intuitive method is oftentimes right but it is based more on emotional understanding than on the sensuous conception. To those who have read Renaissance history, the character of Cesare Borgia in the present book seems pallid and uninteresting. Since Gamaliel Bradford eschews the reporting of events [relegating all this to the chronology] in a life time, he must rely solely for effectiveness on his intuitive understanding of a soul. And in many cases this intuition fails him, or at least it fails to convince the reader. Also, for those who have stood in the chapel in Assisi or have wandered over that small town, the spirit of St. Francis as interpreted in this book adds nothing to the picture of the man.

Gets Contact with Reader.

The reader to whom the figures evaluated in this book are merely names will find "Saints and Sinners" extraordinarily interesting and perhaps even vivid. The most fascinating and compelling portrait, complete, thoughtful, fair from every point of view, is of Byron. Each interpretation is attractively written, in a terse and dignified but vivacious style.

This informal biographical method allows for much technical freedom. The author inserts his own opinions, tells now and again an experience in his own life. There are comparisons between the Renaissance, the 18th century, and the 20th. The method cannily gives the impression of chattiness, of a sort of human contact between the author and the reader. M. Black Clothes Stage Comeback Despite Riot of Spring Color

BY RHEA SEEGER.

This spring fashion season has given all of us the chance of a lifetime to wear color . . . to sally forth with flying and flippant colors with the approval of great French designers as an added incentive to be smart and in fashion. We have been submerged in waves of every conceivable shade of blue . . . we have almost gone bankrupt buying beige colored clothes and accessories and paying the inevitable dry cleaning bills . . . pastel shades of green, and dusky tones of pink completely captivated us until our street scenes are as riotously colorful as any spring florist window.

In spite of all this popular color acclaim . . . regardless of Paris and what the authoritative approval of the great and near great means to us, the color waves are not dancing so bewitchingly before our eyes. Smart new black clothes are arriving every new day! There is an age-old mystery and allure to black . . . we all react to it . . . the dramatic possibilities of black have never been exhausted . . . the fragile young slenderness of picturesque yellow haired youth and beauty is airily accentuated against it. Blue-black, brown and copper colored hair and flashing eyes conspire with black to subtly enhance the exquisite pallor of creamy camellia-like skin . . . the patrician loveliness of gray or white hair and any colored eyes become a haunting memory with a black background.

Black clothes are the almost day-after-day uniform of the sophisticate . . . the well dressed woman whose sleek elegance is smartly conspicuous but never ostentatious.

Black combines so knowingly with color . . . delightful gowns and many unusual street ensembles are complex combinations of a great deal of black with just enough of a small portion of color to make a telling contrast . . . usually the blouse tops on the newest models are of the pastel tones of dusky pink or the watery tint of soft blue, or green . . . but the swankiest new things are the illegally dangerous contrasts of black with strong, clear white. It's part of the mystery of black that nothing contrasts it so effectively as its opposite, white.

Faithfully following fashion all of the new black costumes continue to contrast, always, high around the shoulders and well above the waistline. A daring street costume consists of a short sleeved dress of rather heavy silk black crêpe with two full blown white silk poppies pinned at the high neckline in front . . . the back of the frock is much lower than the front and is covered by the matching jacket that is short and snugly fitted to the ribs.

Around the bolero edge of the jacket is an inch wide band of white crêpe that continues up and around the neck. The sleeves of the jacket are loose and long, confined in large puffs with an elastic at each wrist.

New sheer crêpe costumes are also just unpacked . . . one short sleeved dress of black crêpe becomes 1932 with a tiny, short bellhop jacket of white linen printed with small black designs . . . another combines with gray and white printed silk top . . . accents the waistline with a wide scarlet belt and over it wears a short hip-length fitted coat with white fur cuffs.

If you like black you can find lots of new creations in every shop in town but the most startling and the most interesting models are the ones that go around with white for perfect fashionable companionship.

The Time	1927 to Date

Good Morning!

The Kellys had a daughter
And the Cohens had a son
And the two young folks were planning
To some day become as one
When MauRICE sent Kitty's picture
To a movie stu-di-o
And a nabob of the fillums
Wired "Come west!" And DID she GO . . . .!
She, and both her parents, hastened
To fair Cal-i-for-ni-a
Where a test revealed that Daughter
Was okay, also hot-cha . . . !
Well, the Kellys all got up stage,
When the Cohens came to call
They could hardly see the Cohens,
Hardly see the C's at all!
Kitty K talked with an accent
Thick as mud—and just as clear—
Mrs. Kelly said "Mah dj'ayah!"
Where she one had said "My dear!"
Mr. Kelly sank his bank roll—
Well, no matter where it sank—
But believe me, Mister Kelly
Wished he'd left it in a bank!
In the meantime Maurie Cohen
Wrote a ditty that went o'er!
Cried a nut foreign director:
"Gav me more lik dat! More! More!"
Well, I tell you, life was screwy
For the Cohens and the K's!
'Round the studio lots they wandered
In a sort of batty daze.
Suddenly a bugle sounded
(Or it might as well have been)
Suddenly—silents were outre.
Migosh! Talkies had come in!
And the cru-el old producers
At Miss K's contracts did balk,
For the birdie she was pretty
BUT—the birdie couldn't talk!
And young Cohen's winsome ditties
Good as ac-com-PAN-i-ment
Were N. G., as talker music . . . !
Down the sewer HIS hopes went.
Let me see—where was the Home Town
Where the C's and K's began? (began).
Never mind. . . . But that old Home Town

Epilogue.

O the Kellys had a daughter
And the Cohens had a son
And their plans at end of fillum
Are as when the fillum begun (began).

News Note.

This piece has right good acting
And it's clean as it can be
And so simple! Oh, SO simple . . . !
Simple just like A B C!

Hunt for Lost Explorer to Be Described Tonight

The Geographic Society of Chicago will hold a monthly meeting this evening at Orchestra hall. Commander George M. Dyott, explorer and author, formerly of the British air force, will give an illustrated lecture on the search which he made under the auspices of the Royal Geographic society for Col. P. H. Fawcett, veteran British explorer, who several years ago disappeared in the Brazilian jungle.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Red heads may be overlooking a good bet by not studying more diligently the possibilities of complimentary yellow shades. The thought occurred to me recently as I lunched with Mrs. Paul Whiteman, before her marriage to the famous orchestra leader Margaret Livingston of the movies. She was wearing a hostess gown with long trained, directoire cut citron hued coat over a white satin slip. The coat "frogs" and buttons were white and white bands were stitched on the full sleeves.

The citron yellow was lovely against Miss Livingston's dark red hair. She is about 5 feet 3, weighs about 112, and has hazen green eyes and that flair for style that necessitated the early framing of a world like CHIC. Miss Livingston is all of the indispensable French word, a little more so when she dons one of those new chapeaux that list heavily to portside, or when wearing one of the straight "gob" millinery creations of the moment.

I was interested in her ideas on women "staging" themselves, so to speak, with their home background offering the most charming sort of setting for their particular type and style. So many women who can afford differently, buy and arrange their home furnishings with no thought of themselves in the decorative possibilities. They could just as well create a charming stage for their very best and most pictorial act—that of chatelaine and hostess.

In her own home Miss Livingston puts her idea into charming effect. Here her taste for yellow asserts itself in the gold satin living room draperies, the yellow taffeta dining room draperies, and the peach brown used at windows in her boudoir. Ivory, another color she favors, is played throughout all her rooms in the figureless ivory carpeting.

A good interior decorator was lost to the trade in Miss Livingston's other interests. A really good one, I mean. So many women nurse the illusion they are to the t. d. talent born who haven't the sense of color and arrangement needed. This ivory yellow scheme of floor and window is touched off in living room with lovely blues in the chairs. The chintzes carry lightly festive pink rosebud design. The walls are ivory.

In the dining room the walls are gray [scenic, but all gray], the floor ivory, the curtains yellow. For home wear, then, Miss Livingston plays her yellow hostess frocks against this setting. When the mood is on, she may change to a vivid red shade of dress. But the idea advanced is to consider yourself as the leading lady on this home stage of yours and, as the professional has to, fit yourself pictorially into the background.

Two Badminton Tournaments Hold Interest

Winnetka and Geneva Teams Meet.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE was great excitement in Winnetka and Geneva recently over the badminton matches staged between the star players of the two towns, the Winnetkans going to Geneva a week ago Sunday and the Genevans going to Winnetka last Sunday.

The north shore players were the victors in Geneva but the Fox river valley residents came back in great style in Winnetka and evened up the score somewhat.

Women as well as men played and the two tournaments occasioned luncheon and tea parties in both towns, the Geneva committee giving a luncheon for the Winnetkans at the Geneva Golf club a week ago Sunday and the Gerald M. Butlers of Sheridan road, Winnetka, entertaining at luncheon for the Genevans last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McWilliams Stone had the players for tea after the Geneva matches, which were played in the gymnasium of one of the public schools, and the Perry D. Smiths were hosts at a tea party after the Winnetka matches, which were staged in the gymnasium of the North Shore Country Day school. Among the Winnetkans who went to Geneva were the Butlers, the Smiths, Mr. and Mrs. Harve G. Badgerow, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Hamill, Mrs. and Mrs. Francis H. Hardy, the Alan Harrises, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Greeley and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodrich.

In the Geneva party which motored northeast Sunday were the Stones, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Hunter, the David B. McDougals, the Nathan D. McClures, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Michael, the Sidney L. Castles, the Leonard C. Meads and Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Cooke.

League Sponsors Style Show.

It would be interesting to know how many buyers there are in the huge crowds that assemble whenever society girls model for a fashion show, wouldn't it?

I supposed that every one was tired of seeing pretty girls, even pretty Junior leaguers, promenade in the newest spring styles and I really did not expect to see a large crowd at a North Michigan avenue shop yesterday where the league sponsored a showing of debutante fashions, but I was wrong, for there wasn't even standing room by the time I got there, shortly after the promenade commenced, and if I had not had to see it I certainly would have been discouraged by the crush on the stairs leading up to the floor where the show was held [the elevator would not stop there by that time].

It was worth the effort, however, for it really was a lovely show—pretty models and smart clothes, priced for 1932 budgets. The climax of the promenade was a cotton wedding, the bride, Frances Weary, wearing a gown of white cotton net and her attendants in blue cotton net and organdy, carrying American beauty roses. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., who earlier had modeled debutante fashions in a most convincing manner, was the bride's mother very chic in an ensemble of gold color crepe with sable trimmings, but she does look more like a debutante than a bride's mother!

The other mannequins were blond Alice May Dickinson, who looked unusually sweet in a green evening gown with a little loose jacket. Peggy Hambleton whose cluster of blond curls at the back of her head adds chic to whatever she wears, exquisite Mrs. Murray P. Brush Jr. [she is one of the prettiest young women in town], statuesque Mrs. William K. Meyers, exotic looking Jane Martin, Ann Robinson, Elizabeth Knode who is to be a June bride, Lucie Jacobs, Chloe Watson, and Mrs. Franklin Clement.

Service Club Cuts Show Price.

"Because everything is cheaper than it used to be," the Service club girls sensibly have decided to reduce the price of tickets for their annual revue to be given on Oct. 22. Main floor seats, which used to be $7.50 apiece, will be $5, and boxes will cost $75 instead of $100. All balcony seats, except the first few rows, will be $1 each.

This subject of reduction was brought up and passed on at a general meeting held yesterday morning at the residence of the president, Mrs. Stanley Zaring. The members expect that their overhead will be less than usual this year because of the general price reduction in all businesses and commodities, and figure that with lower admission prices, they can realize a profit large enough to take care of the charities they help annually.

Mrs. John Beadle has been appointed chairman of the ticket sale; Miss Florence Carr, boxes; and Miss Jane Willett will have charge of the program, with Miss Gloria Griffiths as her subchairman. The club board will continue to hold weekly meetings until all the details for next fall's program have been decided.

News Notes of Many Travels.

Gleaned on the telephone yesterday:

Mrs. Leroy W. Fuller did not go west to join Mrs. J. Ogden Armour at all this winter, as planned, and still is here with Mr. Fuller in their apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive. Mr. Fuller's "not-so-good" health upset his wife's plans. Their son, the popular "Billy," still is in the west, where he went about a year ago, and Mrs. Fuller does not expect him home before fall.

Mrs. Armour has returned from the west and is at her apartment at 3400 Sheridan road. Mrs. Armour's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, left Saturday for a month's stay at their Santa Barbara residence.

All Fair Buildings Will Be Completed Before Opening Date

All construction work for the Century of Progress exposition will be completed well before the opening date, June 1, 1933, said Chairman Harvey Wiley Corbett of New York yesterday following a meeting of the exposition's architectural commission.

"In the next three days," he said, "we shall give orders which will carry the construction program through to its completion. That means deciding on the location of every building not under construction, deciding on the color scheme, planning the landscaping, preparing the bridges which will connect Northerly island with the mainland, building the general exhibits group, and providing harmonious structures for concessions in separate buildings.

Other members of the commission present at the meeting were John Holabird, Hubert Burnham, and Edward Bennett of Chicago, Paul Cret of Philadelphia, Raymond Hood and Ralph T. Walker of New York and Arthur Brown of San Francisco.

Boy Scouts Offered Three Ways to Do Work at Hospital

A plan by which Boy Scouts may aid in hospital work has been instituted at the Presbyterian hospital, Asa A. Bacon, superintendent, announced yesterday. The service is open to a Scout who elects to do hospital work, who is accepted for service by the hospital, and who is prepared to report for five successive Saturdays from 9 to 12 a. m.

The Scout work in hospitals will be conducted by the occupational therapy department. A Scout's duties fall in one of three classes: visiting patients of Boy Scout age at the request of the nursing service; visiting various departments of the hospital to learn about the work of the hospital, and helping the occupational therapy department.

Scouts may also receive help through the department in connection with merit badges such at leathercraft, handicraft, weaving, woodwork and carpentry.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. A bandit, working with few accomplices, has kidnaped and held for ransom numerous wealthy persons. Those who offered resistance have invariably been killed.

Joyce Merrow is "The Whisperer's" latest victim. She is engaged to Roland Blatch, who is secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist.

INSTALLMENT II.

A JEWEL THEFT DEMANDED.

In St. Christopher's Mansions, a stately block in Victoria street within half a mile of the houses of parliament, Sir Henry Glazeborough, nicknamed Old Glassy, occupied two flats which he had knocked into one. Four of the rooms were really offices, given over to his various activities. There was one office called "the library," and furnished as such, in which he received callers. Another office, called "the study," was occupied by Roland Blatch as social secretary, while "the morning room" was mainly devoted to the affairs of the League of Orphans and other charities of which he was patron and chief secretary. "The smoking room" was given over to political affairs and was the general room in which sat the two typists.

At a little after 10 on the following morning Sir Henry strolled from his residential quarters into the library and rang for his secretary.

The big fleshy face beamed. The moist hands clasped each other in a passion of appreciation of life in general and the rather watery eyes seemed about to brim over with tears of rejoicing. Often the tears did brim over—but only when he was moved by his own eloquence.

"O, my God! The Whisperer—Joyce!"

"Ah, my dear Blatch! Good morning. Don't you feel as I do, that it would be positively ungrateful to expect this fine weather to last? I am due at the prime minister's at half past ten. I am afraid I shall not be able to deal with the mail until after lunch. Is there anything you want of me before I go?"

"Excellent, my dear fellow, excellent! You always give me the answer I most want to hear. Now there's a little job I have for you that I meant to do myself. But the prime minister is—ah—the prime minister, eh, Blatch?

"At 10:30," continued Sir Henry, "the city manager of the Reliance is coming to see the Demaine jewels and insure them. Now they always try to underinsure jewelry. You must be firm with him, Blatch. Tell him that the figure is £80,000, and I should be neglecting my duty to the League of Orphans if I were to consent to insure them for less."

"Eighty thousand, sir!" Roland repeated it mechanically.

"Not a penny less! Why, when they are sold in the league's interest they will probably fetch a great deal more than they are worth, for the romantic interest attaching to them. When you think of Aila Demaine—when you think of that poor, wanton girl repenting in her last illness and leaving her ill gotten jewels to so noble a cause—which of us, Blatch, is entitled to say she was a sinner?"

Sir Henry was on the verge of tears.

"Here is the key of the safe. It will be the same combination as yesterday. I am going now to the prime minister, leaving the entire matter in your hands with every confidence."

"Old Glassy!" thought Roland, as he went back to the study. "Glazing all the realties of life. All the same—as he had told Joyce—Old Glassy was an ass, but no fool."

At half past ten exactly the insurance manager arrived.

The jewels bequeathed by the notorious dancer, Aila Demaine, for all their great worth, could have been contained in the ordinary woman's vanity bag. They consisted of a girdle, a collar, and a tiara, all of diamonds.

The insurance man held up the girdle.

"Of course, an ordinary woman wouldn't wear a thing like this! But the stones, I know, are very good. My seeing them is only a formality, Mr. Blatch. Their history is sufficiently well known. There's no need for me to examine them."

Nevertheless he subjected the stones to a fairly thorough scrutiny. There followed a brief discussion, at the end of which he agreed to advise his firm to issue an insurance policy for £80,000.

"That's all, I think," he said, and Roland replaced the stones in the safe and locked it.

"We'll send you a letter, which you'll get tomorrow morning—it will hold you covered until the policy is ready."

Thus, simply, the matter was concluded. By this time tomorrow the jewels would be insured. Roland went back to the study to resume work.

On the desk was an express letter in Joyce's handwriting.

He tore the flap, and a moment later was staring at the letter in sheer horror.

He had read it through once without being able to grasp its full contents.

Dear Roland: On my way upstairs after leaving you last night a man grabbed me. You know the rest. It's been in all the papers again and again within the last four months. Of course I obeyed him. I am in the room the others have described, still in my glad rags. I simply cannot imagine why he has picked on me and is making me write to you about it. Don't worry about me if you can help it, as it's quite true he doesn't ill-treat his victims. It's kill or nothing with him. If it's "kill"—remember that I died—well, you know what I want to say about you, but I can't, because the beast will read it. JOYCE MERROW.

Roland buried his face in his hands.

"O, my God! The Whisperer—Joyce!" The Whisperer had taken others—and five of them had never returned. One man and one woman had been killed for resisting abduction. The others had been killed because the ransom had not been paid. And Scotland Yard, with all the experts at its disposal and the whole country roused to help, had proved itself so far unable to do anything. It had been unable even to grasp the body of the man whose hand reached out to take the ransom.

"But there's some mistake!" he cried aloud. "He's taken my girl—to torture me into paying a ransom. How the devil can I pay a ransom, with barely 200 quid in the world?"

"A taximan brought this, sir. It is addressed to you personally."

Roland tried to answer, but his throat had gone dry. Marples set down the bag and departed. There was no need to speculate as to what the bag contained. The "little box" was sent in various disguises, and always it brought terror. Men of strong character, rich and forceful men, had received it and thereby become the slaves of The Whisperer until the little box released them. Once a man picked it up he would guard it from injury with his life if necessary.

The kitbag was a new one and the label on it was in Joyce's handwriting. Roland fumbled with the fastenings in his eagerness to open it.

The first thing he saw was a canvas satchel with straps, like a schoolboy's satchel. He took it out. Underneath was the little box.

Though the newspapers had made it a thing of almost superstitious horror, the little box itself was no mystery. It was a small wireless receiving set, very similar, in fact, to that supplied to the police in various parts of the country. By means of this the bandit would speak, using his own short wave.

Attached to the handle was a typewritten slip.

"Unfasten the box, take out the headphones and affix them, then fasten the box again. At 11 o'clock precisely I shall speak."

Roland glanced at the electric clock on the mantel piece. It was eight minutes to 11. He locked the door, adjusted the headphones, and waited.

He dreaded the moment when he should hear the voice, yet the hands of the clock seemed to stand still. His dread was based on the belief that this time the bandit had blundered and would demand of him a ransom that he could not possibly pay.

By means of the radiogoniometer the flying squad had again and again come very close to The Whisperer's transmitting apparatus. Inevitably they must have found it but for the fact that it shifted its location. They knew that it must be mounted on a car or that several transmitting stations must be used alternately and never the same one twice. The voice would speak, then remain silent, then speak again in a different locality.

In the early days of the terror the police had thrown the apparatus out of gear by "jamming the ether" with their own transmitters. This made The Whisperer's voice inaudible to his victims—who could not carry out his orders—with the result that the captive was murdered. In this respect The Whisperer had compelled the police to leave him a free hand.

"Good morning, Mr. Blatch. Sir Henry is with the prime minister. In your pocket is the key of his safe. Go to the safe and take out the Aila Demaine diamonds. Put them in the canvas satchel you have found in the kitbag—then take a taxi to Liverpool Street station."

"So that's the game, is it!" exclaimed Roland, knowing that the other could not hear him. For the moment he felt a vast relief—for he had expected to be told to draw £10,000 from the bank.

GASOLINE ALLEY—FIRST AID

STORIES? YOU MEAN EXPERIENCES. I DID MEET UP WITH A RATTLESNAKE ONE DAY THAT BY SOME ACCIDENT OR FREAK OF NATURE DIDN'T HAVE ANY RATTLES. AN' HE LOOKED UP AT ME SO PITIFUL-LIKE, I FELT SORRY FOR HIM. HE WAS PRACTICALLY AN OUTCAST AMONG HIS OWN KIND.
AFTER THINKIN' IT OVER I HOLLOWED OUT THIRTEEN POKER CHIPS AND MADE HIM THE SWELLEST SET OF RED WHITE AND BLUE RATTLES YOU EVER SAW AN' FASTENED 'EM ON WITH A BUTTON. HE WAS SO PROUD—AND GRATEFUL! HE USED TO COME UP UNDER MY WINDOW AND WAKE ME UP AT FIVE-THIRTY EVERY MORNING.
DOES HE DO IT YET?
NOPE. HE DISAPPEARED. BUT SHORTLY AFTERWARD DIRTY JOE TRIED TO CASH THIRTEEN POKER CHIPS WITH HOLES IN 'EM DOWN AT THE SOFT DRINK PARLOR AN' DURIN' THE FIGHT THAT ENSUED THIS SNAKESKIN BAND SOMEHOW GOT OFF'N HIS HAT AN' ONTO MINE. I'M MIGHTY FOND O' THIS HAT BAND.

Clothes Seldom Stand Between a Gal and Fun

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Exactly what part does the new frock play in the heart affairs of our young women? The frequent new frock, that is. The stocked wardrobe!

I wish we could get the young girl mind straightened out on this matter of dress and popularity. It seems to me girls list too heavily to extravagance for what they actually get out of it. Whether they can afford it or not, the girl is inclined to overemphasize importance of a wardrobe.

It isn't peculiarly a young girl notion that in order to attract attention one's clothes must attract; in order to hold interest there must be a continuous variety of dress.

It would be just as ridiculous to say that a woman's appearance isn't an important part of the game of attracting as to suggest that she sink herself in debt to keep up a sartorial pace. Appearance is important. And a certain variety of dress helps sustain interest. But dress extravagance is, we claim, the least productive of investments.

Women "never get their money back" in dates and desired attentions who overemphasize the dress phase. For one reason, the very dress consciousness overshadows the girl's easy grace of manner. It unconsciously raises a barrier between her and most men.

For another reason, the average man, young or older, is not aware of the value of women's clothes. All he asks is that it differ from his and that the girl inside look appealing. Some one said one time, speaking of the ultra smart woman who follows clothes in a fastidiously up to date way, that men may admire "smartly" dressed women, but they do not love them.

This diatribe on dress is inspired by a letter from an 18 year old high school girl who says because she cannot afford a new dress for every party she is out of it with boys. "Three dresses is the most she ever has managed to have at one time."

Now with a little ingenuity those three dresses could be changed with collar and cuff and other little touches to serve as six. Or the three frocks, as is, could see a girl through a season very nicely, providing the girl inside kept herself personally groomed and she developed those charms of character that are never failing.

THE STAGE

Katharine Cornell, who will bring "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" to the Harris theater next Monday night, has completed her plans for next season by signing a contract for the American rights to André Obey's "The Rape of Lucrèce." This play, as acted by Jacques Copeau's Compagnie des Quinze, has made an impression on the playgoers of Paris and London. It retells the classic story that has inspired many poets, including Shakespeare. Miss Cornell will appear in "The Rape of Lucrèce" after her staging of Sidney Howard's "Alien Corn." Incidentally, the advance mail order sale for Miss Cornell's engagement in "The Barretts" is said to be record breaking.

"Everybody's Welcome" is registered as a hit at the Apollo theater, but it will make no effort to achieve a run. The engagement of four weeks will end April 23, after which the frolic will continue its tour.

The departure of this musical comedy will leave "The Blue Mask," now at the Grand Opera house, as the only song-and-dance entertainment of the spring until George White establishes his "Scandals" at the Civic Opera house. After "The Blue Mask" will come a revival of "Maytime," probably with many members of this company in the cast. No definite date has been fixed for the première.

"Maytime" was the first in the series of musical romances by Sigmund Romberg. Its only engagement in Chicago was given in 1917, with John Charles Thomas and Carolyn Thompson in the leading rôles.

"A Church Mouse," with Louise Groody and Ernest Glendinning in the leading rôles, will follow "Louder, Please," at Woods' theater, beginning Sunday, April 24. This comedy, with Ruth Gordon as its heroine, is rated among the current New York hits. The production will be made with various members of the "Louder, Please" cast in the minor rôles. "A Church Mouse" deals with a quaint little girl who begins as a street waif and ends as a banker's darling. It was written by Ladislaus Fodor.

Special matinées, instead of the usual mixed program, are this year's means of securing funds for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. "Everybody's Welcome," at the Apollo, will make its contribution Tuesday afternoon, April 19.

"Zombie" was scheduled to move out of the Adelphi theater last Saturday night, but a change of plan is keeping it there through the current week. Meanwhile the manager of the Adelphi is trying to find another show.

Three One Man Exhibits Open to Art Lovers

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Three artists of standing in Chicago have just opened one-man exhibits of their work in various parts of the city. Farthest away is the stunning exhibition of landscapes by Edward T. Grigware in the Wilmette Woman's club. Mr. Grigware is a member of the Palette and Chisel club and his paintings are met with in every exhibition of consequence. A trip to Florida furnished him with material for a number of fascinating compositions of swamps and tall palms, white herons and lakes. Another recent excursion into Canada yielded several important large canvases from Quebec. His exhibit is rounded out with a few Fox River valley landscapes and a sketch of a girl with a cat.

Anna Lee Stacey, at the Cordon club, has a colorful show. She paints various subjects, all of them in a delicate and delightful strain. Her flower studies are among the most decorative found in any studio in Chicago. Recently Mrs. Stacey has given great pleasure to a wide audience by painting portraits out of doors, not an easy undertaking because of the bright, clear and sometimes hard light the sun showers down upon the sitter. Mrs. Stacey has discovered charming refuges of shade, by a great tree or a house wall, and with that shield the result is invariably attractive.

Her paintings from Europe are picturesque and repeatedly romantic. Such hillsides rising into ruin-crowned tops are not to be found on our side of the Atlantic. "April in Cagnes" is entrancing and so, too, is "Gray Day—Andely." "The Terrace by the Siene" fills one with the desire to take the first ship to France and there bask at leisure, tasting an ice in such a rose arbor.

The third exhibit is of paintings by Salvatore Salla in the Allerton House gallery. It opens today. Mr. Salla offers some extremely well handled portraits, that of Herbert Witherspoon being exceptionally brilliant. His "Studies" are delightful. The "Orientals," a group of six colorful and different canvases, are effective.

The exhibits will continue through the month.

Parents Seem Either Set or Open Minded

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

There are two kinds of people, those who get set early in life, and stay that way—like plaster of Paris. At some time I suppose they've been plastic, but their minds are poured in a mold, get set and stay so. Like a man I heard of the other day who thinks, feels and acts just as he did ten years ago.

He thrashed his boy the other night. He thinks children should be eternally grateful because their parents give them food, clothing, shelter and education. His ideas of school are antiquated—and I feel sure always will be. He's only in his late thirties. Yet he's set. That's one kind.

Then, there's another kind—the kind who never get set, who keep on growing, whose minds are open and flexible.

I hear from both kinds, and interesting to relate, some in group 1, the plaster of Paris group, are young people or parents, while many in the other group—those of the flexible open mind—are grandparents. Some youngish grandparents, but some in their seventies.

Here's some of the evidence:

"Your articles have been of great value [they just happened to be mine] in helping me to understand my two youngsters. Grandmother, who lives with us, has been interested, too, gaining a new viewpoint which has certainly aided in establishing greater harmony among all of us."

And another: "Will you please send to my address two copies of your leaflet, 'Don't Touch.' I have two dear little grandbabies and I would like their mothers, my daughters, to profit by them."

Now, there are what I call grandmothers! And their number grows.

Two Badminton Tournaments Hold Interest

Winnetka and Geneva Teams Meet.

Miss Jessica Hambleton must be having a beautiful time on the ranch near Wilcox, Ariz., on which she is visiting, for she has postponed her return several times and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chalkley J. Hambleton, are not sure when she will come home, although they expect her fairly soon.

Miss Fanny McPherson, daughter of the Donald F. McPhersons of Winnetka, is to be graduated from Miss Hall's school at Pittsfield, Mass., this June, but she is not going to be a debutante next year; she is going abroad for the winter.

Mrs. J. Wallace Wakem returned on Sunday from a rather lengthy stay at Charleston and Tryon. She and her sister, Mrs. Henry T. Allen of Washington, D. C., had planned to go to Arizona this winter, but at the last minute they changed their plans and went south instead.

The Gardiner G. Hammonds have returned from Florida—and the Valentine C. Bartletts are back from a California trip—Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift are expected to return the middle of this week from a trip to Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dunham will return on Friday from New York —Mr. and Mrs. Angus Hibbard are at home after a two months' stay at the Rancho Linda Vista near Tucson—Mrs. Laird Bell and her daughter, Helen, who was graduated this winter from Bryn Mawr, will return in May from a trip abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tracy Allen and Tracy Jr. returned on Saturday from a trip to Arizona—Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler will arrive in Chicago on May 8 from a two months' Mediterranean cruise. Her daughter Winifred, and her niece, Miss Virginia Waller, who are with her, will stop in the east for several house parties before they return home, however.

Howard Linns to Return Today.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn will return today from Daytona Beach, Fla. Mrs. Linn has been visiting in Virginia and South Carolina for several weeks before Mr. Linn met her in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds boarded a train for New York almost immediately after their return from California last week. They spent a few days at the Waldorf-Astoria and returned to Chicago on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Porter, who have been residing in California for several years, are at the Seneca hotel for an indefinite stay. They spent a few days last week on their ranch in Michigan.

Elinor Durbin and Betty Frey were seeing themselves as Helen Wallace saw them when I dropped in yesterday to see Miss Wallace's charcoal portraits at Paul Stone's studios. Others whose portraits are in the exhibition are Miss Margaret Chapman, Princess Rostislav, Miss Patty McCormick, Mrs. Ralph R. Richardson, Miss Betty Brown, Miss Lura Schreiner, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Miss Catherine Noyes, Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, Miss Theodora Shaw, Ynes de Sorianox, and handsome young Lon C. Hill Jr.

Miss Harris telephoned yesterday to say that Avery Brundage will talk on "The Olympic Games" on Friday night at 8:15 o'clock at the Webster hotel under the auspices of the athletic association of her school and that there would be no charge for admission and that all interested are invited to attend.

Invitations are in the mail for the Army and Navy ball to be held on the 30th at the Stevens hotel. Reservations have been made by Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Judson, Mrs. Waller Borden, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson.

Daughters of Indiana.

Madonna Center Benefit

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

In today's article I am going to try to convince you that a hand that played a little slam should only have been bid for game.

In the first place, this hand was played at no-trump declaration though it might have been played at spades. In the second place, since it was played at no-trump I wish to point out that bidding slams at no-trump is far more dangerous and far less possible to estimate than bidding slams at a trump declaration. And in the third place I should love to have one of my readers point out the safe way by which East and West can definitely arrive at a slam bid. This was the hand:

♥—6,5
♦—J,10,9,8
♣—Q,10,9,8,6,5

WEST [Dealer].	EAST.
♠—A,K,10,4	♠—Q,9,8,2
♥—A,K,7	♥—Q,4,3,2
♦—K,4,3	♦—Q,7,6,5

SOUTH.
♠—J,8,7,6
♥—J,10,9,8
♣—J,4,3

West dealt and opened the bidding with a game invitational bid of two spades. North passed. East bid three spades. South passed. West bid three no-trumps, to show East that he only had four of the spade suit. North passed. East, in spite of having four spades, thought the hand would play just as well at no-trump and, feeling that he had no greater strength to show, passed.

North opened the ♣ 10, dummy's Ace came up, South played the 3 and declarer the 2. Dummy then led the ♦ 5, which declarer took with the ♦ K, leading back the ♦ 4, which South took with the ace. South returned the ♣ J, which West took with the ♣ K. To the fifth trick declarer led the ♠ K and followed by leading the ♠ 4, which dummy took with the ♣ Q. Dummy returned the ♠ 9, South played the 8 and West finessed the 10. West [declarer] then led the ♠ A, dropping South's J. To the next trick declarer led the ♥ 7 which dummy overtook with the ♥ Q, leading back the ♥4 which declarer took with the ♥ K. At this point North held the ♠ 8, ♦ J, 10. Dummy held the ♥ 3 and ♦ Q, 7. Declarer held the ♥ A, ♣ 7, and ♦ 3.

Declarer now led the ♥ A and North finds himself squeezed. If he discards the ♣ 8 declarer will then take in the ♣ 7 in his own hand and the ♦ Q in his dummy. If, on the other hand, North discards a diamond declarer will lead the ♦ 3 to dummy's Q, clearing the suit and take his last trick with the ♦ 7 in dummy. Either way six odd — the game and three extra tricks. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH.
♥—Q,6,5,2
♦—A,K,9,8,7,2

WEST.	EAST.
♠—K,Q,10,6,5,4	♠—J,9,7,3
♥—J,4,3	♥—8,7
♦—3	♦—Q,6,5

♠—A,2
♥—A,K,10,9
♣—J,9,8,7

Bid and play this hand and compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

BY MARY MEADE.

Spring is surely the children's own season, with its wealth of foods that are so good for them. Raw vegetables, such as cabbage, carrots, celery, and lettuce, should have a prominent place in the diet of children. Phosphorus and iron are contained in green vegetables, as well as those famous vitamins that our parents didn't know about, and on which we lavish a good deal of time and energy.

In salads for children, honey dressings, which we talked about last fall, go a long way toward making friends of vegetables that are not too well liked. Also, lemon juice is preferable in a dressing, vinegar being something that is better left out of a child's diet.

Broiling, baking, steaming, and boiling are the preferred methods of preparing food for children. Frying is not barred, however, if it be skillfully done.

Tomato juice, which many of us are prone to consider rather a grown up beverage, is excellent for children, and can be given in place of the juice of citrus fruits, because its composition is similar.

And to complement the good work of vegetables in helping children to grow up successfully—milk! Health bulletins recommend a quart a day for children and a pint for adults. Particularly in these hard times, when many budgets are limited, milk should be the staple around which children's meals are planned. We have all heard countless times that milk is the most nearly perfect food, but it is a statement that will bear repeating. When other things have to be sacrificed, when vegetable variety has to be cut down, the maintenance of milk in the menu will preserve a large part of the requisites of balanced fare. Milk is the best source of calcium, so necessary to the growing child. It is a valuable source of protein, and its vitamin and mineral content is high.

I don't think there is as much trouble experienced in getting children to drink milk as some people would have us believe. Practically any well brought up youngster will down his quart a day and like it. But that quart is a minimum, and any other milk he consumes is all to the good. Use it in cooking his foods, feed him lots of custards, and encourage generous use of "half and half" on his cereal.

All milk doesn't come from a bottle, either. As you have probably noticed, I am in favor of using canned milk. It has more body to it, it can often be used in a recipe that calls for expensive cream, and, coming in cans as it does, one can always have a supply of it on hand.

Just to show that I'm not alone in this preference, they tell me that in the United States more than 1,250,000,000 cans of milk are used a year, which means that every day nearly three and a half million cans of milk are used, if you're interested in figures. Incidentally, the reason canned milk tastes the way it does, and not like fresh milk, is that, in removing the water from it, the milk sugar caramelizes, giving that cooked flavor. But in every one of those tall cans of milk there is the equivalent of the food value of a quart of fresh milk, willing to do its bit in helping your children outgrow their clothes.

Demonstrate Make-Up

Mrs. Samuel Davis Rowe and Miss Louise Neff looked unusually lovely in the fashion show given the other day for the benefit of Emerson house. Mrs. Rowe, who has prematurely gray hair, and Miss Neff with her glossy black hair, were perfect models for the presentation which demonstrated how make-up and gowns should harmonize. Home Garden Facts Told in New Booklet

Gives Information Needed by Amateurs.

BY PAUL POTTER.

While farmers are turning the furrows in the fields preparing for spring crops, the city man [or perhaps his wife] feels the same urge to be at the soil with a spade or a fork in his own little patch of ground at the rear of the yard.

As the dirt yields to physical exertion, the mind's eye carries a picture of juicy, crisp radishes, or a few rows of lettuce, beets and string beans that will taste so good a few weeks hence.

Anticipating more than the usual interest in home gardens in the Chicago area this spring, the farm and garden staff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has prepared an attractive and helpful booklet on the subject. It is called "The City Man's Vegetable Garden," and condenses in sixteen illustrated pages the basic facts for the amateur urban gardener.

A typical arrangement of the garden in a space 25 by 40 feet has been charted and explained to show how to obtain the most use of a small space. The best varieties of vegetables for this area, when and how to plant the seed, and other steps in care of the garden are explained in simple terms.

As a companion booklet to this, THE TRIBUNE also has just printed some valuable information on insects, diseases or other troubles that an amateur gardener might encounter. It is called "Trouble Shooting in the Vegetable Garden."

Either of these booklets may be had at any TRIBUNE Public Service office for 10 cents, or will be mailed upon receipt of 13 cents in stamps by THE TRIBUNE garden editor. The two booklets by mail are 23 cents.

The two vegtable garden booklets may be obtained with any one of these three other booklets: Favorite Trees of Chicagoland; Shrubbery for the Home Site, or The Care of City Trees for 25 cents, or 28 cents by mail. Other TRIBUNE publications of interest to gardeners are "Landscape Designs for Your Garden," 25 cents, or 32 cents by mail, and "Flower Gardening," 10 cents, or 13 cents by mail.

LITTLE GIRL WOULDN'T EAT

YESTERDAY she only toyed with her food—and of course Mother was a little concerned. But today, she has a bowl of Kellogg's Rice Krispies and milk—and just see the difference! Watch her dip right in with her spoon and enjoy every mouthful of that good, nourishing treat.

Kellogg's Rice Krispies actually crackle in milk or cream. The very sound fascinates youngsters. And how they love the flavor!

Serve for breakfast, lunch, —fine for the children's supper. So easy to digest, Rice Krispies invite restful sleep. How much better than many hot, heavy dishes.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This printed silk crêpe dress shows clever diagonal lines in the closing of the bodices. The skirt has a straight, slender appearance and is cut in gores that are slightly circular at the hem. This gives a long, flat line, much appreciated these days when slenderness is so important.

The pattern, 2656, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with 1⅛ yards of binding.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred: wrap it carefully], for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Paris Revives Pull-Over Dress and Bright Blouse for Sports

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—'Way back in immediate post-war days some clever woman, an American, designed a sleeveless, low-necked, pull-over dress for summer wear with blouses, and this design made a fortune for her. It is an extremely useful kind of frock for hot weather wear, but after a few seasons' heyday it disappeared from the stylish scheme and was only worn in the house, where fashion is not necessarily the master.

This spring, however, Paris revives this type of dress and makes it smart for sports wear again. One sees pull-over frocks with under blouses in some of the smartest dressmaking salons of the Rue de la Paix. They are made variously of silk or cotton.

The Lyolene dress, in our sketch, is one of these revived frocks, and is made of natural linen crash. The blouse is made of bright red and white cotton, the stripes worked to make a spiderweb yoke and puff sleeves with the pattern formed into chevrons.

This blouse is worn under the pull-over dress, which is made to fit the column of the body by three metal buttons that hold it close under the arms. Two of these nickel buttons fasten the dress at the top of the shoulders.

The skirt is flared at the front and back by three plaits, meeting at the bust of the blouse and flaring to the hem. They are stitched down to well below the hipline at the sides, and the center one all the way to the hem.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Sam Jones, veteran right hander and for years famous in the major leagues because of the manner in which he blooms in the spring, will do the pitching for the White Sox this afternoon in the American league opener at Comiskey park. He will be vieing against one of his five former American league employers, the St. Louis Browns, who probably will be led by Lefty Stewart, a gent who in the past has been most irksome to the Sox.

Jones was picked by Manager Lew Fonseca for the obvious reason that he believes Sam is qualified to defeat his former mates at this point in the season. The selection could not have been based on Sam's exhibition record, for Sam, like all the other Sox pitchers, established no spring exhibition record on the nine inning basis.

Works 14 Innings.

Jones pitched fourteen innings during the exhibition season. His longest span was four innings and his shortest two innings. He allowed only nine hits and four of these came in one inning last Thursday. Sam started a game in Louisville which was rained out in the third inning. The Sox made three runs in the first half and then the Colonels busted out in their half and went the Sox one better, with four runs all earned on four singles.

In the second inning, however, Jones retired the enemy in order, though he complained that he had suffered a slight sprain in his side in attempting to halt the first inning blast.

The game was not a legal contest and the statistics of the Louisville contest did not go in the records. Jones' showing in recorded spring games was:

Games, 4; innings pitched, 12; runs, 2; bases on balls, 3; strikeouts, 3; wild pitches, 0; hit batsmen, 0.

It Won't Be Too Hot Today.

But, as previously stated, Sam has a genius for being red hot in the spring. The fact that he slows up when the sun gets arduous is not a pertinent matter when it is considered that Sam's chore of the current moment is to defeat the St. Louis Browns in a baseball contest beginning today at 3 o'clock, when the sun will be in evidence but not burning down too much for Sam's comfort.

There will be much fun for the fan to observe in the opener this afternoon besides the gala doings that always characterize inaugurals. If everything goes through as expected, Sox fans in attendance will get to see Jack Hayes play second base as it should be played; they will see Carey Selph play third base in an unassuming but businesslike way that will please them; they will see Hal Anderson in center field going after everything that is in the general direction of center field.

You Know the Rest.

These are the new acts in the show which are almost certain to materialize. The fans are in a position to visualize the other acts—for Blue, Fonseca, Cissell, Fothergill, and Grube will be hanging around, performing just about as the fans have seen them perform in past seasons.

If anything happens to Stewart, and he is relieved by a righthander, there may be some shifting in the Sox lineup with Smead Jolley going back to the outfielding business in left field, and Johnny Watwood going to right. The two wings of the outfield form more uncertainty than all the rest of the team combined. In spring exhibition games Manager Fonseca never had his best outfield working together in any one game and it may be several weeks before he gets around to the best combination.

Plenty of Hits Promised.

Today, however, with himself, Anderson and Fothergill working, he will have a balance through which he should get some base hits, though the outfielding can't be so warm if either of the wing men is called to go after any wide soaring smacks. It looks as if Anderson will be out there to do the fielding and the boss and Round Robroy to do the hitting.

The weather outlook continued favorable though there was some indication that the temperature might not exceed the mark of 52 reached at 3 o'clock yesterday.

Station W-G-N to Broadcast Sox Opener Today

For the seventh successive year, W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast baseball. Bob Elson, W-G-N sports announcer, will give the details of the White Sox-St. Louis opening game from the press box at Comiskey park today. President William Harridge will speak over W-G-N before the game.

Every home game of the Cubs and Sox will be broadcast by Elson during the season and some of the more important games played by the two teams away from home also will be presented. Today's broadcast and the opening day ceremonies will start at 2:30 p. m. On other days the broadcast will start at 2:45.

Cards Trade Hafey to Reds for 2 Players

St. Louis, Mo., April 11.—[Special.]—Chick Hafey, heavy hitting St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, who refused to sign a 1932 contract because of salary difficulties, today was traded to the Cincinnati Reds. Benny Frey, right handed pitcher, and Harvey Hendrick, first baseman, will go to the Cardinals in the deal.

Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals, who made the announcement, declined to disclose whether or not cash was used in the deal. "You can draw your own conclusions," he told reporters.

Hafey, who led the National league in hitting last year, demanded $17,000 for this season, it was reported, and when the Cardinals offered him only $13,000 he announced that unless he received the sum he named he would not wear a St. Louis uniform.

Hafey came to the Cardinals in 1923 as a pitcher, but when he showed power in batting it was decided to move him to the outfield. He played left field regularly in the Cardinals' four championship years.

Frey, a regular Cincinnati hurler, who is 25 years old, pitched in 34 games last year, losing 12 and winning 8

HOOVER, 18,000 MORE SHIVER AS SENATORS WIN

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—Baseball put on one of its finest shows—an extra inning pitchers' battle—to usher in the 1932 major league season today before the nation's chief executive and first lady.

For the first time in the four years Herbert Hoover as President has been tossing out a new white ball for the inaugural game, the Washington team won its opening start, overcoming the Boston Red Sox, 1 to 0, in the tenth inning on a walk followed by a rousing double by Heinie Manush.

Through inning after inning the rival righthanders—Danny MacFayden for Boston and Alvin Crowder for the Senators—battled on even terms with both teams giving midseason support on a diamond damp and slow from recent rains.

Each Yields 7 Hits.

Both MacFayden and Crowder yielded seven hits. The Senator outpitched his rival, however, striking out seven to one for MacFayden and not allowing a base on balls.

Despite the cool weather, nearly 18,000 persons were in the stands.

President Hoover did not see the Senators win. After throwing the first ball of the season and then stamping his feet against the cold for seven innings, he returned to the White House when the score was 0 to 0.

Ball Escapes Umpire.

The chief executive performed his part of the game with considerable gusto. Surrounded by many members of his cabinet, and their wives, he tossed out the first ball with such strength that it sailed far over the head of Umpire Hildebrand, who was waiting to receive it. Hildebrand had the entire Boston team as a supporting cast, however, and one of the players lined in front of the presidential box made a neat one hand catch, later returning the ball to the chief executive. Score:

$0.00 GOOD PAY, INCLUDING BONUS, FOR MR. SHARKEY

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 11.—As it seems to me, Jack Sharkey fouled Max Schmeling the last time they fought, thereby doing the customers out of their money's worth and therefore, now that they are planning to fight that one all over again in New York in June, Sharkey ought to give his services free.

If this had been Sharkey's only foul he still would have been giving the patrons little, or nothing, in return for much, but his offense against good business practice might have been condoned on the ground that accidents will happen. But you may recall that was not his only foul. Not many weeks before he fouled Schmeling he had fouled fainting Philip Scott in an expensive production in Miami.

Sharkey sets himself up as an expert in his line of work and a high priced expert is supposed to take the responsibility for his own accidents. Still, the patrons are a forgiving lot and they would have overlooked one foul. In fact, their very presence at the Schmeling fight in New York showed how forgiving they were. Then he fouled Schmeling and that, I would remind you, was the last prize fight that drew excessive gates receipts.

Some Fans' Memories Short.

The customer is quick to anger but generally his memory is short and he cools out quickly. He had been imposed upon hundreds of times and to the extent of millions of dollars by clinchers, stallers, fakers and foulers and the members of the profession had come to believe that the cash patron would go on forgiving forever.

I knew customers, though, who attended the fouling of Max Schmeling that evening in the Yankee stadium, paying their $17 or their $27.50 each for tickets, who came away vowing never to spend another dollar for professional prize fight tickets and who have kept their word. Some of them have directed their interest to the amateurs, such as the Golden Gloves fighters, who always give the customer about $5 worth of entertainment for every nickel of cash investment, according to the old heavyweight championship valuation, and do not deliver one foul in a hundred rounds of fighting. Others quit going to fights.

Suspend Rule Before Bout.

When Sharkey fouled Schmeling the New York prize fight commissioners, who are a political body, had a rule of their own making which held that any fighter who fouled another should receive pay only for the rounds fought

N. Y. Garden to Build $400,000 Boxing Stadium

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—Excavating was started today in Long Island City for the foundation of a steel and concrete stadium, to be constructed by the Madison Square Garden corporation. The stadium will be built at a cost of about $400,000 and will be completed in time for the Schmeling-Sharkey heavyweight championship boxing bout on June 16.

All of the Garden's outdoor boxing matches will be staged in this new arena, which will have a seating capacity of nearly 80,000 for boxing. The Garden also hopes to schedule many football and soccer games for the stadium. In winter the arena may be used as a skating rink.

Plans for the stadium have been under consideration for several months. The arena will embody numerous improvements. Every row of seats will be elevated above the row in front, even those on the so-called flat, so that an unobstructed view can be had from any spot.

It was learned some weeks ago that no provision had been made by the Garden to use either of the New York baseball parks for the outdoor boxing bouts this year.

According to figures released by the statistical department of the Garden, approximately $500,000, or more than the new arena will cost, had been paid to the New York ball clubs by the Garden in the last five years for use of the ball parks for boxing purposes.

As a result of the new move by the Garden the ball parks now are open for use by other boxing promoters and several are understood to be in the field.

BENNY LEONARD BIT CLUMSY, BUT WINS HIS BOUT

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Benny Leonard, retired undefeated lightweight champion, continued his comeback campaign at the St. Nicholas arena tonight by handing Buster Brown of Baltimore a trouncing in ten rounds. Leonard weighed 151 pounds, Brown 145½.

Leonard still showed a distressing tendency to trip over his own feet, but he had no trouble outpointing Brown. After a shaky first round, Benny took eight of the last nine rounds, Brown succeeding in holding the veteran even in the fourth.

Lewie Hardage Named Oklahoma Grid Coach

Norman, Okla., April 11.—(AP)—Lewie W. Hardage, assistant football coach at Vanderbilt university, was selected as head football coach at the University of Oklahoma by the athletic council here tonight.

Cincinnati, O., April 11.—[Special.]—Cincinnati is all set for another baseball opening. Depressing times, chilly atmosphere and a tail end team cannot dampen the enthusiasm of the inhabitants when a baseball season is at hand. It's their one big day of the year and the reports are that Redland field will be jammed tomorrow when the Chicago Cubs meet the Reds in the first combat of the 1932 campaign.

The Cubs arrived here this afternoon, too late to engage in a final drill but with a feeling of confidence that they are ready to go and that they are to have a big year. The Reds have been back from their spring training jaunt for some days with a remodeled team that has created new interest among the fans.

Root Vs Johnson.

Charley Root, ace of the staff, has been assigned to do the pitching for the Cubs. Sy Johnson, sturdy right hander, will work for the Reds.

In no other city of the major leagues perhaps, is a baseball opening staged with quite the flourish that it is here. For years the crowd has been limited only by the capacity of the park, which is around 30,000. Officials of the club announced tonight that, as usual, the reserved seats have been sold.

The sale for opening day here begins the day after Christmas. Only fair weather is needed to assure a capacity throng for the general admission seats.

Hot Dogs, Near Beer Ready.

It may be that on the second day of the season, only a handful of fans will turn out, but on opening day, everybody goes. Redhots, boiled ham, loaves of rye bread, and cases of near beer will be hauled to the ball park in the morning. Bill the Slasher, who has handled the eating concession at the park since the time of Garry Herrmann, was prepared to feed a multitude.

While the Cubs were in fine physical trim to open the race, they are starting under a handicap because of the absence of Woody English, their shortstop, a firebrand on the team in both attack and defense. Woody is out with a fractured finger and may be missing for three or four weeks. His place at short is to be filled by young Bill Jurges.

One Veteran in Infield.

Only one veteran, Captain Grimm, will be on the infield. Bill Herman, a rookie, is at second. Jurges, a rookie, is at short. Stanley Hack, a rookie, is at third. But in the playing of these young men lies the hope of Chicago to be a contender for the pennant.

Two veterans, Kiki Cuyler and Riggs Stephenson, will be in the outfield. The third man, Vince Barton, who, like Herman, is considered a recruit despite a short term of service last season.

The veteran Gabby Hartnett will catch. What the Cubs may accomplish with four rookies in the lineup remains to be seen. It is expected they will make mistakes. But their speed and ambitious efforts may more than make up for them.

Veeck Is Optimistic.

"We have a different ball team this year," he said. "It is a team with speed as compared to the Cubs team of recent years. Speed counts in these days. I think the fans in Chicago will

Joe Voss Belters Carry Home $925.

Detroit, Mich., April 11.—[Special.]—Chisago bowlers carried home a large share of the cash prizes from the 32d annual tournament of the American Bowling congress, which closed here tonight. The Joe Voss Belters led the five men entries from the Chicago district with a 3,046 score for third honors and a prize of $925.

J. Sublosky and E. Zajac held second place as the final games were bowled in the doubles with 1,350 and a prize of $490. F. Corken and A. Hein were the only other Chicago pair to land in the first ten. They finished sixth with 1,298 and received $450.

Drs Eighth in Singles.

Charley Drs led the Chicago delegation in the singles division with 704, for which he was handed $265. E. Krems earned a tie for tenth with 700 and took home a check for $252.50. Two Chicagoans were in the upper ten in the all-events, J. Burke shooting 1,940 for fourth place and $146 and L. Levine 1,913 for eighth place and $112.

The five man competition came to an end last night with the Jefferson Clothiers of Dayton, O., leading with a total of 3,108, which was good for five diamond medals and $1,000 in cash.

Milwaukeeans Win Doubles.

Charley Daw and Frank Benkovic, Milwaukee, topped the doubles with a total of 1,358, winning $500 as well as two diamond medals. Five teams hit better than 1,300 in this event. Otto Nitschke of Cleveland led the singles competition with a 731 total, winning $300 and a diamond medal. The scoring of the solo event was sensational, ten men going over 700.

Hugh Stewart's 1,980 total in the all-events topped Al. Rudinsky of Dover, N. J., by seven pins. The Cincinnati bowler won $170 and a diamond medal. Chicago prize list:

Banders Suspend Apples to Snare Wary Waxwings

BY BOB BECKER.

Educating waxwings to eat apples so that they will enter a trap sounds like a light occupation for the month of April but bird banders have to resort to all kinds of tricks in order to get their birds. A few days ago when we visited the yard of W. I. Lyon of Waukegan, Ill., the leading bander of birds in Chicagoland, we found that he had resorted to an apple cafeteria in order to fool the waxwings, with the result that he had this fruit "growing" on everything from lilac bushes to mulberry plants.

Lyon, the head of the Bird Banding association, has a record of 42,000 birds trapped, banded and then released. His backyard is filled with all kinds of ground and tree trunk traps with which he catches the migrating birds. These are tagged with a small metal band and then are freed unharmed.

The other morning when we visited him he told us of his efforts to trap Bohemian waxwings, numbers of which have been roaming through the middle west during the last few months. This species is quite a prize to the bird bander, so he wanted to catch some if possible. Therefore he resorted to the apple decoy. But for some time the waxwings refused to fall for this lure.

The curious thing about their reaction to apples was that, although they didn't like fresh apples at first they would go for a mushy, decayed specimen. But the waxwings finally were educated to the best grade of fruit and Lyon was successful in outwitting them.

Kilbourne's Right Stops Hansen in 1st

Fight Decisions

BY WILFRID SMITH.

One right hand punch to Haakon Hansen's jaw was all Jack Kilbourne needed last night at White City to end the bout within two minutes of the first round. That blow dropped the Norwegian to the floor for nine seconds. When Hansen arose with difficulty and tottered helpless to the ropes Referee Sammy Ford stopped the fight.

Nineteen hundred paid to see the bouts. Women were admitted without charge. The net receipts were $2,507.

And Hansen Collapses.

The semi-windup of five rounds brought the veteran middleweight, Shuffle Callahan, to the White City ring once more. The Shuffler went the distance but lost decisively to young Costas Vassis of Greece.

Vassis was charitable, for he clinched and held when Callahan's slow motion punches offered poor excuse for such defensive tactics. Vassis dropped Callahan for a one count in the fifth round and in the second gave the Chicago Heights fighter a dental bill by knocking out a row of teeth with a punch to the face.

Callahan Gets Lone Chance.

In the first bout Jack Sharkey, Chicago, 137, defeated Johnny Lullo, also of Chicago, 140, in four rounds. Jimmy Brock and Jack Ripp fought four rounds to a draw. Both are of Chicago and met at 150 pounds. Joe Barlow, Chicago, 147½, beat Hamburg Wiskany, Germany, 152½, in four rounds. Barlow knocked Wiskany down twice for short counts.

Boxing Notes

Buck Everett, former Golden Gloves champion, will finish boxing today at the Arcade gymnasium for a ten round encounter with Tiger Jack Fox at Michigan City, Ind., Thursday. Everett also is matched to battle Marion Matuszak, Chicago heavyweight, at Evansville, Ind., Monday.

Tony Herrera, Chicago lightweight, returns to Chicago Sunday from El Paso, Tex. He will start training next week for a match April 29. Ray Trambile has postponed a trip to Pittsburgh until after his bouts at Terre Haute, Ind., next Monday and Indianapolis April 26. Jack Charnez will be his opponent at Terre Haute.

CHICAGO WOMAN ROLLS 658; SETS 2 PIN RECORDS

St. Louis, April 11.—(AP)—Marie Warmbier, of Chicago, set two new records tonight and took the lead in the singles and all events of the women's international bowling congress tournament, with a score of 658 to establish a new record for the singles and a total of 1,807 to shatter the all events record.

Henrietta Wilman and A. Weller, also of Chicago, rolled a total of 1,155 to take the lead in the doubles, and give Chicago bowlers three first places.

Mrs. Warmbier's scores for the team, doubles and singles were 548-601-658. Her scores for the singles were 211-225-222, only one pin more than was rolled by her teammate, Dorothy McQuade, who also broke the old record of 650 made by Miss Myrtle Schulz of St. Louis last year.

Miss McQuade's score put her into second place in the singles and she also went into second place in the all events, with a total of 1,704. Her scores in the singles were 219-209-229.

F. Frettin and Mrs. Warmbier took second place in the doubles, with a total of 1,124.

The Chicago women's sensational bowling left Miss Marguerite Ely, of Omaha, trailing in third place in the singles, with a score of 622, and fourth place in the all events, with a total of 1,696.

Miss Wilman was third in the all events, with 1,716.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY SMEAD JOLLEY.

SMEAD JOLLEY.

I was 4 years old when I decided, at my home near Wesson, Ark., that I was going to be a major league ball player. This may seem like an early age, but bear in mind that boys develop fast in Arkansas. At that time my pappy, W. B. Jolley, had 900 acres of land under cultivation, to say nothing of six sons, of whom I was the youngest. The six sons and a dozen colored boys, all of whom should have been doing chores on the farm, spent most of the time playing baseball.

Our league met no great opposition except on Sundays. My mother thought, and still thinks, that baseball on the Sabbath is a device of the devil. When I was 6 years old I agreed with her one Sunday. But I didn't go so far as to go to Sunday school. I went fishing with two of our colored boys and we caught forty pounds of fish. When I took the fish home my mother said fish caught on Sunday weren't fit to eat. So she buried them and I resumed playing baseball seven days a week.

By 1919 I was a pretty good ball player, even better than my five brothers. And my pappy had become a great ball fan. In the spring of 1919 my father and I took a train to Little Rock, where Manager Kid Eberfeldt was trying out a lot of rookies. My father told the Kid that I probably was the best third baseman in the world, but I confided in him that I was a great pitcher. I stuck around for nine days, despite an epidemic of smallpox, before I got a chance to pitch. The tenth day I pitched a seven inning shutout and the eleventh day I was fired—an unconditional release they called it.

Flushed with this success, I says to myself, "To hell with the farm, regardless." This determination won me a reward and from then on my rise was rapid. Although I knew at the age of 4 that I was going to be a big league ball player, I haven't decided yet as to whether I'd rather be an outfielder, an infielder, a pitcher, or a catcher. I've tried them all in organized ball, but the only thing I've decided definitely is that I can sock that ball if the pitchers will only pitch to me.

PURDUE BEATS WABASH, 3 TO 1, ON ONE SINGLE

Lafayette, Ind., April 11.—[Special.]—Scoring two runs in the third inning without a hit, Purdue defeated Wabassh, 3 to 1, this afternoon to make it two straight. Arrangements have been completed to continue the series for two more days, the teams to meet here again tomorrow afternoon and at Wabash on Wednesday.

La Follette, the Wabash pitcher, allowed Purdue only one hit, a single by Frank Duff, but in the third inning walked three straight men, two of whom scored on some slow fielding.

like this team and I think it will be the surprise team in the National league race."

"We have a strong pitching staff that classes with the best," he commented. "There are youngsters on the team who will make mistakes. They all do. But they have speed. The team hasn't the punch of some of the teams of the past, but with good pitching and speed on the bases we ought to win. The games will be closer than in the past. The ball isn't so lively and those teams that depend solely upon hitting will not get along so well. There will be more base stealing and more bunting. It will often be a battle for one run. Our players are the kind who can do things to get a run when one run is needed.

Fans Will Like Hack.

"We will miss Woody English, but he'll be back in there in a short time. We have a great young prospect in Stanley Hack. He was our best hitter in the spring exhibition games and I think he'll hit just the same in the season. The fans will like him.

"I look for a close race. St. Louis and New York are the teams to be beaten. I don't fear Brooklyn or Pittsburgh. If we can beat the Cardinals and the Giants, we'll be in the next world's series."

Because of the absence of English, Hornsby has moved the catcher up into sixth position in the batting order, regardless of whether it is Hartnett or Hemsley. Grimm follows in seventh place and Jurges bats down next to the pitcher.

SCHAEFER BACK IN 18.2 BALKLINE PLAY THURSDAY

Jake Schaefer, world's 18.2 balkline champion, will make his first appearance in balkline competition in more than a year when he opens an 1,800 point match against David McAndless of Chicago at Mussey's Wabash Avenue billiard room Thursday afternoon. The match will be played in six blocks of 300 points each.

The Roseland Recreation team triumphed over Stevenson and Schalk Recreation, 15 games to 1, in a women's pocket billiard team match, according to the results announced yesterday by Miss Gene Gayl, director of the tournaments. The Roseland team was made up of Juanita Fry, Grace Ballard and Irene Brosius and Mrs. Amalia Nahser. The Stevenson and Schalk team included Margaret Bluivas, Eileen Smith, Victoria Bazar and Lenney Seils.

Charles Summerall of St. Louis and Coy Julian of Springfield, Ill., won yesterday in the all star pocket billiard tournament at the Woods Billiard room, 54 North Dearborn street. Summerall defeated J. Simon of Pittsburgh, 100 to 77, in 28 innings. Julian defeated W. Pettifer of Chicago, 100 to 70 in 19 innings.

OLD TIMERS TO PAY TRIBUTE TO FRED PFEFFER

The Old Timers' Baseball association yesterday at a special meeting in the Great Northern hotel appointed a committee of twenty-one members to arrange a ceremonial service for Fred Pfeffer, second baseman for the Chicago White Stockings in the late '80s, who died Saturday of heart disease in his home at 2928 Wilson avenue. He was 72 years old and a charter member of the baseball organization.

Funeral services will be held at Our Lady of Mercy church tomorrow, and burial will be in All Saints' cemetery.

Penn Will Send Only Varsity to Poughkeepsie

Philadelphia, Pa., April 11.—(AP)—For the first time since the Poughkeepsie regattas were started in 1914 the University of Pennsylvania will be represented this year by just one crew—the varsity heavyweight, C. Louis Borie, 3d, chairman of the Penn rowing committee, said a curtailed crew budget was the reason in making the announcement today. In the past regattas Penn always has entered junior varsity and freshman crews.

Londos Annexes Kampfer to Londosland in 39 Minutes

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Londosland, that strange country which has been expanding with amazing rapidity these last two years, now threatens to become an empire. James (Personality) the First, king of this peculiar monarchy, added another conquest to his domain on the Coliseum battleground last night, to the divided appreciation of no less than 10,000 of the groan and grimace society.

JIM LONDOS.

The victim of Jim Londos last night was Hans Kampfer, the German youth about whose talents even Dr. John Krone, to whom each spectator in the house was a personal guest, had been wary during the anxious weeks prior to the struggle. Why Dr. Krone should have been dubious about the outcome of the clash is a problem, for Londos' methods are by now familiar to him, and the king deviated nary a bit from them in disposing of Kampfer.

Londos deposited Kamper on the mat with a reverse bodylock in 39 minutes and 7 seconds, less than half of the time required under the new system, which consists of one fall with a 90 minute time limit rather than the old two act playlet with intermission.

Kampfer Has His Followers.

At least one-fifth of the house was composed of Teutonic supporters of Hans, who clamored with great gusto throughout the battle of brawn and brain, congregating in the south end of the auditorium to boo Londos at his entrance, during his lines, and considerably after his curtain calls.

Londos made his entrance to the accompaniment of a rousing salvo of boos, while Kampfer stood shyly in the midst of a forest of posy hampers, apparently contributed by admiring friends. This perfect example of German manhood caused Londos to take on one of those "Well, folks, this is going to be a hard nut to crack" expressions, a number hitherto excluded from his repertoire. This inspired the German section of the audience to cheer Hans, even during the split agony, which, it might be pointed out, is being overplayed, and particularly when Hans up and hurled James to the floor outside the ropes, which was treason, no less.

His Majesty Turns Tables.

After about 36 minutes Hans commenced to toss his majesty about the ring and the more cynical among those present began in turn to put on their hats and ulsters. This hunch that Londos soon would turn the tables was verified shortly after when James applied the deadly reverse lock and Hans relaxed long enough to lose.

The semi-windup brought together Pat O'Shocker, a large Irishman, and Gino Garibaldi, recently a Londos annexation. They struggled through the full time limit of 30 minutes, with Gino winning.

Abe's Art Rivals Londos.

But it was the match preceding them which drew more attention than any other on the program. A stunted Jewish party entitled Abe Coleman, with a personal chassis resembling that of Hack Wilson, put to earth one Hans Bauer with a series of flying tackles in 21:07, and in so doing displayed an artistic verve that rivaled Londos'.

FALLING HAIR

EIGHTY-FIVE per cent of all cases of hair loss result from two causes—(1) lack of nourishment for the growing hair and (2) local scalp disorders.

Both of these causes of baldness can be eliminated by Thomas treatment. It stimulates the dormant sources of nourishment (increases the blood supply in the scalp) and overcomes abnormal scalp conditions, such as dandruff.

If you have any of these aggravating symptoms of approaching baldness—dry or oily hair, itchy scalp, falling hair, or thin hair—consult a Thomas specialist today. No charge will be made for the consultation or scalp examination. He'll show you how Thomas treatment is ending dandruff, stopping hair fall, and growing hair for thousands of others, and how it can produce the same results for you.

JACKSON PARK BECOMES TURF TRAINING SCENE

Thoroughbreds Gallop in Early Morning Hours.

BY FRENCH LANE.

If the horses in the Rosehome stable win a lot of races on the Chicago tracks this season the bridle paths in and about Chicago's great parks are likely to be crowded with thoroughbreds about this time next year.

Ben Rosenheim of the south side, who owns the Rosehome racers and who has been sending them to Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and other southern points for a half dozen years to do spring training, decided he would condition his horses this year right in his own back yard.

At around 4 o'clock every morning for the last two months a band of eight race horses in charge of Trainer Sam Hutcherson, each with a jockey or an exercise boy in the saddle, have appeared on the bridle paths at Jackson Park. And for the hour or two that followed they have gone through training paces very much like the horses quartered at Belmont in New York, at Churchill Downs in Kentucky and at all the other race horse training camps have been conditioned.

Mr. Rosenheim thinks his new training program has been successful, but says the racing that is to follow on the Chicago courses will tell the story.

"I hope and I honestly believe my horses have done as well galloping and breezing over the Jackson Park bridle paths as they would have done in the south," he said last night. "Maybe I am wrong and will go back to the southern training idea next year. But it has been a lot of fun trying to get them in condition here and it certainly has been the most economical way of getting horses ready for the races that has ever come to my attention."

The owner of the Rosehome stable got the idea of training his horses at home about the time the Chicago season closed on the last day of October last year. He rented a spacious stable located about three blocks from Jackson park and not far from his own home.

He sent a surveyor out to the bridle paths to mark off a half mile straightaway over which his horses could breeze. When a horse breezes he steps out and runs just about as fast as he feels like running.

Then the surveyor was asked to mark off a two and a half mile strip around the winding bridle paths over which the horses could jog or gallop or do whatever the trainer ordered.

It is over these two courses on which the Rosehome stable horses have been brought up to the races. A lot of wise trainers may laugh at the idea of training a race horse in a public course. But didn't a lot of trainers laugh at the way Phar Lap was trained for the Agua Caliente handicap?

Didn't Disturb Equestrians.

"Did your training activities disturb the other folks who wanted to use the Jackson park bridle paths?" Mr. Rosenheim was asked.

WALKER RUSHES TRAINING; SAYS HE'LL WEIGH 170

Mickey Walker will weigh within a few ounces of 170 pounds when he faces King Levinsky April 29 at the Chicago Stadium, according to word received yesterday from Manager Jack Kearns. This indicated that Walker is growing into the heavyweight class, although he has been battling big fellows for the last year.

Walker is at Madam Bey's training camp at Summit, N. J., where Kearns has mapped a rigid course of conditioning for him. Mickey began work scaling 176 pounds, due to his long layoff.

With Walker fighting at 170 pounds he will be giving Levinsky only about 20 or 25 pounds.

Luther Wins 10 Inning Game from Iowa, 7-6

Decorah, Ia., April 11.—[Special.]—Luther won a 10 inning contest, the first of a two game series, from University of Iowa today, 7 to 6. The Norsemen tied the score at 4 apiece in the fifth and at 6 all in the ninth. Aase, Luther pitcher, scored the winning run on Stenehjem's bunt. Capt. Nelson, Hawkeye catcher, hit a home run.

Baltimore, Md., April 11.—[Special.]—Chestnut Oak, fleet sprinter in the stable of John B. Ryan, son of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, won the George Washington Bicentennial trophy race at Bowie here this afternoon, beating Avalon by a nose in a stirring finish.

Making his first start of the year, Chestnut Oak lined up at the barrier with a band of the fleetest horses quartered here. He left the post fast and when he had opened up a lead of two lengths on his opponents Jockey Snider took him under restraint and he was never headed. He had to be shaken up in the last few yards to withstand the late challege of Avalon, which finished running fastest of all.

Soupcon was always with the leaders and saved third money while the Kentucky veteran Pigeon Hole, which was heavily backed, ran a dull race and finished last. The time was 1:13 2-5. In the mutuels Chestnut Oak paid $7.80 for a $2 ticket.

Mrs. Hertz' Horse Wins.

The yellow and black jacket of Mrs. John Hertz of Chicago was carried to victory for the first time this year in the opening race by the 2 year old Animate. The daughter of Stimulus-Straight Shot forced the pace all the way and got up in the final strides to win by a length from Blazing Crump with Mintogee, the favorite, third. Animate had been overlooked in the betting and paid $19.40 for $2.

E. R. Bradley's four year old filly, Chichu, battled her way to a close victory in the sixth race. Deedie was second and Aldershot, the favorite, third. Jockey Tank Mills took much out of Aldershot, getting to the front too quickly, and went wide at the turn, giving Chichu the rail. The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:51 1-5. The winner paid $23.10.

Ladino Easy Victor.

The second division of the district line purse engaged several Kentucky derby and Preakness candidates. Ral Parr's Ladino, a Derby candidate, made a show of his field, winning by three and a half lengths from Walter J. Salmon's Brave and Bold. Two lengths further away was Mrs. C. Crane's Ladfield in third place. Indian Runner finished fourth.

Ladfield is pointing for the Preakness and Indian Runner probably will start in the Derby. The time was 1:07 2-5.

BASEBALL OPENING.

FOR the first time in several years, Chicago's White Sox and Cubs open the baseball season without shout of definite pennant claim by either band of partisans. What shouts emanate from the north side are prompted more by loyalty and hope than by actual mathematical probability.

This condition is not new to the south side where the St. Louis Browns open against the White Sox, who have a new president and a new manager. Not since the ill fated "Black Sox" of 1919 and that part of 1920 before the eight "Black Sox" adjudged conspirators in the world series against Cincinnati were read out of baseball, have south side fans looked upon a really great baseball team in home uniform.

It is something of a novelty to loyal Cub fans to be so unanimously waived out of flag possibilities by outside critics. It was only three years ago that the then Joe McCarthy clan won the pennant, only to lose the world title test to the Philadelphia Athletics. Relative to other teams, the Cubs, probably, are not as strong now as then.

Such is the situation as viewed in the cold analysis of neutral observers. Let us then offer a few cheery observations from a partisan basis. In 1931, the Sox finished eighth. They certainly can finish no lower than that. Yet that eighth was only six and one-half games away from the fifth place of St. Louis, not a wide gap with any improvement.

President Lou Comiskey is taking an active interest in his team. Harry Grabiner, his assistant, who has grown up with the Sox, retains enthusiasm despite the reverses of recent years. Both hope to rehabilitate the White Sox in a period of years as a memory to the late Charles A. Comiskey, who never recovered from the shock of 1919 and whose failing health in recent years prevented him from giving personal attention to his club.

Now about the Cubs. It seems granted there will be good pitching, better than in 1931, good defense in the infield and at least fair defense in the outfield on the average. Our weakness is supposed to be at bat. If true, that is serious for a pennant contender. Yet if pitchers are doing well, a team does not require as many hits as when hurlers are wobbly. It's not a good argument for a long season of 154 games, but it's an important consideration.

This writer well recalls Fielder Jones' "Hitless Wonders," who by virtue of superlative moundsmen, won the American league pennant in 1906, and then for the world and city title beat perhaps the greatest Cub machine of all time.

If those Cub pitchers do as well as expected, it would not take much batting improvement to take them from a generally rated third place outfit to a genuine pennant menace rather than possibility. That's what we're hoping for, and so, of course, are you.

Unser Fritz Passes.

Fred Pfeffer, known to baseball followers of the late '80's and early '90's as Unser Fritz, has passed at the ripe age of 72 years. Pfeffer was one of the few remaining from that old Anson régime, in which he was the keystone of the original "stonewall infield," a name since applied to many sets of keen infielders. So far as we know, Billy Sunday, the evangelist, and Dalrymple, are the only remaining survivors.

Not a great batter in the sense that Cap Anson and some of the others were, Pfeffer was a wonderful fielder and keen on the bases. After his retirement from baseball through injury to his arm, Pfeffer lived in Chicago until his death. Of late years, he has been in charge of press stands at race tracks. There were duties to be performed and need for such service, but Pfeffer held the position principally because he had once been Unser Fritz.

Baseball players did not receive large salaries in Pfeffer's prime. Later business ventures added no accumulation for his later years. Former friends are making the funeral arrangements. His widow, we are told, is left in destitute circumstances. This may suggest something to baseball fans of olden and present time. Any communications along that line sent to this department will reach their destination.

A. A. U. Swim Titles at Stake in Five Events

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Championships in five events will be decided in the Central A. A. U. swimming and diving meet tomorrow night at the Medinah Athletic club.

The outstanding event on the schedule is the low board diving test for senior men, in which Jim Marrian and Bud Marron, University of Chicago; Edward Stulik, Midwest Athletic club, and James Wilkie and Ken Willard, Northwestern university, will compete.

Five divers from the Illinois Women's Athletic club will vie for the honors in the low board diving event for junior women. The girls are Jane Frye, Helen Kuick, Rose Augustin, Evelyn Bracken and Marian Mansfield. Jane Frye is the most promising entrant in this group, and is one of the potential Olympic stars of the club.

The 100 yard free style for junior women will have in competition Elizabeth Henry and Helen Bulchunis, of the Illinois Women's Athletic club; Claudia Eskert, Shawnee Country club; Lorraine Sisk, Blackhawk Park, and Jean Abrams, Jewish People's institute.

Entered in the 220 yard breast stroke for senior men will be Don Horn, F. Lennox and C. Taylor, all from Northwestern, and Dan Flaruset of Chicago.

The 500 yard free style for junior men attracted only two entries, R. Dehinka and J. Miller, both from Northwestern university. These boys have been training together for the past three months.

The officials for the meet will be Fred Burkholder, Frank Blankley, George Belling, Harry Keaton, Fred Stresau, and Clark Leach.

On Past Fights He Owes Fans Money.

before the round in which the foul occurred. If that rule had been enforced against Sharkey, the customers, of course would not have received any refund, but the money at least would have been withheld from the fighter who thwarted them of the satisfaction of a true contest. There would have been some vindicative satisfaction in that.

However, in a quiet way, before the fighters took the ring it was decided not to enforce this rule in this case, which was a strange decision considering here was a man in the ring who had only recently created a scandalous scene in a bout with Fainting Philip in Florida.

Nevertheless, the rule was rescinded especially for this occasion and Sharkey fouled Schmeling and got his money, none of which he ever offered to turn back to the patrons.

On the Other Hand.

But I am sure that if Sharkey were to buy himself another of the $165 suits which have been his fad since he became a rich prize fighter and upon trying to wear the same should discover that the pants were made of burlap and the coat of cheese cloth, he would return it to the tailor in great haste and indignation and demand that he be done right by. Moreover, he would be done right by, and would receive not only a good suit, but the tailor's profound regrets and apologies.

It is said that the Garden corporation intends to ask the customers for a top price of $27.50 and for other prices in proportion for this bout in June, and this gives me doubt that the Garden firm keeps in very close touch with business conditions generally. Naturally, one hopes the patrons will buy the tickets at these prices, not for the sake of the Garden firm, which is a soulless corporation, nor for the sake of the fighters, who ought to be glad of a chance to fight for $10 an hour six nights a week, at which rate they would be overpaid, but merely because that would show that the customers still had a lot of nonessential money. But I doubt that the sale of tickets will be brisk at these rates.

He Ought to Fight Free.

They could charge much less and sell more tickets if Sharkey were to be required to fight this bout free, or, more properly, to make good in this fight for the money paid him on account of the other one.

But, of course, even if he were to receive no payment in June, he would not be fighting free. He got his pay two years ago and he should be glad of a chance to fight for the title on any terms, considering that Mickey Walker, a fat middleweight, beat him last summer in a bout that was called a draw.

NEW STUDY REVEALS TENANTS' READING ★ HABITS—SHOWS HOW TO GET BEST RESULTS ★

REAL ESTATE agents and landlords can now work with the latest facts regarding the newspapers to which tenants refer when hunting for apartments.

3 TO 1 PREFERENCE

Three tenants prefer the Tribune as an apartment-to-rent directory to every one that turns to the second newspaper! Nineteen prefer the Tribune to every one that turns to the third newspaper! Twenty-five to every one that prefers the fourth!

This decisive Tribune lead was registered by tenants in apartment buildings with rents ranging from $25 to $275—the majority being between $40 and $75.

The questionnaire

HOW THE FACTS WERE FOUND

Recently, an investigation was made into the reading habits of tenants of apartments. The object was to find out to which newspaper's want ad section Chicago tenants would refer when hunting for apartments.

Trained investigators took every precaution to secure an accurate, unbiased record. The tenants surveyed lived in buildings in 19 different residential neighborhoods and two suburbs. The buildings selected were taken from advertisements which had run in the want ad sections of various Chicago newspapers.

Some of the tenants of these buildings were interviewed by telephone. Others answered mail questionnaires. The replies show 76% of the tenants prefer the Tribune; 22% prefer a second newspaper; 4% the third, and 3% the fourth. (A few persons named more than one newspaper.)

The total preference for the Tribune was practically triple that for all other newspapers combined.

CHICAGO'S MOST POPULAR NEWSPAPER

The Tribune has long been the most popular newspaper in Chicago. People like to read it. They like its vigor, its editorial brilliance, its features. The Tribune's circulation in metropolitan Chicago outstrips in spectacular manner that of every other newspaper.

Because the Tribune is the newspaper preferred by readers for its news and features, it gets the best results for advertisers. For years it has led all other Chicago newspapers in apartment-to-rent want advertising.

These two facts are impressive. The Tribune carries more apartment-to-rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined. It is the preferred medium of tenants.

Not only does the Tribune have 32% more circulation in metropolitan Chicago than any other newspaper, but in preference as an apartment guide it leads by 242%!

ASK FOR THE FULL REPORT!

Every landlord and rental agent in Chicago should see the full report of this survey. A Tribune man will gladly bring it. Write for it, or call Superior 0100, Local 241.

SURVEY FACTS

The investigation covered tenants in 187 apartment buildings advertised by 37 different agents in various Chicago newspapers. The buildings were selected so as to get a cross-section of Metropolitan Chicago. 19 city and two suburban neighborhoods were included. Rents in the buildings checked ranged from $25 to $275.

After the representative list of buildings had been made, investigators took the names of tenants from the mail-boxes in these buildings, in order to have specific families to question. Telephone numbers of these families were looked up, and they were called and asked to answer the four questions on the questionnaire shown at the left.

Where there were no phones, or where the party in question could not be reached by phone, cards asking the same four queries were mailed.

The 990 tenants who replied chalked up a 76% preference for the Chicago Tribune, 22% for the second newspaper, 4% for the third newspaper, 3% for the fourth!

ILL. CENTRAL TELLS CAUSES OF 1931 DEFICIT

BY O. A. MATHER.

Last year was the most difficult in the experience of the Illinois Central railroad, according to the annual report issued last night by President L. A. Downs. Drastic economies, which brought expenses to the lowest level since 1917, were not sufficient to offset the shrinkage in revenues, with the result that a deficit of $3,682,111 was incurred for 1931. This compared with net income for 1930 of $9,289,590, which was equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $6.02 a share on the $135,799,491 common stock.

"The railroad serves a territory of wide diversification," President Downs says. "However, a decline in foreign trade, an epidemic of bank failures, widespread drought, extensive unemployment, collapse of commodity prices, contraction of credit, and curtailment of buying power all contributed to the downward trend in commercial activity which was carried over from 1930 and continued unchecked throughout 1931.

Handicaps Set Forth.

"The territory served normally produces a large exportable surplus of agricultural products and more than 40 per cent of the manufacturing plants in this territory are adjuncts of agriculture. The prosperity of this region is therefore largely dependent on the prosperity of its farming. Curtailment of foreign demand and of domestic buying power resulted in declines in the prices of nearly all farm products.

"The gross farm income was 30 per cent under that of the previous year and less than half that of 1929. Manufacturing output was approximately 16 per cent under 1930 and 32 per cent under 1929. The ratio of business failures to total business enterprises was higher in 1931 than in any year since 1878."

Total railway operating revenues for 1931 were $116,788,193, a decline of $31,667,710 from 1930. Railway operating expenses were $94,797,653, a decline of $19,015,543. Freight revenue declined $23,822,888, and passenger revenue fell $5,628,658. Unregulated motor competition and also that from waterway carriers are blamed by Mr. Downs for part of the decline in traffic. Dividends were discontinued during the year and the road's surplus, after adjustments, was reduced by $2,377,933 to a total of $89,757,032. Current assets at the end of 1931 were $35,475,903, and current liabilities, $18,603,194. Total assets were $753,713,121.

WOULD CLOSE STOCK MARTS

American financiers and industrialists have long preached the doctrine that our great securities markets should never suspend trading except in the event of major wars and calamities. This has been a mark of their faith in the soundness of American business, industry and finance. But this faith has waned somewhat and recently there have come suggestions that the stock markets might well suspend operations, coupled with the suggestion that the present session of congress might be regarded somewhat in the nature of a calamity.

These sentiments are epitomized by Poor's Publishing company, which says: "In our opinion, the closing of the New York and other stock exchanges—until more rational and reasonable legislation comes from Washington—might be a wise move. The initial flurry following such an announcement would be nothing compared with that of the last two weeks.

"Exchanges in Quarantine."

"With the stock exchanges in quarantine, Washington could raid whatever it pleased with few ill effects; all psychological ill that flows from the trend of security prices would be alleviated—witness the week's reversal of the trend of hoarded money—and the investing public could retire for cool reflection unmindful of the grandstand play staged in Washington."

As evidence of the turmoil stirred up by recent legislative proposals, the Journal points out that greater security values now exist than investors will likely see for years, that banks are more liquid than in many months, that banks and insurance companies are able to invest but lack courage, yet stocks and bonds continue to decline.

Whitney Nominated for New York Exchange Again

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Richard Whitney has been renominated for a third term as president of the New York stock exchange, it was announced by the exchange today. The election will be held on May 9. His nomination is tantamount to election inasmuch as the ticket which he heads is the only one in the field. Warren B. Nash has been renominated for treasurer of the exchange for a thirteenth term.

Federal Tax Boosts to Aid Bonds of Cities

BY SCRUTATOR.

States and municipalities since last September have found borrowing difficult. Investors have been uneasy about the continued extravagance of public bodies at a time when ability to pay taxes is greatly reduced and everything but the cost of government has been geared down to the level of lower incomes.

During the last month, however, the municipal bond market has become more active. Sales in March were triple those in February. Cities and states that had previously offered bonds before found buyers for them. Others were encouraged to try.

The reason for this reawakening in municipals is not hard to find. Municipal credit is being helped, temporarily, by federal extravagance.

Congress Balancing Budget.

It works this way. Congress proposes to balance the budget by raising taxes instead of curtailing expenditures. Part of the additional revenue is to come from an increase in the income tax. This puts an additional premium on municipal bonds, which are exempt from federal income tax. Thus, even though the investment standing of a municipal bond remains the same the market for it improves because congress is in the act of imposing a more severe penalty on the ownership of other types of securities.

The credit of political bodies is being legislated into better position by weakening the credit of private concerns and individuals, which, in the final analysis, must produce the money to maintain government credit. The building is to be strengthened by removing stones from the foundation and laying them on the roof.

There was no development, except the action of the house of representatives in passing the tax bill, to account for the spurt in the sale of municipals from $35,000,000 in February to $107,000,000 in March. Throughout the country, state and city officials have been talking about economy, but so far the majority have proposed paring with a pen knife rather than an ax. It is apparent, therefore, that the increased attraction of municipals was due almost entirely to the decreased attraction of the taxable types of securities.

Impede Prosperity's Return.

In this way high taxes impede the return of prosperity. If factories are to reopen, the people who own them must have credit. They must be able to sell securities. They will not be able to sell securities [1] if investors are not assured that there will be at least a reasonable margin of profit after expenses and taxes, or [2] if investors are to be penalized too severely in income taxes for preferring such securities to municipal bonds.

The amount of credit in the country is never unlimited and when more money is drained into taxes there is just that much less to meet the needs of ordinary business.

In spite of the improvement in the municipal market last month there were still 47 issues with an aggregate par value of $28,100,637 that were offered but unsold. This figure includes $20,000,000 state of Louisiana highway bonds, representing the unsold portion of a $35,000,000 issue, $15,000,000 having been sold to the lone bidder.

Several Issues Unsold.

In February 59 issues totaling $24,247,291 remained unsold and in January there were 56 such issues, aggregating $13,439,293.

In the last ten years more than 21 billion dollars of financing has been done by states and their political subdivisions. Of this a little less than two-thirds went into long term bonds and the remainder was represented by short term loans.

Not all of this is at present outstanding, but the total state and local net bonded debt is conservatively estimated at more than fifteen billion dollars.

SEE TENDENCY TOWARD HIGHER PRICED GOODS

Officials of the Merchandise Mart stated yesterday that some 1½ million dollars in business has been done in connection with the establishment's second anniversary. About 1,800 buyers from all parts of the country, save the eastern states close to the New York market, are attending the sales events in connection with the anniversary.

Buyers assert that one outstanding tendency noted now is the movement toward higher priced goods. They explain that the public failed to accept the so-called "price merchandise" in which wares of indifferent quality were offered at exceedingly low prices.

E. C. Rollinger, buyer for the Broadway Department store of Los Angeles, went to New York before coming to the Merchandise Mart. He stated yesterday that he is doing his entire business here. His firm is holding its own, he said, with the volume of sales slightly larger than last year.

T. M. Marshall of Eldorado, Ark., who has been in business for two years, says that his company has shown a gain each month for twenty-three out of twenty-four months. He attributes his success to the fact that he has only new merchandise on his shelves.

Belding Heminway Co. to Specialize on Selling

Owing to the unfavorable conditions in broad silks and hosiery, the new interests in control of the Belding Heminway company will operate the company for the present as a selling organization primarily, it was reported yesterday. The company's own plants have been written down to nominal values and will be operated only if their products can be sold on a favorable basis in competition with the output of other producers.

KREUGER PHONE DEAL CANCELED BY JOINT CONSENT

Int'l-Ericsson Pact Is Dropped.

New York, April 11.—(AP)—A new and surprising development in the Kreuger debacle came in Wall street today. The International Telephone and Telegraph company revealed that its contract with Krueger & Toll to purchase control of the Ericsson Telephone company had been rescinded.

International Telephone disclosed that the contract had been voided by mutual consent during the visit to New York earlier this year of the late Ivar Kreuger, "since certain representations of fact upon which the arrangement was based had been found inaccurate."

Former Trade Sensation.

It was nearly a year ago that the announcement that International Telephone had acquired control of Ericsson came as a major development in the foreign telephone world. Ericsson, which has large electrical manufacturing interests and operates telephone systems in Europe, Argentina, and Mexico, was one of International's principal competitors. A few months later, Krueger became a member of the board of directors of International, and financial quarters assumed that the transaction had been completed.

The announcement of cancellation of the contract lent a new and confusing element to the tangled state of the Krueger-Swedish match trust affairs. The Swedish investigating committee had already charged that the Krueger & Toll statements contained serious misrepresentations.

Still Has Investment.

From the brief statement issued by International Telephone, however, it appeared that it might still retain its hold upon Ericsson, unless Kreuger & Toll returns the cash which International advanced. The block of stock in Ericsson still is being held for the account of International at a Swedish bank. Some months ago, it was generally understood in Wall street that International had paid for its interest with a block of its own stock in Ericsson stock. This was later denied, however, and it was learned that cash had been paid. International has not disclosed the amount, but unconfirmed Wall street reports have mentioned some $11,000,000.

"International Telephone and Telegraph corporation," that corporation's statement says, "last year made payment in cash, but not in shares, against delivery to a Swedish bank for account of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation of part of the Ericsson company stock, covered by the contract between the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation and Kreuger & Toll during the last visit of the late Ivar Kreuger to the United States.

Dropped By Mutual Consent.

"By mutual agreement the contract was rescinded since certain representations of fact by Kreuger & Toll on which the arrangement was based had been found inaccurate and Kreuger & Toll agreed to return the consideration received.

"The Ericsson company stock already delivered still is held for International Telephone and Telegraph corporation's account against return of the payment already made. The International Telephone and Telegraph corporation has never delivered any of its stock and is under no obligation to make any payments in cash or stock to or for the account of Kreuger & Toll."

Canadian Farmers Receive $8,483,348 in Wheat Bonus

OTTAWA, Ont., April 11.—(AP)—Under provisions of the 5 cent a bushel wheat bonus, farmers of western Canada had received $8,483,348 up to last Dec. 31, it was set forth in the annual report of the board of grain commissioners, tabled in the house of commons today. To check and make payments on approximately 3,000,000 bonus certificates the commissioners had to increase their staff of clerks and stenographers from 25 to 882 at the height of the harvest season.

February Tire Casing Output 3,871,220 Units

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Production of pneumatic tire casings for February totaled 3,871,220 units, an increase of 11.8 per cent over January but a decrease of 2.9 per cent from February, 1931, according to the Rubber Manufacturers Association, Inc. February shipments were 2,552,861 units, a decrease of 21.5 per cent under January and 25 per cent below February, 1931. Inventory on Feb. 29 was 9,172,245 units, an increase of 15.9 per cent over January, but 3.8 per cent below last year

Petroleum Corp. of America Would Reduce Its Stock

The New York Stock exchange has received notice from the Petroleum Corporation of America of a proposed decrease in authorized capital stock from 10,000,000 shares to 4,000,000 shares.

BOARD OF TRADE CHIEF ASKS U. S. TO LET DEALS ALONE

Prospects of better times for the farmers and the grain traders were cited yesterday by President Peter B. Carey of the Chicago Board of Trade in a statement in which he expressed the wish that the federal government would cease to harass the exchanges. He said:

"The strength shown by wheat prices in recent sessions encourages many in the grain industry to believe this commodity may assume the leadership to a return of a better level of values in all lines of industry.

"Such a happy possibility can only become a reality, however, if the government has the good judgment to stop harassing exchanges and as quickly as possible return farm board stocks to their normal channels of distribution. It must also find some other means of balancing the budget than by increasing taxes. Eliminating useless boards and bureaus is the answer to that problem.

"There is pending a proposal to increase the federal tax on contracts made in the grain futures markets by 400 per cent. This is ruinous. Trade volume would be lower; even a market as large as the Chicago Board of Trade would lose much of its liquidity, and the farmer would suffer because of restricted hedging facilities and by reason of the added tax burden.

"If wheat is to lead the way back to normal conditions, its commerce must be unburdened of every phase of governmental interference. No one has yet witnessed a sustained improvement of prices without a substantial volume of trade."

BANKERS PLAN FOR TENNESSEE SALE OF BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 11.—Arrangements were completed by a group of New York bankers today for the purchase of $9,000,000 state of Tennessee highway bonds bearing a 6 per cent rate and maturing $4,000,000 in 1946 and $5,000,000 in 1947. Public offering of the issue started early this afternoon at prices to yield 5.75 per cent.

The offering group was headed by the Chase Harris Forbes corporation, and included the National City company, Chemical Bank and Trust company, Lehman Brothers, and several Tennessee banking houses.

The proceeds of this issue will be used to retire $9,000,000 of highway notes maturing on April 29. In announcing the completion of this financing the bankers stated that provision has been made for meeting the $5,000,000 note maturity on June 1, and that the state now has no maturity that is not provided for until next year. Gov. Norton and most of the other leading state officials, it was said, have pledged themselves to a program of finance which contemplates the raising of new taxes and the establishment of a sinking fund to take care of the debt.

HINDENBURG'S ELECTION HELPS STOCKS ABROAD

LONDON, April 11.—(AP)—Improved Wall street reports and Hindenburg's reelection caused cheerfulness during the forenoon, with a number of advances. Iron and steel issues were benefited by tariff anticipations. Profit taking later caused recessions and the market closed undecided.

Paris Market Irregular.

PARIS, April 11.—(AP)—Prices on the bourse opened strong on favorable Wall street advices and the outcome of the German elections. There was an easing tendency toward the end, and the closing was irregular.

Berlin Market Weak.

BERLIN, April 11.—(AP)—Hindenburg's reelection made a good impression upon the boerse, but the increase in the Nazi vote caused some misgivings in connection with coming political events. This restricted business and caused a weak tendency. Private discount rates were reduced to 5⅛ per cent.

Discount Rate Cut.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, April 11.—(AP)—The National bank reduced its discount rate today from 6 to 5 per cent. The Lombard rate was reduced from 7 to 6½ per cent.

Atlantic Shipping Lines to Discuss Service Cut

LONDON, April 11.—(AP)—Representatives of the north Atlantic shipping lines will meet here Thursday to discuss curtailment of passenger schedules proposed recently at Brussels when the shipping conference voted general rate reductions.

WHEAT'S RISE PUTS LIFE INTO GRAIN TRADING

Strong Buying Helps Corn Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bull sentiment was rampant in the wheat market yesterday. Sensationally bullish crop reports more than offset everything of a bearish character. Prices advanced steadily from the opening until the close. The finish witnessed a marked broadening in the outside trade, with prices up 3¼@3½c for the day and at the best figures since March 10.

July touched 62¾c on the bulge, or 6¼c above the low of last Friday. The close was at the top, with May 59⅝@59¾c; old July, 62½@62¾c, and old September, 64⅞@65c.

A material change in sentiment was apparent in some quarters. Washington reports that the senate was to investigate the federal farm board as well as the grain exchanges added to the bullish enthusiasm which prevailed toward the last.

The early break in stocks and bonds led to some selling of wheat, but at no time were prices below Saturday's finish. Houses with eastern connections were persistent buyers from the start and rapidly absorbed the surplus in the pit, while toward the last sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves.

Expect Small Wheat Crop.

Dry weather was reported over the greater part of the west and southwest following showers in western Kansas over the week-end, and the trade belives that every day of continued drought lowers the prospect for the wheat crop still further.

On the basis of the government estimate of 14 per cent of the wheat area seeded last fall as likely to be abandoned it would leave 33,200,000 acres for harvest, the smallest with two exceptions since 1913. The official Kansas report estimated the probable loss in acreage in that state at 20 per cent and Nebarska returns indicated 20@25 per cent. A private report indicated a probbale reduction of 40 per cent in Nebraska.

Forecast indicated dry weather for several days over the greater part of the winter wheat belt. Dust storms were again reported in parts of Texas and Kansas during the day. The unfavorable weather conditions which have prevailed since the government report was compiled results in a fairly general belief that the abandoned acreage is more likely to exceed the tentative estimate of 14 per cent than to fall below that figure.

Routine developments in the news attracted little atention. Liverpool wheat was strong and ⅝@⅞c higher, with May at 59¼c, or 2½c over Chicago, with the continent buying cash grain freely. Winnipeg was inclined to lag, but gained 1⅝@1¾c for the day, with May at 64c in Canadian funds.

Wheat Stocks Disappearing.

A decrease of 4,404,000 bu in the domestic visible supply, making a total reduction of 13,060,000 in the last three weeks, became a factor in the wheat market toward the last. Supplies are now down to 192,129,000 bu, compared with 199,561,000 bu last year.

Liquidation was on in corn early, with a decline of around 1c from Saturday's finish, May touching 32⅞c on the break, or ¼c above the inside figure of the season. However, the strength in wheat finally started a buying movement which carried prices up 1½c from the inside figures, and the close was at the top, with net gains of ½@¾c. May finished at 34¼@34⅝c; July, 37¾@37⅞c, and September, 40⅛@40¼c. Country offerings were limited, but the shipping demand showed no improvement. An increase of 356,000 bu was reported in the visible supply, with the total 21,835,000 bu, against 19,644,000 bu last year.

Oats were dull but firm and closed ⅜c higher, with May at 24½c; July, 24⅝c; and September, 25½c. Rye was strong with wheat and on reports that a German commission was on its way to the United States to negotiate for rye. Closing trades were 1⅝@2¼c higher, with May 47¼c; July, 48¾@49c, and September, 49⅞c.

CREAMERY CO. SHOWS DECLINE IN SALES FOR '31

Business of the Beatrice Creamery company held up fairly well last year, according to the annual report of President C. H. Haskell. Tonnage sales, figured on a unit basis, declined only 8.47 per cent for the fiscal year ended Feb. 29, compared with the previous period. Dollar sales totaled $64,059,036, compared with $82,811,473, the greater decline resulting from lower commodity prices.

Net income was $2,111,142, equivalent, after preferred dividends and dividends to subsidiary companies, to $3.54 a share on Beatrice Creamery common stock. Dividends totaling $4 a share were paid on the common stock, which payments and surplus adjustments resulted in reducing earned surplus to $2,709,534, compared with $3,338,764 on Feb. 28, 1931. The company shows a strong position, with current assets of $10,295,655 against current liabilities of $987,568.

Insull Stock Sales Concern to Be Remade

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Business of the Utility Securities company, stock distributing organization of the Insull utility system, is to be closed out and a new company formed to carry on its security selling activities. This was learned yesterday. Capital for the new company, which will bear the same corporate title, will be furnished by the big Insull operating companies, Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas, and Public Service of Northern Illinois.

Activities of the new company will be confined entirely to distributing securities of the various Insull companies. It will not assume certain commitments which the old company made in connection with its distributing program. These commitments will be taken over by the principal operating companies and, it is understood, will eventually be liquidated.

To Resume First Function.

By this move, Utilities Securities will revert to the function for which it was originally formed—that of distributing securities of the Insull enterprises. The market activities which were carried on by the old concern in connection with its selling will be discontinued. Sale of Commonwealth Edison and other securities, which was suspended a few weeks ago, will be resumed.

Decision to revamp the stock distributing organization was arrived at yesterday following conferences between Samuel Insull and various interested bankers. The move clears up one of the problems which has been occupying the attention of the Insull management and the bankers for several weeks.

Chicago Bankers Return.

The status of the negotiations over the financial problems of Middle West Utilities company was reported yesterday as unchanged. Mr. Insull, E. E. Brown, executive vice president of the First National bank, and A. J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, returned to this city following conferences in New York.

It was reported that a reorganization committee for Middle West may be announced in the near future. Both Mr. Insull and the bankers were noncommittal over the plans. It is understood, however, that no definite plan has yet been presented to the bankers by Mr. nsull.

Light Trading in Shares.

Trading in the various Insull securities quieted down on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The lower priced shares were fairly steady on reduced transactions. Stocks of the big operating companies, which are unaffected by Middle West's problems, were lower in line with the the general trend. After a mild rally around midday Commonwealth Edison reached and closed off two points at 62½. Public Service common shares were off rather sharply on light sales.

Awaiting definite news on the reorganization plan Middle West fluctuated between 62½ and 75 cents. The company's notes were irregular on the New York curb with a narrow range.

FORM COMMITTEE

Following receivership action brought in Trenton, N. J., against the United Public Service company announcement was made here yesterday of the formation of a protective committee to represent all security holders of the company. The company, a subsidiary of Middle West Utilities company, recently defaulted on its bond interest after the parent company discontinued making advances to it.

The receivership petition was filed last week, but only became public when it was recorded yesterday in the Chancery court of the eastern city. The action was brought by Howard J. Umland of Brooklyn, a holder of 60 shares of preferred stock and four trust bonds. Officers were ordered to appear April 18 to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the company.

Bard to Head Committee.

The announcement issued here last night from the offices of Middle West Utilities said that the committee formed would work for the interest of all the security holders. Ralph A. Bard, president of the Chicago Investors' company, will head the committee. Neither Mr. Bard nor his company has any financial interest in the firm, it was stated. F. E. Kruesi, vice president of Middle West, is also a member of the committee. Full coöperation will be given the committee by that company, it was stated.

The statement said the committee "believes that it is not without the range of possibility that within the sixty day period of grace the default in respect to payment of interest may be cured."

Deposit of securities will not be asked for the time being. Hope is expressed by the committee that the whole situation will be worked out without the necessity of costly legal proceedings. Alfred Evers, 231 South La Salle street, is secretary of the protective group.

R. H. Macy Co. Group Sales Decline Only 2.14 Per Cent

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 11. — The North American Gas and Electric company's directors decided today to pass the quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share on the class A stock due at this time. Three months ago a distribution of 10 cents a share was paid prior to which the stock was on a $1.60 annual basis. Regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share was announced on the $6 preferred stock.

The board of the Maytag company took no action on the 75 cent cumulative quarterly preferred dividend, it was announced today. The regular quarterly of $1.50 was voted on the first preferred.

Allied Newspapers, Ltd., has passed the ordinary dividend, considering it advisable to conserve resources, according to a London dispatch. Shareholders will be asked to sanction creation of 2,000,000 shares of 6½ per cent cumulative preferred stock to rank ahead of the present preference in order to fund on a permanent basis loans outstanding Allied Northern Newspapers. Net income for the last year amounted to £410,910 after all charges.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 11.—Popular pessimism continued to exact a heavy toll of corporation stock values in today's dealings on the New York stock exchange. The congressional short selling inquiry at Washington was ignored and the effect of the sharp upturn in wheat on the Chicago pit was nominal. Germany's election cut no ice at all.

Brokerage house observers expressed the conviction that nothing short of a radically bullish development at Washington could spur the market out of the mire into which it has sunk on the current decline. "A congressional market" was the way some of them described it, meaning that its immediate fate may hinge very largely on the financial and tax legislation turned out by the nation's law making body in the next few weeks.

U. S. Steel at 33.

The day's selling served to sink numerous issues, some of them of leadership caliber, to the lowest levels since before the world war. Virtually the entire list hit a new bottom for the depression. United States Steel backed down to 33, American Can to 49½, Consolidated Gas to 49⅜, New York Central to 20, and General Motors to 11⅛. Prices rallied somewhat from their extreme lows in the late afternoon trading and some observers were inclined to credit the slight improvement to the bulge in wheat. Net losses were from 1 to 3 or 4 points.

Railroad shares were once more in the van of the retreat. Atchison broke more than 7 points to 45⅛, the lowest price since 1901. Union Pacific gave up another 5 points and, with New York Central, Pennsylvania, and others, sold to a new low for the bear market.

Particularly heavy selling converged on motor shares, and most of them achieved new lows. The sharp competitive battle precipitated by Ford's price cuts was offered in well informed quarters for the pronounced dislike of these shares. Several blocks of from 10,000 to 12,000 shares of General Motors stock appeared on the tape at receding prices.

Auburn Is Weak.

Auburn was also especially weak, giving up some 5 points, but recovering a part of its loss toward the close. This erstwhile market cut-up apparently has lost its prestige with the more speculatively inclined for the time being. Along with its steady decline on the big board are heard estimates indicating that the company's earnings for the February quarters of its fiscal year will show a balance of around only 4 cents a share as compared with the net equivalent of $1.06 a share for the corresponding period of 1931.

Public utilities generally were down from 2 to 3 points. American Telephone was under considerable pressure, but did not violate last week's low. Peoples Gas dropped some 3 points to register a new minimum of 60½.

Brief Strike in Ford Plant in Ireland Is Settled

CORK, Ireland, April 11.—(AP)—A brief strike in the Ford Motor company assembly plant here was settled today when 400 of the men involved in a dispute over wages returned to work. The rest will be back at their jobs before the week is over, officials at the plant said.

TELLS STORY OF A GOLD COAST MODERNIZATION

Attracts Tenants, Says C. R. Gleason.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' protective committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY AL CHASE.

What can be done towards financially rehabilitating a defaulted first mortgage bond issue by completely modernizing the building securing it was told yesterday by Courtney R. Gleason, real estate manager of the George M. Forman Realty trust. The property in question is the ten story 240 East Delaware building, an eighty-five apartment structure at the northwest corner of De Witt place and Delaware place, in the heart of Streeterville.

COURTNEY R. GLEASON.

From a decrepit, unkempt and comparatively wornout apartment building with thirty-seven of its eighty-five suites vacant, Mr. Gleason has transformed it into a spotless, well equipped structure which is practically 100 per cent rented; to be exact, yesterday there was just one vacant suite.

A steady gain in rental revenue, beginning soon after these rejuvenation plans were under way, enabled the Forman trust to meet all operating charges and pay for the extensive repairs and reconstruction work from income, Mr. Gleason stated.

Based on Careful Study.

When sufficient bonds of the George M. Forman & Co. issue had been deposited last September to make the trust operative, Mr. Gleason started rejuvenation based on a careful study of the structure.

"Two-thirds of the carpets were threadbare and unusable," he said. "Most of the furniture needed recovering, rebuilding, or replacing. All apartments required redecorating at once, both walls and woodwork. The lobby was dirty and unattractive. It needed repainting and refurnishing.

Leaks Repaired.

"The building had leaking steam risers from basement to roof. We had to cut out channels in the plastering, rebuild the risers and replaster from top to bottom where rotted walls had ruined decorations. Leaks in plumbing and steamfitting had raised havoc with the ceilings. Even the driveway for coal delivery was so defective it had to be rebuilt, as did the catchbasin and outside sewerage pipes.

"As fast as our steamfitters, plumbers and plasterers and painters finished similar work in other Forman trust buildings we moved them into 240 Delaware. They corrected piping and plastering from the top floor down. We reënameled all woodwork, redecorated all public halls, laid new carpets. Two staff upholsterers rebuilt and recovered the furniture that could be repaired. The lobby was redecorated and refurnished.

"Noisy elevators were repaired and passenger cabs handsomely paneled in wood. The heating plant was rebuilt and a stoker installed. The ventilating system was repaired and enlarged. The roof was recoated. The exterior of the building was put into a good condition as the interior.

Attracts Tenants.

"And here is the most interesting part of the whole story. As soon as tenants and prospects saw that we had started this general rebuilding we began meeting success in our renting campaign, notwithstanding the disorder that the presence of a great many workers naturally caused. Our improvements drew a splendid class of tenants. Rentals quickly grew to such a point that we could meet the repair and pay roll costs from income. Stoker and refrigerator installments are being paid easily from rentals.

"We've produced a practically brand new building and made it virtually 100 per cent occupied, without putting an outside dollar into the place. As with the rehabilitation programs we have carried out in other Forman trust buildings, our buying and management resources have accomplished all this with a degree of economy that makes the building, from now on, an asset to the trust instead of the liability it was when we took charge for its bondholders."

UTILITY CONTROL FORCES DIVIDED OVER RESULTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 11.—The round table conference on regulation of public utilities has ended its two day session at the Hotel Pennsylvania with a split over the report of its policy committee which declared utility regulation had failed to protect the investor in such securities, failed to obtain rate reductions for the consumer, and to safeguard the credit of the utility companies themselves.

When the report was submitted by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the power authority of the state of New York and a member of the commission or revision of the public service law, Milo R. Maltbie, chairman of the New York state public service commission, offered an amendment to the title of the report.

Prof. William Z. Ripley of the department of economics at Harvard university urged the policy committee to switch its recommendations so that the last would come first, and he wrote a paragraph preface.

"The report on policy of the round table conference on public utility regulations in the form in which it publicly appears, not having been submitted to the conference before issuance, I hereby wish to disclaim any share of responsibility for its form or content," Prof. Ripley said. "This statement is made without rancor or prejudice; but merely in protest against precipitancy and informality of procedure."

...AND BRIGHTEN 20,000 STREETS

That's just another of the large scale daily demands which form the backbone of the markets for Cities Service products and indicates the further growth of Cities Service Company.

As an investor you should be interested in the particulars.

The break came in face of advancing wholesale prices and moderate supplies. Small local packers were aggressive buyers on the break, but with many of the eastern interests sending orders to relatively lower outside points, the available supply at Chicago exceeded trade requirements.

Large local packers came in for more than 20,000 head, including 14,000 directs. Toward the finish prices were lowest of the day, yet some of the selling side thought they detected a better undertone. The lighter run estimated for today had no appreciable influence. Only 19,000 are in sight, against 26,000 a week ago, and less than 5,000 were estimated left at the close yesterday. The extreme top price moved down 10c more to $4.35, being 15c under last Friday's top. The general average showed 10c loss for the day at $4.00. Lightweight hogs showed more weakness than heavier stock, while the extreme weights averaging 350@400 lbs, that sold at $3.50@3.60, were no more than 5@10c under the best prices for those weights late last week. Yesterday's additional advance in fresh pork loins brought the range on the wholesale trade to 9@13½c. At the low time this winter loins sold at 5½@8c.

No changes were made in the hog futures trade yesterday. All September contracts were offered at $5.75, while one bid of $5.00 was made for heavy grades in that month. May medium were being offered at $5.00 and light weights at $5.25. The latter were bid $4.50.

Many $8.00 Steers.

Considering the big share of steers in yesterday's receipts of 14,000, the cattle trade gave a good account of itself and finished up fully steady to strong. Buying by all interests spread out more and all classes shared in the better action. Large local packers were leaders in the competition for top grades. Swift paid up to $8.25 for almost 100 head averaging 1,121@1,344 lbs, selling the top price for the day.

Numerous sales of $900@1,500 lb averages were made at $8.00, while $8.10 was paid for 944 lb yearling steers. The bulk showed a wider range at $5.50@8.00, although only a small share of offerings were the kind to sell at $5.00 and below. The light supply of butcher stock sold mostly steady.

Yearling heifers at $7.25 equaled last week's high mark. Most butcher heifers sold at $4.50@5.25, with most beef cows occasionally as high as $4.75 @5.00. Calves ruled strong to 25c higher when the supply fell short again. Bulls advanced 10@15c. Little action was reported from the stocker and feeder division.

Lambs Sell Higher.

Trading in the lamb market opened earlier yesterday and tendency ruled higher from the start. Gains of 10@25c were scored during the session, with closing sales highest. City butchers paid upwards to $7.65 for their selections, while packers bought at $7.50 and below, taking most good grades at $7.00@7.25. The first California spring lambs of the season on the open market at Chicago arrived yesterday and sold at $8.75, with 38 medium grades out at $8.00. Aged sheep sold steady, light ewes going at $3.75@4.25 and heavy stock at $3.00@3.50. Yearlings were stronger.

LARD PRICES HIGHER

Trade in lard was fair, with offerings light and a comparatively better feeling, with everything well absorbed, due in a measure to the advance in wheat. The close was at net gains of 2½@7½c of both lard and bellies for future delivery. Liverpool lard is unchanged to 3d higher. Exports of lard for the week are 6,683,000 lbs, against 9,121,000 lbs last year, while of bacon they were 1,528,000, against 3,726,000 lbs last year. Hog supplies were larger than a week ago and smaller than last year. Hogs at western points were larger than a week ago, but less than last year, with the market closing relatively 5c lower. LESS—for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 36 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

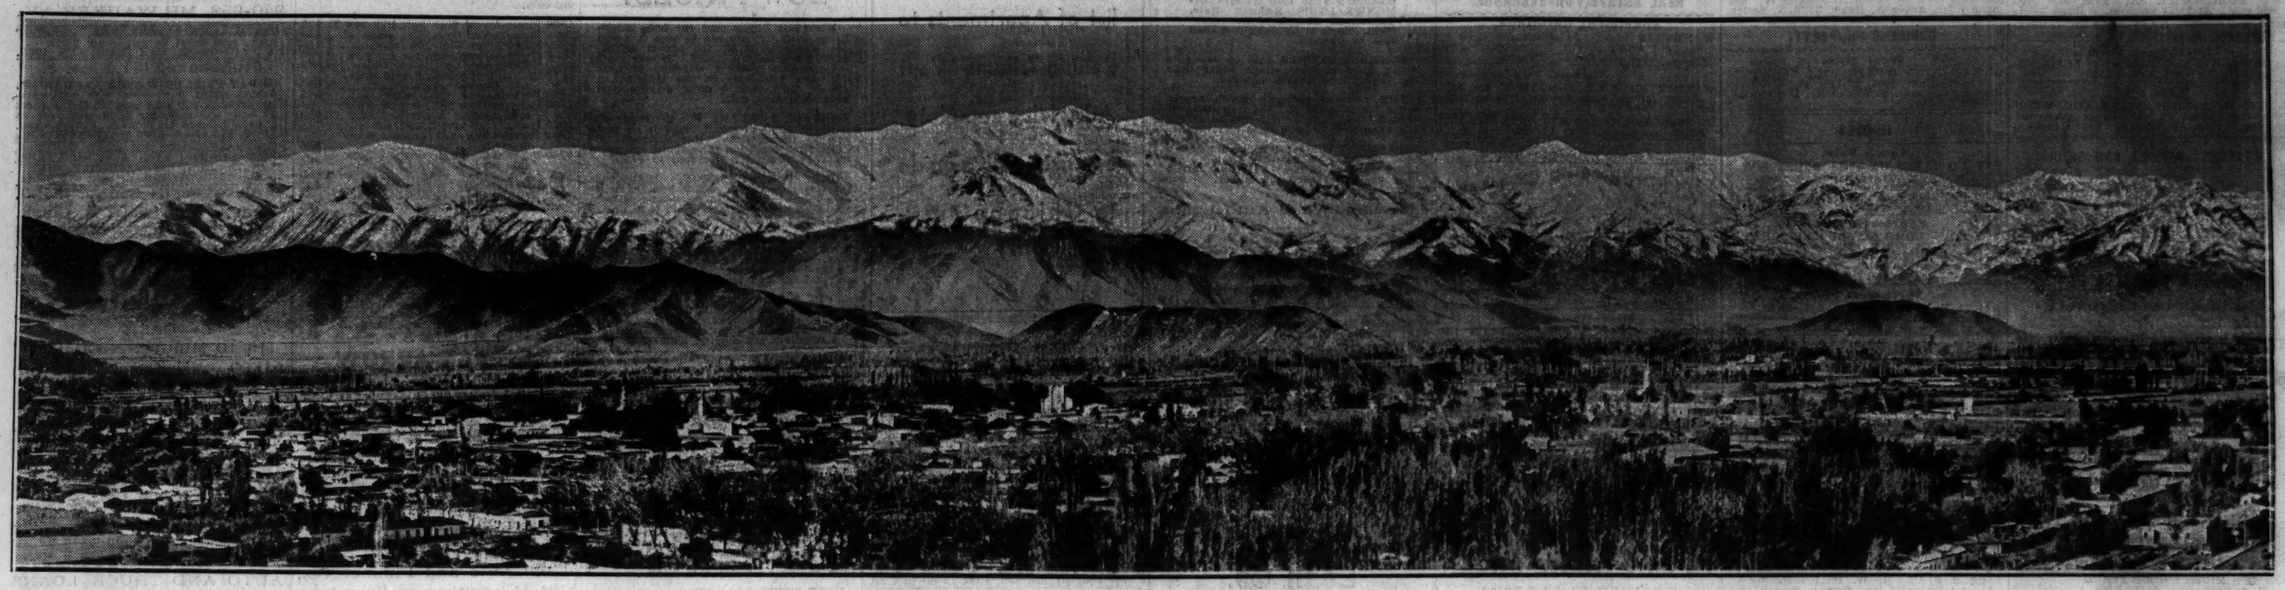
Chile Terror Stricken as Volcanoes in the Andes Belch Fire and Ashes Fall in Cities' Streets



MIGHTY SOUTH AMERICAN MOUNTAIN RANGE IN WHICH VOLCANOES ARE ACTIVE ALONG A STRETCH OF 400 MILES AS IT APPEARS FROM THE CHILEAN CAPITAL OF SANTIAGO AT ITS BASE. Whole provinces in Chile, which lies between the mountain range and the Pacific coast, are reported plunged in darkness following the eruption of several of the volcanoes in the chain of mountains. White ashes from the active volcanoes rain down in the city of Santiago, which is in the foreground of the picture, and are even carried by a strong west wind as far as Montevideo, Uruguay, 600 miles away. (Story on page 1.)
